Japanese Beetle in New Jersey.
A public hearing on the proposed quarantine of a portion of New Jersey on account of the Japanese beetle, a serious pest of certain vegetables and fruit, was held by the United States department of agriculture in Washington recently. As a result of infestation of the Japanese beetle in parts of Burlington county, N. J., the proposed quarantine is intended to prohibit the shipment from this territory of green sugar corn, ripe tomatoes and ripe peaches which might cause this pest to spread. A campaign of eradication authorized by congress is now in progress, and the proposed quarantine is deemed necessary to support the measures that are being taken for the suppression of this dangerous pest.

His Expedient.
The army examiner was getting somewhat out of patience with the dull candidate before him. But he controlled his temper, and gave him a last chance to distinguish himself. "Let it be supposed, sir," he said, ironically, "that you were a captain in command of infantry; that in your rear was an impassable abyss; that on both sides of you there rose perpendicular rocks of tremendous height; that in front of you lay the enemy, outnumbering you ten to one. What, sir, in such an emergency would you do?"
"What would I do?" responded the applicant, "I should resign!"

Studying Deep-Sea Life.
A peculiar advantage for the study of marine life is credited the biological station established at Messina about two years ago. The sudden rise of the ocean bed at the strait of Messina causes very unusual upward currents from great depths, and these are so strong as to bring many of the deep-sea animals forcibly to the surface, where they are caught from small boats. The animals are taken under conditions less abnormal than usual. Many of them are able to produce light and some even vary the color of the light at will.

TRAINING FOR LITTLE FOLKS

THIRD ARTICLE OF A SERIES WRITTEN BY MOTHERS.

Froebel, Founder of Kindergarten Methods, Suppressed in Germany.

The following article, by Mrs. Elvira Hyatt, is the third of a series of articles written by mothers who have been kindergarten teachers. It may not be generally known that Froebel, the founder of the kindergarten, though a German, found his method of educating the young promptly suppressed in his own land. Kindergarten ideas can only flourish under democratic protection and guidance because their fundamental object is to develop self-reliance, observation and that power of initiative which makes for worthy citizenship.

Modern ideas in regard to child-training lay stress upon adhering from the beginning to certain set times for feeding, sleeping, bathing and airing, for regular habits lay the foundation of moral teaching. They are also a boon to the mother, resting her nerves and giving her time to herself, which in turn again acts to the benefit of the child.

After physical needs have been provided for, all the average normal child needs is to be left alone. Many babies are constantly over-stimulated by mothers who adore them. It takes a wise and unselfish mother to keep her baby quiet systematically, and relegate him to a "warm, safe, happy background."

Physicians agree that infants under the age of 6 months should never be played with, or needlessly handled or "rattled," and though it may be the dearest delight to rock and cuddle the new infant, and to watch his sweet ways, the wise mother will place him comfortably in crib or cradle, and let him go to sleep by himself, preferably in the open air. Babies treated in this sane, unselfish fashion seldom cry except for some good reason. Self-control and self-reliance seem big words to apply to infant education, but these virtues have their foundation in earliest childhood. The child's wonderful mysterious little personality must have time to develop itself, and growth and strength come "in the silence."

One of the first problems which confronts the mother is the unceasing activity of her small children. From the moment they can creep they are "doing something" every minute of the day. We simply cannot bid these restless creatures keep still, for activity is the law of growth. Instead, we must learn to keep their busily and happily employed, and to substitute right activities for wrong ones. Constant repression makes a restless and unhappy child. We must learn to recognize abundant energy as good, and to turn it into right channels.

Bad and mischievous children are simply the results of negative methods. It is not enough to say, "Run away and play," but a definite occupation should be suggested. The positive upbuilding method is to say, "Do this," instead of "Don't do that," and if one form of employment must be taken away, something else should be suggested.

A recent Italian educator has declared that unnecessary restriction in a child's life is a crime. There must be rules, of course, and children must learn to obey, but much friction can be eliminated by avoiding unnecessary commands. There should be few rules, but these should be firmly adhered to. It is infinitely better not to give a command than to let a child evade it. The habit of teasing for a thing will never develop, if this course is faithfully followed. Children who are brought up without rules or system are restless and unhappy, but on the other hand, a blind obedience should not be insisted upon too long. The child can begin very early to reason for himself in small things. Later the moral fibre must be developed which will enable him to choose to do the right thing because it is right, and to recognize and obey the still small voice within himself. A desire for right conduct must be awakened. The will does not begin to grow until a definite choice can be made. Strong wills are good, and a parent has no more right to break a child's will than to break his arm or leg. Be sure that your reproof is just, and whenever possible avoid a clash of wills. Forced obedience, obedience gained through fear, weakens the child's will-power, and fosters cowardice and de-cit.

What France Has Done for Democracy

France has poured out blood and treasure to the breaking point, to make the world safe for democracy. America owes her an enormous debt of gratitude for this and also for a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal trouble found by her peasants and used with reported marvelous results in this country. Geo. A. Mayr, for many years a prominent Chicago chemist, imports the ingredients and sells this remedy under the name of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the internal tract and blays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

BOIL DRINKING WATER

Owing to the shortage of water at Beaver creek it is now necessary to get part of the supply from the Grande Ronde river. All water needed for drinking purposes should be boiled as a precaution against germs or contamination. While the conditions at the river are much improved over former years, there being now little or no chance for contamination from the meat company's plant, the city health board urges boiling of drinking water as a precautionary measure.

GOODYEAR TIRES ARE BEST

"Don't move, Daddy---you look so funny"

Daddy certainly does look funny peering over his reading glasses every time he wants to see objects more than a few feet away. Thousands of men and women are in the same "fix." They, too, wear glasses for near vision only.

KRYPTOK
THE INVISIBLE BIFOCALS

combine NEAR and FAR vision in one lens. Through the lower part you can read the smallest print; through the upper part you can see distant objects with equal clearness. Their surfaces are flat, smooth and even, which give them the appearance of being single vision glasses. KRYPTOKS (pronounced Crip-tokks) render unnecessary the continual removing of your glasses—the over-top squinting—or fussing with two pairs. They keep your eyes young in look as well as in usefulness.
