THOMSON SAYS HE GAINED 34 POUNDS

SUFFERED FIFTEEN YEARS WITH RHEUMATISM AND OTHER TROUBLES.

Another remarkable statement to be added to the thousands already given, testifying to the undoubted benefits that have been derived from the use of Tanlac in long-standing cases of rheumatic troubles, is that made the other day by Duncan Thomson, who is in the meat market business and lives at 421-1/2 Hawthorn Ave., Portland, Ore. In telling of his experience with Tanlac, Mr. Thomson said:

"I feel it my duty to tell everybody how Tanlac restored my broken health, for the only way I found out about this wonderful medicine was through others telling how it helped them. I suffered from a rheumatic condition of the system for fifteen years," continued Mr. Thomson, and I kept getting worse all the time. My kidneys worried me too for the last two years and the rheumatism in my back was so terrible I thought at times it would surely break in two. My legs and knees would draw up until my muscles felt like they were tied in knots and ached so bad I could hardly bear to have anything touch them. I was so badly constipated that I had to take something for this condition every two or three days, and my troubles weighed on me so and pulled me down till they nearly put me out of business. I lost weight, and felt so tired and worn out all the time that it was all I could do to drag myself off to my work."

"Well, I tried everything I could think of, but got no better, and had begun to think there was no help for me at all. I was in Snyder, Oklahoma, when I first heard about Tanlac. Every day there was talking about it, and the results they were getting were so remarkable that I bought some myself to try. Why, I personally know one lady who was down in bed with rheumatism for six months and her friends had given her up to die. She took Tanlac, and is now up and doing her own work, as well as ever, and I could tell you of many other cases. But to get back to my own case, I felt so much better after taking my first bottle. I have kept on with it till now, my rheumatism and kidney trouble have been entirely relieved, my constipation has been removed and I have actually gained thirty-four pounds in weight. I am stronger and better than I have been in years. I work as hard as a man half my age and it doesn't hurt me a bit. I have already told many people about the way Tanlac has fixed me up and I expect to tell many more for I think Tanlac is the best medicine anybody can take."

Tanlac is sold in La Grande at Silverthorn's Drug Store. Adv.

FRENCH GO BACK TO CANDLES

Scarcity of Materials Used for Lighting Has Led to Revival of an Ancient Art.

While the war has wrecked some industries in France, it has at the same time created new ones and revived older crafts. An excellent and interesting example of the latter is the art of candlestick making, which has taken on a new lease of life. Even in some of the big towns there are houses which are not supplied with gas, where before the war petroleum or spirit was used for lighting purposes. Now that the use of these is restricted closely, recourse has to be made to the old-fashioned candle.

This is true in the country especially where candlesticks are in great demand, and every one is buying them according to his means or fancy. At first they were made of copper, but when that metal became scarce brass was employed. Some of the modern examples have several branches and are very artistic.

A domestic art metal worker at Aix, who has specialized in this kind of work, and has become quite a celebrity, has just constructed a series of tall iron candlesticks of very solid proportions which can hold several candles. They have been critically inspected by art metal critics and are claimed to be true works of art, and to appeal to all lovers of ironwork.—Scientific American.

LONG FAMOUS IN HISTORY

Vicissitudes of Old City of Jerusalem May Be Said to Be Without a Parallel.

The capture of Jerusalem by English troops recalls the tragic and fascinating story of that day, which carries us back through the mist of ages to the days when the throne of David was established within its walls. From that date we pass to the glories of the temple built by Solomon, which for centuries was to stand as the center and pivot of the Jewish nation and faith. The time came, however, when her days were numbered, and the drama of Calvary was followed a few years later by the onslaught of Titus, the Roman emperor, who encompassed the city round on every side and leveled it to the ground.

Round its ruined walls Saracen and Crusader were to fight continuously for its possession, and Christian knights flocked from all lands to the rescue of the holy places, until in 1099 Godfrey de Bouillon defeated his enemies and was chosen as the first Christian king of Jerusalem.

Following this, for a considerable period the city remained in Christian hands, until in 1517 it was captured by the Turks.

Strain of Flying.

Aero-neurosis is the name which sometimes is given to nervous troubles brought about by the strain of flying. It has been said that an airman's life consists of "long spells of intense fear." He has to endure intense cold, rain, wind, and fog, the nerve-racking noise of the engine, the anti-aircraft fire, and to loop, spin, dive, or sidestep, apparently out of control, to deceive an opponent. An interesting nerve test has been devised in France for selecting the best type of airman for fighting. Around his chest is a pneumograph, in his left hand a trembler, and around two fingers of his right hand a pneumatic "dolgit." Behind the candidate a revolver shot is fired or a magnesium flare is set off, and a record of the effect on his nerves is obtained by means of stylus writing on a blackened revolving cylinder.

One of Uncle Sam's Boys.

Although he had twice been unable to make his way through a steam-filled compartment, Walter D. McLean, a chief machinist's mate, national naval volunteer, United States navy, made a third go at it, and with success. In doing this he prevented a much more serious accident, and for his valor has been commended by the secretary of the navy. The engine room had been filled with live steam when the breaking of the tiller carried away the exhaust lines of the steering engine. At the first alarm McLean tried to enter the compartment where the steam was escaping, but it was not until he had made three trips down the ladder that he was successful in stopping the flow. McLean went into the navy April 8, 1917, entering the naval volunteers at Erie, Pa.

JAPAN'S SMALL RICE GARDENS

In Comparison With America's Miles of Farms They Might Almost Be Termed Laughable.

Almost one-half of the land capable of cultivation in Japan is planted in rice. Handkerchief gardens would perhaps best describe the little rice fields, many of which are no larger than a tennis court, are equally flat and are surrounded by rims of earth to hold the water when the fields are flooded.

The average rice field in Japan is about one acre and a half in size; but large or small, each field must be leveled and each must have its rim or dike. There must be a system of canals to bring water to the fields and another system of ditches to take it away when it is no longer needed.

It is said that there are 12,000 square miles of rice land in Japan, the greater part of which has been prepared with an almost infinite amount of labor. That area of land cultivated in rice virtually feeds a nation of 50,000,000 people.

EMINENTLY FITTED FOR JOB

Society Matron, Trying to "Do Her Bit" Had Distinct Laugh on Ill-Natured Farmer.

Society is having a delightful giggle over a story now going the rounds and of which Mrs. Mackay is heroine. Seems that with several other prominent women of the 400, she went in for farming on Long Island, and the brigade was assigned to a farm whose owner had always had a grudge against the rich. He thought that now was his opportunity and approaching Mrs. Mackay said: "The first thing I'd like you to do is clean out the pigsties. Think you can manage it?" Imagine his amazement and chagrin when the multimilliondollar social arbiter smiled and cooed: "Certainly; at home I always attend personally to cleaning out the bird cage."

Heroism That Is Real.

For heroism when the engine room of his ship was filled with live steam, Niels Anderson, chief machinist's mate, United States navy, has been given official commendation. The act occurred when the exhaust lines of the steering engine were carried away by the breaking of the tiller, causing the engine room to fill with steam. Without hesitation Anderson went down a ladder to the compartment, but was driven back. Again he made two more attempts. The third was successful, and, groping his way through the cloud of steam, he cut it off. Anderson enlisted in the navy at Norfolk, Va., in April, 1908, giving as his home address 2420 South Broad street, Philadelphia.

Our Limited Resources.

We should put out of our minds the idea that we have stores of accumulated wealth upon which to draw for war supplies. England had such stores, but we have not. When England went into the war she had great stores of outstanding legal claims upon the world, the organization of the outside world. She had also an established credit that enabled her to gear into her own working system the industrial power of the United States and many other neutral countries. We are devoid of any comparable resources. We have no capital to throw at the enemy. We have nothing to throw but our current income.—Charles Ferguson in Humanitarian.

Why the Lambs Gried.

Bobby was having his first experience on his grandfather's farm at sheep-shearing time. The men had the lambs separated from their mothers and turned them back into the flock at night, and there was the usual great commotion. Bobby went to his mother and said: "Mother, do you know what makes the lambs bleat so tonight?" Upon her telling him she did not know, he proceeded to explain: "The lambs are crying because grandfather skinned their mothers today and they cannot tell which one they belong to."

All Appropriate.

The match shortage in England is used by the British press to recall a story of the well-known firm of Bryant & May, match manufacturers. One day when they were in the heyday of their prosperity the senior partner, Mr. Bryant, dressed in the height of fashion, drove a spanking team onto the Ascot race course.

"Halloa!" exclaimed a wit, pointing to the horses, "Bryant's got his match there."

"Yes, and Bryant himself looks very striking on the box."

A Stranger's Mistake.

"Mr. Bibbles! You were intoxicated last night. I saw you zigzagging all over the street."
"Merely the result of misapprehension. I didn't know the painted white lines were for automobiles. I thought they were for the guidance of pedestrians."

His Regret.

"I regret that money is everything."
"Do you really believe that money is everything in this world?"
"I didn't say that. To repeat I regret that money is everything I have to give to win the war."

No Doubt.

"Is the plumber at home?"
"I think you'll find him in the garden, over by the onion patch."
"Looking for leaks, I suppose."—Boston Transcript.

Should Think He Was.

The temperance advocate who declared that "drunkenness is folly," and found himself reported in the papers as having said "drunkenness is folly," must have been annoyed.
