Those of us who are past middle age are prone to eat too much meat and in consequence deposit lime-salts in the arteries, veins and joints. We often suffer from twinges of rheumatism or lumbago, sometimes from gout, swollen hands or feet. There is no longer the slightest need of this, however, as the new prescription, "Anurie," is bound to give immediate results as it is many times more potent than lithia, in ridding the impoverished blood of its poisons by way of the kidneys. It can be obtained at almost any drug store, by simply asking for "Anurie" for kidneys or backache. It will overcome such conditions as rheumatism, dropsical swellings, cold extremities, scalding and burning urine and sleeplessness due to causes arising from bed at night.

WRIST WATCHES MADE SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY

The war has made the world safe for men who wear wrist-watches. A red-blooded masculine person, danger can appear on the streets wearing a wrist watch without the tangle of incurring a snuff or a brick. Before the war, the wrist-watch was a badge of effeminacy. The man who affected one was looked on as a fop, a sissy or a snob. Today in this queer world, real men wear wrist-watches, unashamed. Taboo yesterday, the sudden popularity of the wrist-watch is the old story of the stone that the builders rejected becoming the chief of the corner, the despised outsider easing home on the chin-strap to victory in the derby, the ugly duckling turning out to be a swan.

The war did it. The war fixed its imprimatur forever on the wrist-watch as a man's watch. It made the wrist-watch about as necessary a part of a soldier's equipment as his rifle. It washed out in blood any stigma of effeminacy that ever may have clung to the little time-piece. Thousands of soldiers went over the top by their wrist-watches, timed their battle rushes by them, fought by them, died by them. If the wristwatch didn't win the war, it helped. Jewelers anticipated that the fashion of the wrist-watch would wear quickly after the war. But the war has proved its practical worth and the business man of peace times finds it as convenient and utilitarian as the soldier found it in the days of battle. It evidently has come to stay. Jewelers declare there is as brisk a demand for it as during the war and more wrist-watches are being sold today than any kind of watches.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Charles S. Keith of Kansas City, president of the Southern Pine association and widely known as a statistical authority on lumber, told the legislative commission, investigating the high prices of building materials, Tuesday, that the present price of lumber is lower than it will be at any time in five years. He said the increased cost of production, depletion of raw material in this country and the enormous increased demand from Europe to rebuild the vast areas devastated by war, are certain to mean higher prices for lumber to last five years.

Mr. Keith said that in April, 1917, the average cost of producing southern pine lumber was $16.38 a thousand feet, while the cost in January, 1919, had increased to $25.85. Last January the commodity was sold by the manufacturers at a loss, the witness said, while the present profit was a trifle over $1 a thousand feet. He presented a survey of the cost of production at ninety-six southern mills, which, he said, should earn a profit of $3 a thousand feet in order to bring a fair return on the actual capital invested.

Workmen Less Efficient. "Although the lumber mills in the south are paying their workmen unusually high wages, our experience has shown that the standard of living has not increased and labor is much less efficient than formerly," said Mr. Keith.

"It seems to be a peculiar trait of human nature that the more money a man earns the less work he will do. That rule, I believe, applies to all classes of men, office employees, superintendents and laborers alike."

"That is rather an unfortunate deduction to draw," remarked Chairman John Duley. "We have been under the impression that higher wages to labor brought a higher degree of efficiency. In fact, one of the largest Chicago contractors said that had been his experience."

"I am drawing my conclusion from actual experience of the lumber mills based on figures taken from the books and therefore there is no theory in what I say," replied Dr. Keith.

A Wagon Ad will do it.

MODART CORSETS Front Laced

WHY LOOK OLDER THAN YOU ARE?

It is astonishing how many women through lack of attention are wearing corsets that give a more mature appearance to the figure than it should have, and consequently they appear to be five or ten years older than they are.

It is possible to readily improve that condition if you will come to our corset department and get a trial fitting of the MODART front laced corset.
