Mrs. Ann Russell, pioneer resident of Ashland, was entertained at her home last week in honor of the anniversary of her 81st birthday, and of her arrival in Ashland on April 14, 1852.

John Staub, son of Adam Staub, of Klamath Falls, suffered a compound fracture of his right leg below the knee when the four horse team with which he was hauling hay became frightened at an automobile and ran away, throwing the boy to the ground.

The Big Lakes Box company of Klamath Falls, employing 60 men, has shut down for a three week period for repairs and improvements. During that period the mill will be converted into an electrically equipped plant, replacing the present steam plant.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan Galarsneau, a pioneer of Klamath county, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stephen Herlihy, several miles north of Klamath Falls, Tuesday. Mrs. Galarsneau was born in Kilkenny, Ireland, on August 19, 1845. She came to Klamath county in 1866. She was the mother of twelve children.

Among the war records being compiled by Co. Supt. Bonney of Wood county are those of J. E. Proctor and Frank B. Proctor, father and son, of Mosier. The son served in the United States naval reserve corps. The father, who is 50 years old, attempted to enlist in both the army and navy, but was rejected because of his age. He then joined the Canadian army and was on his way overseas with the infantry regiment when the armistice was signed.

Loganberries will be raised on a large scale in Coos county if present plans are carried out. A Salem company has offered to contract for five years to take the output if the farmers will plant the berries, and this proposition is being considered by the land owners. Those who have grown loganberries in that locality find they are the most prolific of any of the small fruits and seem to be perfectly adapted to the climate and soil.

TOMATOES LIKE HAND-POLLINATION
"In some cases pollination of tomatoes has paid the entire labor cost of production through increased yields," says the new O. A. C. bulletin on "Pollination of Tomatoes," now ready for growers, free. The publication, Prof. A. G. Baquet, author tells how, when and why pollinate.

SOCIAL HYGIENE FILM SHOWING

PICTURE AND BOYS EXHIBIT SEEN BY STUDENTS

Exhibit will be given this evening in Star Theatre for Parents and Younger Children.

Henry M. Grant, representing the Oregon Social Hygiene Society, is in town today with the society's four reel film "How Life Begins," and the U. S. Public Health Service boys' exhibit. The boys exhibit was shown to the high school boys today and the film is being shown to the high school students immediately after school this afternoon.

At 8 o'clock this evening the film will be shown to the parents and their younger children at the Star theater. The film is one which every parent should see and there is nothing in it that any child should not see. The development of various forms of life from a single cell is shown. This film has been translated into three foreign languages and has been shown all over Europe, as well as over America. All parents are urged to attend and to bring their children. There will be no charge for admittance.

TO FIGHT DISEASE INVASION

The foreign commissions, and other organizations of the American Red Cross, are to be utilized to aid the United States public health service in preventing the introduction into the United States of epidemic diseases. Close cooperation between the Red Cross, which is frequently called upon to combat contagious diseases in foreign fields, and the public health service will result in more vigorous examination at American ports of immigrants halting from epidemic zones abroad.

Colonel Robert E. Olds, American Red Cross commissioner for Europe, has forwarded from Paris, to American Red Cross commissions in various European and Asiatic countries the following instructions:

"We are requested by the United States government to make our entire organization available for the vital service of procuring the forwarding promptly, from time to time, full information concerning the presence of cholera, typhus fever, plague and other grave communicable diseases wherever we may operate.

The purpose is to make the public health service take such measures as may be deemed appropriate to prevent the spread of such diseases to the United States. We are also asked to forward, in some way, all information from ports in areas coming under their observation. "Explicit instructions should be sent out to persons by all heads of commissions and units. An information should be telegraphed to us immediately on receipt. It is important that this service be rendered with the utmost promptness and efficiency."

FOURTH ESTATE IN WAR

At a memorial service in St. Paul's cathedral for men connected with the press who had fallen in the war it developed that more than 5000

British newspaper men and printers had given their lives in the great struggle.

It is becoming characteristic of newspaper men to say little if anything about themselves, but we believe this extraordinary show of service deserves notice.

In his remarks on the occasion the bishop of Hereford said of these workers: "In time of war their labors acquire a greatly enhanced importance, for they keep the nation informed and alert; they stimulate its courage and excite it to fresh exertion." It would be equally interesting to know America's loss in the profession—New York Telegram.

The American Field of Honor

—It is a patch of soil in France where sleep our dead. It is Spring now and poppies—blood-red—cover the fresh turned earth of the graves.

While the marks of the spade still linger can we forget the sacrifice those American boys made—can we break faith?

We can carry on the work they died for. We can keep faith with them. We can sacrifice here and there to take, each of us, our share of the VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN. Keep faith.
