QUAINT OLD INDIAN COINS

So Adulterated That They Were Not Even Accepted in England as Value in Metal.

In 1908 the independent state of Hyderabad, India, obtained a modern mint and called in the coins that had been current up till that time. The old mint of Hyderabad was little more than a coppersmith's shop in which scrap copper of all sorts was melted up, hammered into plates, cut up into very rough approximations of one tola in weight, and stamped between dies, one of which was in the anvil and the other in a toll held in tongs. A blow from a sledge hammer made the impression. There was no regularity in shape, weight or stamping, nor was the metal uniform in quality.

The mint could not furnish supplies fast enough, and licenses were issued to coppersmiths to assist in production. Naturally, the Scientific American states, nonlicensed persons began to manufacture, and adulteration with lead was so rampant that when several tons of these coins were sent to England as old metal they were returned on account of their impurity and were finally worked up into brass for local consumption. A "dub" if held in the flame of a spirit lamp, would before it reached red heat begin to discharge very fine jets resembling mercury; the lead, having reached its fusing point, burst from the copper with a force indicating a very high internal pressure.

Guard Your Breath.
"A man's breath," says Popular Science Monthly, "is often a betrayer of secrets. He may have been out late, sitting up with a sick friend, but when he reaches home his loving wife at once opens up her battery of reproaches."

"Now comes the news that two inventors in Osceola, Ark., have jointly invented a breath-guard of a new pattern. It is said to be efficient, but not in the manner you were thinking of. It is intended to protect dentists, barbers and physicians from inhaling the germ-laden breath of their patients or patrons. It consists of a small curved shield of glass placed so as to cover the nostrils and held in position by a spring clip gripping the partition wall of the nose on the inside. Many diseases are directly communicated through the inhalation of tainted air, and a device of this kind should be a boon to professional people who are compelled, by the nature of their duties, to be in close proximity to those whom they serve."

Suttee.
The English government, after long discouraging suttees, by the agency of Lord William Bentinck formally abolished them in December, 1829, but they have since occasionally taken place. The wife of the son of the Rajah of Beygoon thus perished in June, 1864, and several wives of Sir Tame Bahadur, minister of Nepal, on March 1, 1877. One voluntary suttee occurred at Poonan, in November, 1890, and it has continued to the present time in isolated parts of India, for even as late as 1905 several persons who took part in a suttee in Bihar were condemned to penal servitude.

Singing Makes Work Easy.
Singing makes the daily work easier of accomplishment. Sailors were among the first to recognize this and they sang as they stored away the cargo, keeping time with the music as they pulled on ropes and windlass, changing to presto when the work demanded it. Here is a favorite ditty:
A Yankee ship and a Yankee crew,
Tally ho, you know.

Negligees Are Trousered and Gorgeous

Pajamas, worn instead of night dresses, have proved so sensible and so fetching that they have become an established institution in the realm of lingerie. Now we accept them as a matter of course. It was because they proved pretty and fascinating that they were followed by negligees that scorned skirts and revealed in trousers, inviting all sorts of gorgeous oriental silks and furbelows, to come and be at home with them. Japan, China, Persia, Turkey and heaven only knows what other lands, have been ransacked for inspirations.

The designers, once having landed an idea, exploit it to suit themselves. In the picture a lovely negligee is shown with flowered satin trousers, or pantalettes, that are gathered in about the ankle. Over an ivory surface, or on any good color background, bouquets of flowers in several colors are printed on silks that make these neither garments things of beauty. Worn over these there are mantlets or jackets or draperies of georgette or silk, usually in a plain color. In the picture, the over-garment is a rose-colored crepe georgette and it fastens with silk cord and tassels in the same color.

SPUD-FED HOGS

Pine Valley Man Uses Surplus Potatoes for Feeding Swine.

W. W. Lloyd is in Portland looking after a shipment of a car load of hogs, the last of this year's crop. Mr. Lloyd has shipped several cars of hogs this season, all of which were partly potato fed. The exact weights of the potatoes given to the hogs are not at hand, but they will run into tons and tons. The most of them were bought from producers at 50 cents per 100 pounds. The price made it possible to feed the potatoes to hogs, and while it was small, it was that much for the potato raisers, for with the surplus on hand last spring they would have rotted unless used for hog feed. Some of the potatoes were fed raw and some were cooked in large kettles.

BOTTLES FOR BELGIAN BABIES

Red Cross Places Bottles in La Grande for Public.

One of the stands is in the postoffice, one in the Foley hotel and one in the O.-W. depot. At intervals the money will be forwarded to the Red Cross department having this work in charge. The Pure Milk and Cream Company donated the bottles and Frank Lilly donated the padlocks for the stands. Charlie Good-nough was the architect who designed and manufactured the stands.

To Reduce Flesh.

To reduce superfluous fat you must work. Your path will wind through many lanes of self-sacrifice before your mirror will give back the coveted willowy image. Your attainment of the ideal will mean hot work, too, for vigorous exercise is necessary. A daily walk of five miles should not be excessive if you are in good condition. Give a fair trial to the tonic baths so helpful for many girls who complain of "tired feelings."

Digging.

It is seldom that men discover rich mines without digging. Nature commonly lodges her treasures and jewels in rock ground. If the matter be knotty and the sense lie deep, they must stop and buckle to it, and stick upon it with labor and thought and close contemplation, and not leave it until they have mastered the difficulty and got possession of the truth.—Locke.
