Farmhouses Modernized.
As farmhouses become adapted to the taste of the women who are, in so many cases, taking over their management, it is found that many of the old institutions of the farmhouse—the parlor, the many small rooms, the dark halls—are disappearing. Partitions are torn out to make spacious living rooms; porches are added, and everything is arranged for the utmost convenience of the homemaker who is also tender of the fields.—Exchange.

Little Things Cause Sunshine.
The sunshine of life is made up of very little beams that are bright all the time. To give up something when rising up will prevent unhappiness; to yield, when persisting will cause and fret others; to go a little around rather than come against another; to take no ill look or a cross word quietly, rather than rebuke or return it—these are the ways in which clouds and storms are kept off, and a pleasant and steady sunshine secured.—Allin.

A WANT AD will do it.

"THE CLAW" REVEALS A CURIOUS NATIVE CUSTOM

Among the Kafirs of South Africa, the mad are considered sacred, and the way this traditional custom saves the life of a young Kaffir who has fallen captive to the natives, is brought out in a most interesting manner in "The Claw." This picture is Clara Kimball Young's latest production for her Select Star Series and it will be the feature attraction here in Saturday and Sunday at the Star Theatre. Anthony Kinball, or "Kin," is the young Englishman whose accident suggests this manner of saving his own skin. After he is captured by the Kafirs in a native uprising, he simulates madness and so saves his life until he is rescued and restored to Mary Saurin (Clara Kimball Young), his fiancée.

"The Claw" is by far one of the best vehicles Miss Young has had in some time. It possesses an unusual plot which is worked out against the colorful background of South Africa with dramatic intensity, relieved by a subtle character development and a charming love story. Miss Young plays the role of Mary, the London bred girl who visits her brother in the South African country and there falls in love with Major Kinball, created for the screen by Milton Sills. Of the important members of the cast are Henry Woodward, Mary Mersch, Marcia Manon, Jack Holt and Edward M. Kimball.

The scenario was written by Charles E. Whittaker from the book by Cynthia Stockley, who is famous for her vivid and colorful tales of life in this hinterland. The picture was directed by Robert G. Vignola and the camera work has been handled in his usual adept manner by Louis P. Sisco. All in all, this latest Clara Kimball Young Select Picture is a highly interesting and entertaining screen masterpiece.

VIRGINIA PEARSON AT THE SHERRY THEATRE

The manager of the Sherry theatre wishes to announce that as an unusual attraction he has booked Virginia Pearson in a thrilling, absorbing photoplay entitled "Queen of Hearts." He desires to inform motion picture goers that this new play has been heralded as the most sensational in which Miss Pearson has yet appeared.

As queen of a lawless resort frequented by gamblers and professional bad men, the William Fox star tracks relentlessly to his doom the criminal who had killed her father. Shown today only at Sherry's.

AT SHERRY'S TOMORROW

Horseback riding is one of the many attractive features in "Kidnare of Storm," the Metro picture in which the great dramatic actress, Emily Stevens, is starred, and which will go on show at the Sherry theatre tomorrow and Monday.

This is one of the sports of which the noted actress is particularly fond. When she signed out that the world speed match of her time is the saddle for the forthcoming picture, Miss Stevens sent up to the Adirondacks, where she has a summer home, for her own sleek and glossy hunter, and kept him in town while the scenes for "Kidnare of Storm" were being made.

King Parrott makes a great Kildare. Also Phyllis A. Barker in one of his latest productions.

ARCADE

"BOUND IN MOROCCO"

Baffling mystery, the kind that will make you grasp the edge of your seat and gasp, is one of the many interesting features of Douglas Fairbanks' new Arcturion photoplay, "Bound in Morocco," which will be shown at the Arcade theatre today.

The picture opens with Mr. Fairbanks bound hand and foot with chains. The scenes that follow depict the mystery and these are provocative of a thrill after thrill, while the unexpected happens almost every minute. Due to the numerous new stunts, which are employed by Mr. Fairbanks in his escape from an angry mob of Arabs, who are mounted on camels, three cameras were used throughout the filming of the picture, and in this way one of the three photographing machines was sure to record the stunt. It was only when Mr. Fairbanks had unswayed his vaulting record, that one of his photographers reported that his camera was out of order. Mr. Fairbanks is capably assisted in "Bound in Morocco" by a capable staff of players, chief among whom are Pauline Curley, Tully Marshall and Frank Campagna.

Peace on Earth

A week or two, a day or two, and Christmas will be here (It may be you're so busy you forgot that it was near). A few more days, a few more nights, and Christmas will arrive. And bring us all the old delights that always will survive.

This Christmas, though, will seem the best we've had in quite a while. This Christmas, though, will beat the rest, and beat them all a mile. For folks are human once again humanity who lacked, And peace on earth, good will to men, again becomes a fact.

And so it sort of looks to me, considering the war, This coming Christmas ought to be more merry than before. And, when we sing of peace on earth, good will and everything, I guess we'll recognize its worth and mean it when we sing!
