"TARZAN OF THE APES" IS MARVELOUS PICTURE

Broadway Theatre Spectators Get More Than Usual Amount of Thrills.

Broadway got a distinct thrill with the production on the screen of the astonishing story of "Tarzan of the Apes." The daring plot was unfolded with such realistic effect that the audience which overflowed the Broadway theatre burst into enthusiastic acclaim at the many startling situations caught by the camera in the heart of a forest in wildest Brazil. Of course, the novel that set the world by the ears was built around a plot laid in Africa. But the moving picture artist who screen the production last night had all the settings necessary for the scenes, from the vigorous elephant, who pushed over a tree that stood in his patch, to the wildest of lions, tigers, jaguars, crocodiles, monkeys, apes, chimpanzees, gorillas and what not. The wild animals figured all through the production from the first act to the finish, and the way they were introduced at times gave such a shock to the audience as to cause an uncanny sense of fear.

The story of Tarzan is so well known that it is needless to call it into this review. It did not seem possible to catch in action in the jungles this strange personality of the fancy of Edgar Rice Burroughs. And yet the picture went the range of the extraordinary developments of the story. The scenes included the meeting on shipboard, the battle between cannibals and white men, the fight to the death between Tarzan and the lion, and the no less thrilling struggle with the gigantic negro chieftain.

The setting for the scenes in the old English family home were just as well done as the fearsome ones in the wilds. One can well imagine that, as the program says, $300,000 was spent on the production.

Gordon Griffith, as Tarzan the boy was matchless. There was a simplicity that was convincing and a naivete that showed the true artist. Elmo Lincoln, as Tarzan the man, held the audience at his beck. His wonderful agility and muscular power are a whit better than his emotional strength, shown for all too brief a spell in the closing scene.

The one word to describe the picture is marvelous.

"Tarzan of the Apes" is the big feature production booked for showing at the Arcade theatre next Saturday and Sunday, March 29th and 30th.

To anyone wishing to know how they can avoid the evening crowds, our advice is attend the matinee.

"THE RETURN OF MARY" AT THE SHERRY THEATRE

"The Return of Mary," a five-reel romantic drama with May Allison as winsome little Mary, is shown at Sherry's today and tomorrow.

For refreshing romance and sparkling humor nothing could surpass this Metro offering, and, quite up to the standard set by the excellence of the story, was the acting and directing. The supporting cast was well chosen and Darrell Foss, as Miss Allison's leading man in the role of Jack Denby, did some clever work. Other artists who supported the star were Clarence Burton, Claire McDowell, Frank Brownlee and Joseph Belmont.

The story is that of a young girl who at the age of three was supposed to have been kidnaped from the magnificent home of her wealthy parents who, through the long succeeding years never gave up the search for their lost daughter. After many years have elapsed a man appears at the house with a beautiful girl of 17 and announces that she is the stolen child—bringing as proof a tiny pair of shoes and a baby cap which the over loyed mother instantly recognizes. Mary is taken into the Denby home and loved as a daughter—the son Jack being particularly attracted to his new-found sister. Later, with many dramatic situations, it is shown that Mary is really the daughter of a poor employe of the railroad. This causes great grief to the Denbys, who have grown to love the beautiful girl, but to Jack, the fact that Mary is not his sister is a delightful surprise and brings up visions of another and closer relationship. The romance, which dates from this important discovery, was made a delight by Miss Allison's acting and she was an instantaneous success with her big audience.

The screen version of "The Return of Mary" was made by George D. Baker from the play of the same name written by Hale Hamilton and staged by Wilfred Lucas.

The prince of fun makers, "Smiling Bill" Parsons in "The Widow's Might" is also shown.

WALLACE REID HAS GREAT ROLE IN NEW PHOTOPLAY

Paramount Star Seen as Detailist who is Redeemed Through Love for Navajo Girl.

Wallace Reid has one of the best parts of his career in "Valley of the Giants," the picturization of Peter B. Kyne's novel of the same name, which will be shown at the Arcade theatre tomorrow and Monday. The role affords an admirable study in character development, the development of the man, far from being merely a vehicle for the display of the star's physical prowess, although there is plenty of that, too.

Reid is a drunken loafer who is shanghaied and carried to a logging camp in Vermont. He is cruelly treated by a savage foreman and he offers no resistance until Svea Nord casts a contemptuous glance at him as reward for his cowardice. He then resolves to reform and once the fumes of liquor have left him, his strength and courage return with highly dramatic results. How he succeeds in transforming this girl's contempt to love is told in a series of thrilling scenes.

The picture has many dramatic moments and the support is of the best. Dainty Ann Little appears as the girl and other players in the cast are Theodore Roberts, James Cruze, Raymond Hatton, Charles Ogle, G. Butler Clonbough, Noah Beery, Charles West and Nina Byron.

Cold Water as a Purifier.

Fresh cold water is a powerful absorbent of gases, therefore it should be greatly used in a sick room or in one which cannot be frequently ventilated. A bowl of cold water kept in such a room and changed daily is of great assistance in purifying the air.

FRANCE TURNS HERE FOR NEW IDEAS

"The progressive nation does not sit with hands folded, even while the greatest peace treaty ever written is being agreed upon. France is looking to America for many new ideas." Col. Theodore Belcach, head, and the French Educational Committee are here as the guests of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. They will tour the principal cities.

State News
