With the Colors

The Observer is in receipt of two clippings from a San Diego, Calif., newspaper, which will be of interest to many readers who remember C. W. Caudell and Jesse Caudell, who at one time lived in South La Grande. The grandfather of the boys, the late George Jacobs, was a civil war veteran, and their grandmother, Mrs. M. M. Jacobs, still reside in South La Grande. The clippings are as follows:

From Jesse Candell

Between 600 and 700 cases of Spanish influenza developed among the 1200 officers and men aboard the U. S. S. Pittsburgh during the first 12 days of October and 41 of them succumbed to the disease, according to a letter just received by Mrs. C. C. Chappell, 3520 J street, from her youngest son, Jesse Caudell, who has been in the navy for four years and is on the Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh has been on the west coast of South America for the last 18 months and is scheduled to return to San Diego soon, with Admiral Caperton on board.

"A large monument is now under construction in Rio de Janeiro and will soon be erected in the cemetery plot, which marks the last resting place of 41 of our shipmates," young Caudell wrote.

"The Spanish influenza broke out on the Pittsburgh Oct. 1. On Oct. 7 there were four cases. The disease was recognized and the cases were immediately isolated and arrangements made for combating an epidemic. More cases developed during the day and the next day there were 50 on the sick list.

"Arrangements for dry docking this vessel had previously been made and owing to the military urgency, it was necessary to carry out the plan, even if the men were sick. We went into dry dock on Oct. 10 and the next day there were 250 down with the influenza.

"In spite of the fact that the disease was attacking the men hourly, the docking proceeded in excellent order. The regular navy spirit of sticktoitiveness and dogged determination was shown by the manner in which the work was carried on by all hands. Men continued their work when they should have been in bed, others got out of bed against the doctor's order to complete urgent repairs, and those who were able did double duty.

"The ship undocked on the afternoon of Oct. 11 with a record docking to her credit. On the following day there were 500 on the sicklist, the epidemic reaching its height on the 13th with between 600 and 700 cases being admitted. Fully 400 more had mild attacks and did not report to the medical officers, so that practically the whole ship's company was affected.

"While the epidemic was at its height, the ship appeared more like a hospital than a man-of-war.

"Rumors are out that we will sail some time in March for the dear old U. S. A."

FROM C. W. CAUDELL

Citations, medals and promotions are numerous for the men of the 91st division, according to a letter Mrs. C. C. Chapell of 3520 J street has received from her son, Sergt. C. W. Caudell, who was in the 316th field signal corps.

Extracts from his letter follow:

"The first Sunday afternoon after the drive in the Argonne forest started, is one that I shall never forget. We were with a colonel, who had taken 13 regiments over the top. 'Gatling Gun Parker' was his nickname. He told us we would have to take the town of Gesnes at any cost. He had started out with the infantry, so it was up to us to string telephone lines and try to locate him. We ran out of wire when within 200 yards of where he lay wounded in a trench. Seven of us started to locate a dugout and some wire, and when we located our station there were only three of us left.

"We carried all the wounded we could into the dugout and gave them first aid treatment. Then with the help of the German prisoners we carried them all back, arriving at a dressing station by daylight the next morning. Long and dreary was that walk, carrying the wounded in a heavy rain, with snipers firing at us from shell holes.

"After 18 days of this, fighting, sleeping in shell holes in the mud and rain, we were relieved and sent to Belgium, where the fighting was altogether different, mostly on level land, through turnip fields and sleeping in Belgian homes at night. We were on a second drive here and our division had just taken the town of Audenarde and driven the Germans across the river, when we received news of the signing of the armistice.

"Am sorry to say that I lost the only piece of shrapnel that hit me. It hit me on the shoulder and it is lucky that the flat side struck me, for the other was like the point of an arrow.

"I am proud that I belonged to the 91st division."

THE SOLDIER HOME

Oh friend of mine, rejoice with me,
I'm filled today with deepest joy,
For on the morrow to my grateful heart I'll press my boy.

I'm glad to see him home once more
Glad that he is not torn nor maimed,
But every inch a soldier, straight and tall,
Nor shattered, blind, nor lamed.

He will come home to me a better man,
Both mentally and physically true;
He's taken color from our honored flag,
He's deepest, clearest, brightest, truest blue.

For, at the call to struggles fierce,
He shed with others gallant red,
And at the front, in many a fray,
They fought and left their comrades dead.

Still in their dreams they see the Argonne dense,
They dream of Chateau Thierry's struggle grim,
And how, in going o'er the top,
Each felt the throb of victory come to him.

His thought of life has ta'en new uplift,
'Tis broader, purer, clearer white;
He sees that now the only way to live
Is for his brother, charitable and right.

I am so glad to have him back again,
It was so hard to see him go.—
Behind the battles WE have fought
There's none, but God and mothers know.

—By a Mother,
I. ALLEN KING.

W. R. C. MEMBERS MOURN DEATH OF BELOVED SISTER

Resolutions adopted by Oliver P. Morton Womans Relief Corps No. 37 of La Grande, Oregon, as a tribute to our beloved sister, Lulu May Graves, who departed this life March 26, 1919.

Whereas the angel of death has entered our order and broken our circle and one God needed most for Himself has been taken; therefore be it resolved while we mourn our loss deeply we bow our heads in humble submission to our Heavenly Father and that we extend our love and sympathy to the bereaved family and commend them to His care, "who doeth all things well."

Resolved as a token of love and remembrance that we drape our charter for thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent the bereaved family. The Evening Observer and a copy spread upon the minutes of this corps.

Friend of our late years,
Though by your grave we stand,
We see through mist of tears
Your smile, your outstretched hand.

Some rare, sweet hours we had,
From life's keen striving spared;
We grieve, yet we are glad,
Remembering what we shared.

Oft in the crowded days
That kept us long apart,
You passed beyond our gaze,
But never from our hearts.

Brave soldier in the fight,
Comrade of our compagins,
You made our burden light,
Shared our defeats and gains,
Steadfast and sure and true,
Not in your greatest stress,
Had you one doubt, we knew
Your worth nor loved you less.

Look back from the Beyond,
Leal comrade, kindred soul,
And you shall see the bond
Between us, strong and whole.

Your look, your voice, your touch,
We lose without amean,
But though we miss so much,
We have not lost our friend.

Until in Lethe's tide
We, too, our cups shall dip,
Remembrance will abide
Of that fine comradeship.

JESSIE P. NELSON,
ANNIE A. ROESCH,
ELEANOR M. CARR,

LA GRANDE MARKETS

There has been a general upward trend of prices during the past week on a great many of the necessary items for the dinner table. Flour advanced forty cents a barrel early in the week and fifty-pound sacks of patents are now selling at $2.05. On the best Washington flour the price for a fifty-pound sack is $3.25.

Strawberries from Louisiana were newly in stock yesterday, and are selling at 35 cents a box. Green peas and new potatoes are also new arrivals, priced respectively at 25 cents and 20 cents a pound.

The prices which Mr. Citizen was paying yesterday for his supplies were as follows:
