perbly rendered. Not only was every young lady a part of the vocal section but she also appeared in Indian costume in very clever acting. The orchestra closed the program with the "Spirit of Freedom," and "National Melodies," which brought the large crowd to its feet, forcing a realization that the evening's splendid entertainment was at a close. It is gratifying to everyone interested in La Grande's schools to know the advancement that is being made in music. Miss Rye has won La Grande. She can have any support she wishes in future entertainments.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Scranton gave a dinner party last Sunday at their home on Second street. It was one of those turkey dinners, complete with all the trimmings. Each of the guests was given proof positive of the merits of different dishes which went to make up an elaborate dinner of the finest kind. The afternoon and evening were spent with Mr. and Mrs. Scranton by the guests, for that evening was the time scheduled for arrival of the Sixty-fifth and all waited to go and meet the soldiers. Later, when it was found that the Sixty-fifth would not arrive until morning the party disbanded. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Grimmett, Miss Nell Grimmett, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dennis.

The Clio club honored their host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reuter, Tuesday evening with a full attendance, and they in turn honored the club with a most delightful evening. The Reuter home was decorated with carnations. Fourteen couples enjoyed five hundred during the allotted time the Clio regulations permit playing, for the Clio club runs true to its regulations at all times. This was the first full attendance of the organization since the general break-up in social functions last fall, and it was like a family reunion. Refreshments were served during the evening and Dr. Lester Murphy was awarded the prize—a dainty hand-painted cup and saucer—for having shown the most skill at cards.

Little Jimmie Luper was five years old Wednesday, but Jim is considerably older than his years and he has a line of philosophy that is interesting. His parents decided to surprise Jim and invited in ten of his little friends who celebrated his fifth anniversary in true youngster style. Refreshments were served and all the games known to Kid-dom were played.

Miss Etta Foley gave a very pleasant event Wednesday evening at the Foley home in honor of Mrs. Charles Ramsay, who will leave soon for Boise where she will make her home. Mrs. Ramsay was formerly Miss Irene Murphy and as a La Grande girl she has been very popular with all. A few years ago the Milam club was in full swing and Miss Murphy and Miss Foley were among the leading members. The event of Wednesday evening in a way brings back those halcyon days, when the Milam girls held the center of the social stage. The evening was spent at auction bridge and Mrs. T. J. Scroggin was awarded the prize for having the highest score. Miss Foley served refreshments of her own make, which were very delicious. Those present were Mrs. Chas Ramsey, honor guest, Mrs. T. N. Murphy, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, Mrs. H. M. Bay, Mrs. Norman Desilet, Mrs. T. J. Scroggin, Mrs. G. L. Larison, Mrs Ollie Bay, Mrs. Florence Bacon, Mrs. E. E. Kirtley, Mrs. P. A. Foley and Mrs. J. E. Foley.

Keeping faith with the people is a strong feature of the new O.-W. band. When it was impossible several weeks ago to hold the advertised ball the band waited until the legal sanction was given and Thursday night of this week gave the dancers of the city a good time at Zuber hall. Music by the complete organization delighted everyone present and the band members fully enjoyed the occasion.

An orchestra also helped out with the musical program, relieving a large number of band members who wanted to get into the midst of the good time. Two hundred tickets for the dance were sold and it was estimated that there were fully 175 couples on the floor. Numbers of enthusiastic stepers from Perry and other outside points were in attendance, and the full success of this even will most likely lead to others of a similar nature in the near future.

The ladies of St. Peters Guild of the Episcopal church broke away from the lethargy which has prevailed on all sides for some time and held a silver tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Gaskill on Second street. A good attendance showed the interest that prevails in once more re-establishing the former social life of La Grande. While no program marked yesterday's event all the ladies had a very pleasant time.

One of the most thrilling stories of love and intrigue ever shown in this city is Marion Davies' latest Select Picture, "The Burden of Proof" in which she is directed by Julius Steger, which will be seen at the Arcade theare Sunday. In this picture Miss Davies plays the part of Elaine Brooks, a young society matron who becomes the wife of Robert Ames, nephew of a member of the United States cabinet.

Elaine's mother, Mrs. Brooks, is a leader of Newport society, but as their financial standing is threatened she accepts the offer of a Mrs. Durand to supply social news for a Washington society journal owned by Charles Kemp. Later it develops that Kemp and Mrs. Durand are both German secret agents who are conspiring to obtain valuable papers in the possession of Ames. Immediately after Elaine's wedding, Mrs. Durand goes to Elaine and has her write a letter to Kemp apologizing for not having invited him to the wedding. This Elaine is glad to do, and at the same time Mrs. Durand takes advantage of her innocence by indicating phrases which make Elaine appear guilty when the papers have been stolen from Ames' desk.

George Blair, a member of the Department of Justice, has been called in. He suspects that Mrs. Durand has used Elaine's letter to Kemp as a medium for sending the papers, so he orders Kemp to return the envelope unopened. This Kemp does and the papers are restored, but Ames is led to believe his wife guilty of aiding the enemy. Scoring to assert her innocence Elaine refuses to answer Ames' questions, and when the difference between them threatens to become greater, Blair traces the source of the letter to Mrs. Durand and forces her to make a confession. Once matters have been adjusted the young couple leave on the honeymoon which was halted by Mrs. Durand's nefarious plotting.
