"PUDD'NHEAD WILSON" STRONG PHOTOPLAY

Theodore Roberts is Hero of Mark Twain's Story.

A Paramount picture of Mark Twain's story, "Pudd'nhead Wilson," will be presented at the Arcade theatre tomorrow and Thursday, with Theodore Roberts in the title role. The story has to do with Lawyer Wilson, a young man, who has come to a small Missouri town to practice. On his first day in the village he makes a remark that induces one of the town wits to call him "Pudd'nhead," a nickname that clung to him throughout his life.

With his small glass slips, he secures among others, the finger prints of Tom Driscoll, six months old and of Chambers, six and one-half months old, the baby of Roxy, a mulatto slave owned by the Driscoll family. These babies are children of the same father and look much alike.

Roxy changes the babies and passes off her child as the heir of the Driscolls and thus makes the real heir the slave. Twenty years later, the false Tom Driscoll returns from college, sells his real mother as a slave and in a fit of temper, murders his wealthy uncle, Tom, jealous of the interest the beautiful Rowena Cooper takes in Chambers, tries to fix the crime on him. Chambers is about to be lynched by the indignant whites when Pudd'nhead announces that he is the slave's attorney and insists upon a trial. Investigating the finger prints left upon the dagger that was used in the murder, Wilson traces the marks and at the trial forces Roxy, the slave, to confess that she changed the babies in their cradles. The real Tom is acquitted and goes to Rowena, while the real negro is taken to jail. In the cast supporting Mr. Roberts are Thomas Melghan, Florence Dagmar, Allan Hale, Gertrude Keller, Ernest Joy and others.

"THE BELOVED IMPOSTER" REAL STORY, REAL PLOT "The Beloved Imposter" is a real story, with a real plot most carefully developed by Director Joseph Glenshaw. The author is Mrs. Elizabeth J. Mariani, and the original title was "Betty's House Party." It is a love story, of course, but with a most unusual twist. The locale is the Sunny South, and Mr. Gleason has been most happy in his locations, for he took the entire company south of the Mason and Dixon line and filmed the scenes just where the author would have placed them. Beautiful old mansions and quiet village streets add a decided charm to the picture.

The theme is fascinating and the action fast, with suspense that finds a climax in several gripping scenes where Miss Leslie throws off her masquerade and is a woman wrestling with the greatest problem of her life. Betty is a southern girl and at her first house party it is learned that Dick Mentor was returning from the jungles, whither he had gone to forget a wife who had deserted him with their little child. Dick is a woman hater, but Betty, in mischievous boastfulness, wagers a kiss against a thoroughbred horse that she can win his heart. "You're only a child," her friends retort, as the wager is closed. "A Big V" comedy adds to the enjoyment. "The Beloved Imposter" is shown today and tomorrow at Sherry's theatre.

For the month of March the amount of soda fountain business done is away above most years of the past few spring months. We notice the very busy people at Silverthorn's fountain—they are as busy as most June months. Just about such business as is done at this season of the year away down south.

BOYS SEVENTEEN CAN NOW ENLIST

Word has been received at the local marine corps recruiting station, with offices in the Somers building, to the effect that boys who are 17 years of age can now enlist in this branch of the service, providing they can secure their parents' consent and that they weigh at least one hundred and forty pounds. The marines are in need of fifteen thousand enlistments within the next year and are offering some good inducements to men who desire to enter this branch of the service. Men who are seeking travel and have a desire to see foreign countries can do so by enlisting in the marines, as they are always on the go, and their duties take them to most of the foreign lands.

Men who enlist now have an excellent opportunity to go to France and Germany, as the marines who are serving with the Army of Occupation now on German soil will be returned. Anyone seeking information in regard to enlistment who cannot call at the office in person can secure the desired information by writing to the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Room No. 11, Sommer building, La Grande, Oregon. Booklets explaining the marines will be forwarded and all questions gladly answered.
