LATEST OFFICIAL WAR PICTURE

New York Evening Telegram Recites the Episodes of the American Army in France.

The New York Evening Telegram gives the following outline of the latest official war picture: "Under Four Flags," the latest United States official war picture...

Five of the seven episodes are devoted to the American forces, and these most naturally have greater interest than the other two which are with Field Marshal Haig on the British front and with the Italian forces on the Piave.

Transports conveyed and met by destroyers is followed by a submarine being sighted from the crow's nest of a war ship and by a hydroplane simultaneously. The airship drops a bomb which explodes over the spot. The war ship sinks depth bombs which explode and shoot the water high in the air. These are scenes that will be remembered, particularly as the effect of the depth bombs was to destroy the submarine as a large circle of oil is seen afterward floating on the rough surface of the sea, indicating it had been destroyed.

Destroyers making a smoke screen to hide the fleet from more enemy submarines is realistically done. A Hun fighting airplane being shot down and falling rapidly to earth inside the French lines, later surrounded by American soldiers, showing one of the aviators injured and the other killed by the fall, and the machine badly broken, is new in pictures.

The battle of St. Mihiel shows the first engagement of the Americans as a complete division. This includes scouting airplanes and an observation balloon, all in wireless communication with messages being sent and received. Baby tanks manned by Americans take part, as do larger tanks, making a path through a forest.

The aftermath of victory is presented in rows of abandoned German guns, with a review of the happy Americans and French troops by General Pershing and allied officers. "Under Four Flags," is more interesting than either of the other official pictures, because it is the most graphic presentation of the three of actual participation by the Americans in battle. The battle of Chateau-Thierry and other engagements, in which the American forces figured as a unit with complete success, are vivid scenes.

"Under Four Flags" will be presented at the Sherry theatre tomorrow and Wednesday.

AT SHERRY'S "The Splendor," an appealing comedy of youth and love, romance and happiness, which will be seen at this theatre, last showing today, lives Bert Lyell, the distinguished young Metro star, the best role of his brilliant career on the stage and screen.

The story is that of a red-blooded young man who sets out to teach his miserly old millionaire uncle how to enjoy life and "become his own heir"—in other words to spend his money while he is alive as "there are no pockets in a shroud."

"UNDER FOUR FLAGS" COMING HERE Third United States Official War Picture Shows Actual Fighting Operations on All Allied Fronts

It is announced by the Division of Films of the Committee on Public Information, George Creel chairman, that the third United States official war picture, "Under Four Flags," will be presented at the Sherry theatre tomorrow and Wednesday. The first official picture, "Perch on the Wall," and "America's Answer," give a comprehensive idea of tremendous scale of American preparations for participation in the war and create an insistent demand for "action" pictures, pictures of actual participation resulting from the preparations which were on a large scale. The excitement of the Allies, "Under Four Flags" answers that demand, and there is shown on the screen, in close-up views of battles that first of all inspire...

the spectator with wonder that any cameraman could have lived in his environment long enough to take them. Tattered France, the great of the French armies from the Marne salient, the endless stream of laden civilians and children moving to the rear, are the first scenes shown. These are followed by scenes at Versailles, showing the Allied convention that named General Foch leader of the Allied armies, views of the batteries that saved Paris, the barrage batteries in action, the Americans and French going over the top at 4:30 in the morning, in the first attack that marked the turning point of the war, big gun in action and French, British and American soldiers driving back the Hun all along the line. Tanks are seen advancing in squadrons, bombing planes harass the enemy, foe planes are shot down. Thousands of prisoners stream to the rear, passing the advancing soldiers of the Allied armies. And on the Piave, in Italy, are marvelous close-up views of battle.

An unusually effective arrangement of German Kultur and its effects upon peaceful peoples, a remarkable pietization of the horrors of war as conducted by vandals, a powerful heart appealing story—these are the qualities which make "Vive La France!" the latest Thomas H. Ince-Paramount photoplay starring Dorothy Dalton, which will be displayed at the Arcade theatre today and tomorrow, one of the finest pictures based upon the world conflict thus produced in this country.

H. H. Loan, who wrote the story, is a writer of no small skill, who has been identified with the film industry for many years. He has a newspaper training, has written many magazine articles and has done much work for the screen. This picture assuredly is a compelling drama, with the terrific struggle for democracy as a basis and the individual bravery of certain of the Allied fighters, a tense development of plot, and a pleasing love story for added measure.

C. Garner Sullivan wrote the scenario. There are few who do not know Mr. Sullivan's work. He has done many of the most convincing and interesting photoplays and given to them a personal quality that is remarkable. R. William Nell directed the picture. Thomas H. Ince supervised the production and the really wonderful photography is the work of John S. Stumar. Edmund Lowe is leading man and there is a fine supporting cast, including Frederick Starr, Thomas Gules, Bert Woodruff and other capable players.

CLOSE BERLIN CABARETS

Shut Down 50 Resorts in German Capital for Violation of Orders

BERLIN, April 7.—About 50 resorts in Berlin—cabarets, variety shows, dance halls and the like—have been ordered closed because of food profiteering and violations of various regulations regarding the sale of food and drink. It is claimed in some circles that the places were closed because American officers here reported to the food minister that they had found surprisingly varied menus and questioned Germany's alleged foodless situation. Two thousand employees have been thrown out of work as a result of the closing of the places.

Hardy Chinese Ponies.

The Chinese horse is really a pony somewhat after the type of the western broncho. It comes from Mongolia and is known as the Mongolian pony. It is an exceedingly hardy animal, thrives on food on which a western animal would starve, is able to carry heavy loads long distances, and is very useful in many ways. As a racing animal it is characterized by speed and stamina. China exports between 1,500 and 2,000 of these ponies each year.

He has been improving his stock in the cattle line by degrees for several years past and his latest addition will soon land him as among the owners of an all-registered herd.

SEEKS AID FOR LABOR OFFICE

service. The offices in most of these cities I have visited are now being maintained by the city and by the county.

"I am here for the purpose of looking into the labor situation and arousing public sentiment to ascertain whether or not it would be advisable to continue the service. Should the sentiment be favorable, I will probably take up the matter of financing the offices with the county court and with the city officials."

In those towns in the state where there is a Red Cross chapter but no employment service, Mr. Manning is establishing in connection with the Red Cross labor bureaus for discharged soldiers and sailors.

Mr. Manning states that he has found that public opinion generally holds that it is just as essential to have the employment offices open when there is a shortage of labor as when there is a surplus, for the reason that men who want help should be given service toward filling their needs, in just as great a degree as the man who want work are helped toward the job. He is anxious to get this matter satisfactorily adjusted here.

Mr. Manning, himself, is a dischargee soldier, having been seven months in England. He has given a great deal of his time to war work, having spoken through Oregon and Washington during the first Red Cross drive, through Oregon during the second Liberty Loan, and in New York City during the whole of the Third Liberty Loan campaign, at which time he was in the service.

Have you tried to tell in fifty words, "Why the Victory Loan?" Some man or woman in Oregon is going to receive a $50 bond for submitting the best answer to this question. And it is a question that everyone in Oregon should be thinking about, for there is not a citizen who does not have a personal interest in having Oregon first in completing its quota. There is also a second prize of $30 in War Savings stamps, and a third prize of $20 in War Savings stamps. Even the third prize will place the author in the ranks of the best paid writers. It is a rare thing for the writer to receive a higher rate than will the Oregonians who win these prizes.

Write the fifty-word answer at once, and mail so that it will reach the Feature bureau, 329 Stark street, Portland, Oregon, not later than April 10. Lots of Oregonians are yelling for the Victory Liberty loan and sending the yell they have created to the Theatre bureau of the Victory Liberty loan, 329 Stark street, Portland, Oregon. In order to compete for the prizes offered for the best yell, the suggestions must reach the bureau by April 10. Persons who have been yell leaders in schools and colleges know what is needed to raise the enthusiasm of crowds. The prizes make it worth while. Send the yell by first mail.
