SEEMED TO COME TO THEM

Few of Our "U" Boat Chaser Skippers Had Had Previous Nautical Experience.

"Where do the officers of the submarine chasers come from?" I asked an executive officer long in the navy, writes Samuel G. Blythe in the Saturday Evening Post.

"Everywhere," he said.

"Were they sailors?"

"Not many of them; some had had experience in motor boats and yachts and were amateur navigators, but the way they have picked it up is marvelous. Let me give you an illustration. When I was organizing the first flotilla that came over I questioned the young chaps who came before me as officers for the chasers. Of the first five on one day one had been a shoe-salesman, another an accountant, another a nut inspector and another an actor."

"Nut inspector?" I said. "What's that?"

"He worked on a pecan ranch down south somewhere."

"They had had some sailing experience and had taken short special courses at a training school. Now of that bunch three are in command of chasers today, four brought their ships across and the actor is a unit commander, and a mighty good one, too. That's where we got them. The navy just reached out and collected them here, there, and everywhere, and they are good stuff and making sailors of themselves mighty fast."

FEW SHIPS ARE TOTAL LOSS

Vessels Sunk by Mines or Torpedoes Patched, Raised and Taken to Port for Repairs.

Any one who imagines that all the vessels sunk by enemy U-boats or mines are left at the bottom of the sea would be surprised if he could be told the whole story of ingenuity, resource and unremitting toil of the British admiralty salvage corps.

Almost as soon as a vessel is sunk salvage operations are commenced. Divers are sent down to take accurate measurements of the size of the hole made by the torpedo or mine. Small holes are plugged with wood, but large ones are patched with "standards" patches. These are made of 12-inch wooden beams, and a patch sometimes weighs as much as 20 tons.

As may be imagined, the size of the hole varies greatly. In some cases it has measured 40 feet long by 20 feet wide, and in one case it has been known to be 48 feet long by 25 feet wide.

When the vessels have been plugged and patched, their cargo removed and the water pumped out of them they proceed to the nearest port where they can be permanently repaired.

Several vessels have been torpedoed after being refueled and have again been successfully raised and taken into port.

Miracle in the Mediterranean.

In an article on the submarine warfare in the Mediterranean contributed to the November Century, Herman Whitaker tells of a incident of the American destroyers who had been washed overboard in a black night storm and was thought to be hopelessly lost till a voice hailed the watch from under the stern. He had caught the leading which trails for a couple of hundred feet behind, and hauled himself along it. Another escape was still more miraculous. Washed overboard at night from one of the destroyers, this particular lad was heaved by a wave upon the deck of another vessel half a mile astern. When he was restored to his own ship at the end of the voyage, his captain thus addressed him: "Young man, you have used up all the luck you will have in all your life. The navy is no safe place for you. Take my advice; get out of it as soon as Uncle Sam will let you."

Give Revenue Officers Tip

Revenue officers who arrested an Atlanta man with fifteen gallons of whiskey in his motor car, found the man a letter to a Georgia farmer, saying that the whiskey had "some very fine" for sale at the low price of $7 "each" and that "the son had a little of thirty," a remarkable thing in the world. On investigation, they found the man to be a complete impostor with the letter to be a piece of junk of high-powered machine talk.

German Efficiency

Workmen, engineers and superintendents in factories caught in the north of France when the German army invaded the region have gradually worked their way back to Paris as reputation has been reestablished. They bring the information that practically nothing remains of the industrial establishments there in the invaded districts.

Worth More Than Horses.

The government pays more for mules than for horses for war service. The average price paid up to June 1 were as follows: Mules, white, $228; bay, $182; pack and riding, $184. Horses: heavy mounts, $101; light artillery, $188; heavy artillery, $221; young horses, $142.

Significant Hint

"Did you see that man when he started to tell you of the number of enemies he had killed and captured at the front single handed?" "I never said a single word but listened in silence. All I did was to put on my gas mask."

Learn From Mistakes.

If you see a mistake don't look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your own mind, and then look forward. Mistakes are lessons of wisdom.—Hugh White.
