O. A. C. INSTRUCTOR VISITS INDUSTRIAL CLUB MEMBERS

Miss Helen Cowgill, of the staff of the Oregon Agricultural College, was in the city yesterday to visit the schools and give demonstrations for the girls' classes in sewing, cooking and canning. Miss Cowgill was well pleased with her visit and with the enthusiasm shown by the girls for this work. The class in cooking numbered sixteen-one members; in sewing, sixty-seven members, and in canning, five members. Miss Cowgill's visit followed that of A. L. O'Reilly, of the O. A. C., who was here last week and reorganized the Industrial Club in La Grande. The organization of these classes, which are part of the Industrial Club work, which was handled by A. H. Prince, principal of the Central school, was well worked up, said Miss Cowgill.

CROWD ENJOYS EVANS' LECTURE

WHICH SPEAKER FINDS APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE

Second Last of High School Lyceum Numbers—Last One Saturday Evening.

There was no doubt in the minds of those who attended the Lyceum number given in the high school and forum last night by Dr. Arthur Wadsworth Evans, the brilliant young Welsh lecturer, that those who did not attend robbed themselves of the opportunity to hear one of the best lectures on any subject that has been given in La Grande for years. Dr. Evans came to La Grande with the reputation of transforming in one evening indifferent people who had merely heard of him into appreciative devotees who wanted everyone to hear him, and he did not fall out with below his mark last night.

It is no trouble at all to listen to Dr. Evans. His voice carried well and the touch of Old Country accent which it still carries only served to add interest to his speech, rather than to make understanding difficult. Above all, though, he said something in every phrase of his speech; and the whole, with splendid balancing of the light and of the deeper parts, gave his hearers an altogether enjoyable and valuable evening.

Dr. Evans spoke on "What America owes to Me." He spoke as one who had lived the greater part of his life in other countries, thus possessing a view point which most of his hearers, though not sharing, could appreciate. A native of the British Isles and having received his education there, he naturally devoted a large part of his address to the relationship of the land of his birth to the citizens of the United States. The vital political questions of the world today were admirably discussed and from the cold facts which he presented many in the audience doubtless obtained a new vision of world affairs.

Dr. Evans denounced men who would seek to establish a spirit of enmity between the British and the American peoples today. There are Irish agitators attempting it, he said, and pro-German citizens of this country, afraid to attack the United States, strike at the next-door neighbor, England. In England the possibility of a war with America is seldom considered; but in the United States he heard it everywhere he goes. Often he hears some one say, "Well, we have cleaned up on Germany; next we have got to settle with England." There is nothing the Germans would like better to see, he said. England and America are the only nations of the world representing the true spirit of democracy, of liberty, of equal opportunity. If they should engage in war and that spirit be destroyed, what a condition the world would be in!

He endeavored to combat the statements made in derogation to Great Britain's name to the effect that she did not play her part in the war. Great Britain had an agreement with France that should that country be invaded, 150,000 soldiers would be sent to her aid. When the war came in 1914, those men were sent to France, and then in the course of time over eight million more were sent. The British Isles alone sent six million soldiers, and of that number five million were volunteers. Two and a half million more came from the colonies. From her forces, England left dead on the field of battle hundred thousand and of the best of her manhood. Could anyone say, in justice to the memory of those six hundred thousand, that the empire had not done her part?

Getting down to the key note of his address, Dr. Evans said that what he feels nearest most to him in America is the spirit of fraternity—or brotherhood. Here, he said, is the solution of the problems of the world. Men of all nationalities are assembled under the Stars and Stripes, in this great melting pot of the United States of America, and become loyal citizens of the republic, all accomplished by this spirit of brotherhood. Through the application of the influence of this spirit, he pointed out, is the one way to ensure the peace of the world. Declaring that the world needs peace, the speaker declared that Europe, in all her history, has had thirteen years of war for every year of peace she has enjoyed, and so far in this enlightened period of twentieth century civilization she has suffered from wars continuously—six conflicts. In the eighteen years that are gone.

He recommended the league of nations plan, as based on and furthering the idea of brotherhood, and severely accused those senators who are opposing it on political grounds. The relationship between Canada and the United States was mentioned as an excellent example of what such a plan would bring about throughout the world. There, along a boundary line of over three thousand miles, there is not a gun nor any evidence of hostile intention; and while Canada was mobilizing her half million soldiers for the recent conflict, the United States distracted her to the extent that the American army, of fewer numbers than the Canadian, was sent to the Mexican border to watch her.

Dr. Evans closed with a story illustrating the way in which the fraternal spirit made an English friend of his into a genuine American. This friend became a baseball fan back in the east, and when Evans arrived in this country he was informed by the friend that he had become a fan and had learned the language of the rooster. The friend gave a demonstration at a game that day and Dr. Evans' minority of the evening—which was the rest staff—was hugely enjoyed by the all-American crowd in the house. And then brotherhood came to the fore again. As he concluded his lecture and left the stage Dr. Evans received more handshakes and assurances of appreciation than La Grande audiences usually bestow. This lecture was the final number, but one of the Lyceum series. The last number will be Dr. McCone's lecture in the high school Saturday evening, when another splendid evening's entertainment is confidently expected.

UNION SERVICE TONIGHT IN THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

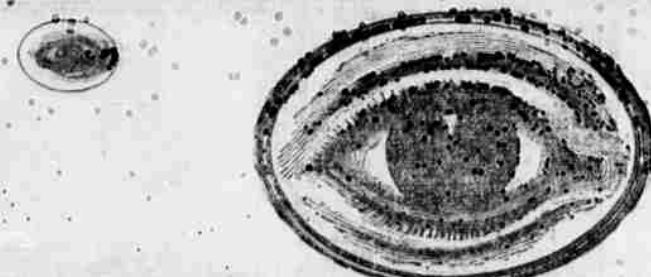

The third of the Passion Week union services will be held this evening in the Presbyterian church, when it is hoped that there will be an even larger attendance than the previous meetings have drawn. A new feature of the service tonight will be the participation of the Salvation Army forces. The regular army services have been called off for tonight and tomorrow night. Tomorrow night the union services will be held in the Salvation Army quarters.

Thought Three Little Children Needed Mother's Care

"My stomach suffering was so severe that I could not have lasted much longer. I did not care so much for myself but did not want to leave my three little children who needed a mother's love and care. A cousin in California wrote me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I took a course of it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

If I Were a Farmer

If I were a farmer I would keep at hand a few reliable medicines for minor ailments that are not so serious as to require the attention of a physician, such as Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds and croup. Chamberlain's Liniment for sprains, bruises and rheumatic pains. Chamberlain's Tablets for stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation. By having these articles at hand it would often save the trouble of a trip to town in the busiest season or in the night, and would enable me to treat slight ailments as soon as they appear, and thereby avoid the more serious diseases that so often follow.—Adv.
