Who Had to Wait

John had been promised a kitten by one of the neighbors and after reciting the content of her parents took a gunny sack with her in which to bring the kitten home. After having been gone all the afternoon, she returned empty-handed. Her father asked her where the kitten was and she replied: "Oh, I can't have it for awhile. It just came out of the hatch."

Ideal Marrying Age

Interesting points regarding matrimony are raised by a clause in the will of a London merchant. Much of his property is left in trust for his children, the income from their shares to be paid to their mother until each child attains the age of twenty-seven. The maker of the will expressed an "earnest wish and desire" that no child should marry until that age was reached.

Ingenious Excuse

My father saw little Ruth through the window. She was cutting a green apple. He called her into the house and she, knowing his purpose, came shyly into the room. Father questioned her about eating the green apple, for she had often been forbidden to eat them. Looking up with a smile she said: "Why, I only ate the ripe half!" —Chicago American.

What He Wanted

Poppy had been given three cents to spend as he and his younger brother saw it. Having heard much earlier talk and being attracted by a display of foreign seeds, he came home with these pictures-of-vegetable-seeds, eager to get them planted at once. Hearing something about the proposed planting of some flower seeds, he insisted on planting his, saying to his mother as a final argument: "Mother, we don't want flower seeds; we want our own seeds!"

IRISH PEOPLE WANT REPUBLIC

authorities while the delegation was in Ireland was regarded as significant.

There is a stringent military order forbidding processions and public gatherings without a permit and before the arrival of the Americans there had been numerous processions and sentences both in Dublin and throughout the country, punishing men for unauthorized meetings and for "forming fourths in procession."

Yet there was not the slightest interference with the huge processions organized in Cork and Dublin for the delegates, any attempt to prevent either the Sinn Fein leaders, whose guests they were, from advertising mass meetings of thousands who crowded into the fashionable square in Dublin in which the delegates had their residence. The Lord Lieutenant and the Chief Secretary were said to be dissatisfied and helpless.

All this has made a deep impression in Ireland with the result that very many people who a few weeks thought a dream have come to think it a possibility. They will look eagerly for the fulfillment of the expectations aroused. If they are not realized, and experienced politicians do not see how they can be, the disappointment is likely to be very great.

Home rule as a policy is openly scorned. Professor John MacNeill, Sinn Fein member of Parliament for the National University as well as for Derry city, in a speech delivered recently, boasted that the Sinn Fein party had killed the Home Rule act. It is asserted that the American visit has greatly stiffened this attitude and given substance to the demand for a separate republic.

FUNERAL AT NORTH POWDER

The funeral of Mrs. Faget, wife of Lee Faget, O. W. R. & N. station agent at Kamela, whose death was announced yesterday, was held at North Powder today. Mrs. Faget was formerly Miss Bellfield and was before her marriage a nurse at the Granite Road hospital. Her parents and other relatives live at North Powder.

Engineer Martha King and other railway employees at Kamela were among those who went to North Powder on No. 6 today to be present at the funeral.

Total of Fourteen

Put your mathematical friend to the test by asking him to name five eleven-fingered fingers, when added together, total 14. After he has given it up set down for him three dots and the figure 11. If he argues that 11 is made up of two figures, if that solution doesn't satisfy him give him this one: Four ones equal four. Set down another one in front of the four and you have fourteen.

The Seven Seas

In ancient times the expression, Seven Seas, meant the waters known to the civilized nations, particularly those known to the Greeks and the Romans, for instance, the Mediterranean, the Adriatic, the Aegean, the Ionian (part of the Mediterranean), the Red Sea, the Black, and the Caspian. In modern times it is a political and not a geographical expression denoting the world's great oceans and seas, seven being the official number signifying completion or perfection—the high seas generally.

What Quadrille Means

The word "quadrille" is derived from the position of the dancers, the French word, "quadrille" meaning a little square. "Country dance" does not mean a rustic dance, but it is a corruption of the French term contradance, which relates to the position of the couples—opposite to each other.

Mildly Complimentary

The World Moves On

Printers thought the typesetting machine was not practical—
The horse breeder said the automobile would never be in general use—
The wire manufacturer said "wireless" was a dream—
Even congressmen, said "heavier-than-air" flying machines were impossible—
The last to be disturbed by the wheels of progress is the single record phonograph manufacturer, who says the playing of all records on one machine "cannot be done."

"Cannot Be Done" is now in the scrapheap, for—

The concessions were granted by previous governments and, according to the department, can be renewed only under the provisions of the present law which, in present, only authorize a temporary lease, subject to revision of the existing arrangements.
