

Home Seekers Attention

George H. Currey asks you to look over his partial list:

100 ACRES—Near La Grande, 50 acres in timber, 25 acres alfalfa, some grain, 60 acres fallow; splendid barn, 6-room house; in Mt. Glen. $2500 cash balance on liberal terms.

920 ACRES—Stock and grain ranch; 300 acres cultivated, 160 in alfalfa and timothy; well fenced and watered. This farm rents for over $1500 a year. About 15 miles from La Grande, on good road. $2000 cash, balance easy payments.

160 ACRES—145 acres in spring wheat, fine stand. The owner guarantees the crop will be worth $6000; he is perfectly safe 20 bushels to the acre will do this; the largest crop ever reported grown in the valley was grown on this place—120 bushels to the acre; a wheat crop of 45 bushels was raised on portions of it last year. Near La Grande, 7 miles. Entire tract can be irrigated. Was all in alfalfa three years ago. The price is $21,000 and the guaranteed crop brings it down to less than $100 per acre. This bears investigation.

100 ACRES—Two miles from Union, northwest; 85 acres in grain, 10 acres in alfalfa; good buildings. If you will estimate the alfalfa yield at only three tons and the price at only $13 per ton, the grain at 20 bushels, deducting $650 for harvesting—this splendid land will only cost you $107.50. Water rights for the entire tract. Price is $14,000.

185 ACRES—Near La Grande, 100 acres cultivated, more than 40 acres of the pasture land can be; 55 acres in grain; 34 in commercial apples, trees full of bloom, not injured by frost; a good 6-room house, large barn; water from large spring piped to house; well fenced; some valuable timber; fine pasture. The price is $11,000 cash. I will make you a loan of $6000, either on short or long-time period. If you have $5000 in cash and want a farm, don't fail to look this over.

25 ACRES—Eight miles north-east of La Grande; Sandridge land; improved. Price $3000.00. Enough said.

40 ACRES—Near Sammerville; improved; 4 acres in alfalfa, 6 acres in wheat, 5 acres in timothy, 3 acres in potatoes; nicely located. Price $3000, terms.

100 ACRES—Right close to Union, all in crop. Price $12,000. If purchaser is a substantial citizen the terms can be made most reasonable. $2500 now, $2500 this fall, and long time in balance. Well improved, well fenced, water right nicely located; splendid land. Will bear investigation.

60 ACRES—300 acres in spring down grain, 230 in fallow. Price $85 per acre, $15000 cash, balance on easy terms. With ordinary weather conditions the growing crop should more than make the first payment. This means after deducting harvesting expenses the land will only cost the purchaser $65 per acre.

15 ACRES—In Fruitdale; all in grain; no trees on this tract. Owner also owns 10 acres, well improved and in crop. These tracts can be sold separate or together. The 10-acre tract is priced at $3000 and is one of the best buys in that vicinity. The land on both tracts is the very best.

Daddy Pershing Waits for Him

"Waiting daddy over there" was the ambition of many American boys in war days and even now, but Warren Pershing, son of General Pershing, is the only one on record who has realized such a wonderful event. He is now the owner of three decorations for valor performed during the fighting, was the man selected and nominated by General Pershing to come to America and take the place of General Pershing, his all members of his family except this boy now 19 years old.

At The Movies

SPLENDID NEW ROLE FOR W. S. HART IN "THE THREE-GUN MAN"

Bob Sands, recruit from Arizona—Whenstone is the town—came to New York recently to take a job that is unique—the passing of a young highbrow—Larry Harrington son of the well-known railroad magnate. Larry had got into some sort of a tangle over letters written to a pretty waitress, but Bob found she was all to the good and that the young waster hadn't a chance with her.

And so he promptly fell in love with her himself and was as help less as a tenderfoot when she took and hit him. So he shifted his allegiance to the lady's side and Harrington, Sr., hired a detective to get the "papers." He got them, but Bob followed on a borrowed horse and recovered the documents. It was some chase, they say—as wild as that of Tom O'Shanter from the witches. And now Bob and the Lady Mary are going back, back, back to Whatstone—to grind out their future beneath the stars of the big Southwest.

The whole story may be found at the Nevada theatre, where William S. Hart's latest Astoria picture will be exhibited today and to-morrow. It is called "The Three-Gun Man" and it is the second idea in the films that has captured the imagination of the nation—also, it is definitely different from the other pictures we have seen in the past. Full of comedy, excitement and thrill but minus any of the usual overstatement for the nation.

Daddy Pershing Over, is Mr. Hart's leading woman and others in the support are Arthur Shirley, Lewis W. Short and Andrew Robinson.

"THREE-GUN MAN" NOW APPEARS ON PHOTOPLAY SCREEN

"The 'two-gun man' of the old had had west must take a back seat, because the 'three-gun man' has made his appearance. In the old shooting days any man, outlaw or otherwise, who could operate two six-shooters simultaneously was regarded with considerable respect, and he lived longer than the fellow who could shoot accurately only with one hand.

Tom Mix, the William Fox film star, was a twingun man when he was a Texas ranger and cowboy, and his ability to shoot with both hands got him out of some very tight holes. It was this ability, too, which helped him to win on the Rhine, and of course on the Texas river in New Mexico, a few years ago. Now Mix, who for some time has been engaged in thrilling motion picture auditions by his daring horsemanship and athletic feats, has developed into a "three-gun man."

In "Hell Roarin' Reform," a William Fox production, which will be presented Saturday only at Sherry's, Mix runs a band of outlaws by operating two six-shooters and a rifle simultaneously. This is the first time, it is declared, that this remarkable feat has been accomplished.

Also shown Chaplin and Mutt and Jeff.

HAND GRENADES GONE, THEY THREW STONES

Loss of Equipment Fails to Kill the Fighting Spirit of the Yanks.

The fighting spirit that made the American army irresistible is illustrated in the case of Private Michael J. Feeney of Company G, One Hundred and Fourteenth Infantry, regiment, Twenty-ninth division, who, with his "buddy," named Brady, put a German scout to flight by hurling stones at him. The incident is related in a letter received in New York from Mrs. Feeney, T. J. B. Lang, Feeney's commanding officer, who vouches for its authenticity. Lieutenant Lang, who is from Jersey City, while Feeney's home is in Bayonne, N. J.

The Twenty-ninth division was in heavy fighting in a wooded district in or near the St. Mihiel sector. "Feeney and his 'buddy' mate, Brady, were occupying the same bunk hole in the woods," writes Lieutenant Lang. "There was just some tangled underbrush between them and the lines of trenches close in front. During the early morning some Boches who evidently had come up during the night got close enough to hurl their hand grenades into our lines. We were not in trenches. We had gone far, far beyond them."

"One of the grenades quite accurately hit and landed on the edge of the hole which was the 'bunking lodge' of Feeney and Brady. Feeney saw the grenade coming and jumping almost, he handed his comrade, Brady, after him into the next hole less than a foot and a half to the right. Of course he didn't have time to save his equipment."

"The grenade exploded with a terrible noise. It shattered the stock of Feeney's rifle, making it useless, but Feeney wasn't hurt. He decided that the 'Boches' were a dirty lot and needed a lesson. He had no gun and no grenades so, with a curse at the higher and his servants, he stood up in plain view of the enemy and threw rocks and stones at the Hun a few yards away."

KANGAROO GETS MAD

Hite a Deer With His Tail in a Fight.

"Ned Kelly, the old buck kangaroo, has been having a fight with the bossing of the axis deer, here," said Sergeant McGee of the San Francisco park police, "and it is the first time I ever heard of two horridous animals so wildly different in appearance and character engaged in a quarrel."

"As a matter of fact, it was the axis deer that started the trouble. He was trying to dig on before the deer and started hitting at Ned Kelly, who was peacefully loafing about with no thought of trouble. The first hit of the deer got Ned thinking, the second set him mad, the third—well, Ned Kelly just turned about and gave the axis deer a good wallop under the stomach with his tail. You could hear the smack two blocks away, and it sharply knocked the deer flat. It dropped as if it had been shot, while Ned Kelly just hopped away as happy as a bird."

More than 200 delegates attended Eastern Oregon State Federated Sunday School convention at Baker Sunday. The state is divided into two sections, the Eastern and Western, because of the extent of the district.
