McCRARY HUNTS MISCREANTS

YOUNG MEN FAILED TO CONCEAL WORK FROM EMPLOYER

Police Department Presented With Entire Facts and Requested to Act.

While Charles McCrary never lays any claims to being sleuth he does possess that brand of sense that God gave horses, and when a young man who was working for him acted a little strange and associates of the young man acted in a peculiar way Mr. McCrary began to do a little investigating.

As a result it was only a very short time until he had evidence of burglary and had located a great deal of the stolen property. Equipped with unquestionable facts he asked the police department to enlist themselves in the cause of hunting down miscreants who had been committing burglary and house breaking in La Grande. Directing every movement of the police Mr. McCrary succeeded in bringing the guilty ones into custody.

Many of his friends are joking Mr. McCrary about having the boys who are charged with theft in his employ and also relative to the location of stolen goods, but the fact is Mr. McCrary is the one person who run down the whole scheme and had successful results.

"I am looking for no star on my breast," said McCrary last evening, "nor do I want any praise for this bit of work, but I am very much inclined to think that had I, or some other citizen, not taken sufficient interest to run down this whole thing that there would have been no knowledge of it at police headquarters and no action taken."

Torrent and Lakelet.

The stream of modern literature represented by the books and periodicals on the crowded counters is a turbulent and clamorous torrent, dashing along among the rocks of criticism, over the pebbles of the world's daily events; trying to make itself heard and seen amidst the hoarse cries of the politicians and the rumbling wheels of traffic. The classic is a still lakelet, a mountain tarn, fed by springs that never fail, its surface never ruffled by storms—always smiling a welcome to its visitor—Holmes.

Recognition Among Bees.

Naturalists for a long time were at a loss to understand how it was that insects were enabled to so quickly recognize an intruder among their family or settlement. It has been determined that in most cases they recognize each other by smell. Among the bees each distinctive class of workers—the guard, the fanner, the pollen carrier, the waxmaker, the architect, etc.—has its own distinctive odor. And besides each bee has its own separate hive odor, which it its passport into its own particular home.

The Right Word.

A couple of deaf mutes were married the other day. The wedding was truly described as "a quiet affair."—Boston Transcript.
