of Christian Workers

By REV. B. B. SUTCLIFFE
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Be of good courage and let us behave ourselves valiantly, and let the Lord do that which is good in his sight.—1 Chron. 12:11.

Joab, the commander in chief of David's army, found himself between two fires. The army of the Syrians opposed him on one side and the army of the Ammonites on the other. Employing the best tactics he knew and placing his army to the best advantage, he made an address to his men on the eve of battle. The text is part of that address which reminded them they were about to fight for their people and the cities of their God. His exhortation might well be pondered by all Christians today and especially those who are more or less directly engaged in Christian work.

There are three things upon the surface of this text.
I. The Need of Courage.

It is said of some regiments in human armies that they are so foolish as never to know when they are beaten. It is not foolishness that is the trouble, but a high-hearted courage which will not admit defeat or which takes a defeat and wrestles it into a victory. The Christian worker, above all others, should have such good courage. He has a Leader who is possessed of all wisdom and knowledge—a Leader who knows the secret plans of the enemy. He is aware even of the secret thoughts of the enemy. He is never taken off his guard, or by surprise. He is fully informed of every movement. He gives promise to his people that no weapon formed against them shall prosper. He is a Leader who not only has all knowledge, but all power to use his knowledge. He is the Invincible One. Sometimes a man finds himself in possession of valuable knowledge which is valueless to him because of a lack of power. He has not the ability to use what he knows. But unto our Lord has been given all power in heaven and in earth.

Be of good courage, then, no matter what odds we face, knowing there is more with us than with the enemy. The message of the saint of old is well worth remembering—"One with God is always a majority." This is still true. God who gave the victory to his people in olden days is the same God. There is no change in our Leader. He is the same yesterday, today and forever. Following him, the Christian is assured of ultimate victory. It may seem as though we were hedged in by overwhelming forces and defeat is certain, but we may have good courage as we look away from the opposing hosts to the one whom we follow.

II. The Need of Valiant Behavior.

The Revised Version renders this by "play the man." It means simply to "do your best." To do one's best is to behave valiantly. No matter if others may do better than we, the need is to do our best. We are to "play the man" and not be like children who become discouraged because someone else does better than they can do. We must just keep on doing our part to the best of our ability. Much was dependent on each man of Moab's army behaving valiantly. Much more depends on each Christian doing his best. We must "play the man" for the honor of the name of him whose we are and whom we serve. He does not expect us to weakly surrender but to stand up to the fight, behaving ourselves valiantly; we must meet his expectations.

Then again, the well being of the church depends on each doing his best. The church is the body of Christ and we are all members of that body. If one member suffers, all the others suffer with it. When one member fails to behave valiantly, all the others are injured. On the other hand, all the members are blessed each time we do our level best. Again our own personal growth in grace follows such behavior. If we would be strong in faith, and experience the delight of the approval of our Lord, we will go forth to "play the man" in the name of our God.

III. The Need of Trust.

"Let the Lord do that which is good in his sight." We are not to think that results from our work shall be in accord with what we imagine they should be. He may have purposes to fulfill by our work other than we know. We are naturally eager to obtain results which are good in our own sight. We may make serious mistakes, not knowing all our Leader knows, and desire results which would not be good in his sight. We need to trust him fully; to believe he knows what is best; to revel in a high-hearted courage which grows from the certainty of final victory; to keep on doing our best and allow him to do that which is good in his sight, irrespective of whether it is good in ours or not.

Mr. and Mrs. Couch Return

Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Couch of Island City returned home on Friday from Camp Hancock, Georgia, where they went several weeks ago to be at the bedside of their son, Ray who was seriously ill with influenza and pneumonia. They report that his condition was much improved at the time of their arrival and that he is improving rapidly at the present time. He had been retained at the camp as an officer and will probably not be sent to France for several months. On their return trip Mr. and Mrs. Couch visited in St. Louis, Meadville and Chillicothe, all in Missouri.

"Some people may think that when they donate their money to the United War Work Drive it is being thrown away," said Mr. Couch. "But I want them to know that these organizations that will be benefited by the drive are doing a splendid work at the training camps as well as the front. For instance, when the anxious relative arrives for a brief visit with someone in camp a Y. M. C. A. representative meets him at the train. Then Red Cross people of Augusta volunteer their services and cars to take them from there to the Soldiers' club which is a general information bureau. After they have secured any desired

How a Salesman Suffered

R. J. Porter, Sterling, Col., writes: "For six months I suffered with a painful weak back. As a traveling salesman, I had to stoop frequently to pick up my grip; which I grew to dread as the pain when I straightened up was awful. Numerous remedies failed to reach my case. I was induced to try Foley Kidney Pills. Relief was immediate. Say, they are great! Any one afflicted as I was should try a bottle or two of Foley Kidney Pills." Good for pain in the back, rheumatic pains, aching joints, sore muscles. Sold everywhere.

If you have a good picture of yourself with the negative, you can have it enlarged at Silverthorn's. They do this kind of work in connection with their kodak work and the cost is not great. Such a picture will please any of your friends in the war.
