FEW CHANGES ARE IN SIGHT

It is indicated there is a disposition on the part of German civilians to be prepared for an allied advance. The menace of Bolshevism in Central Europe is again causing concern.

AMERICANS MUST SUCCEED GERMANS

ROME. (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—"American influence in Italy must succeed German influence of pre-war days. American tools, machines and agricultural implements must replace the Teuton brands. American education must supersede Germanic education. The books from the shelves of libraries written in Italian to impress the Italian mind with Germany's greatness and superiority and German catalogues written in Italian must make room for new books written in Italian of America's greatness and catalogues of American houses in Italian to push American trade and commerce."

This was the statement of Dr. William Charles White, of the Rockefeller Tuberculosis Foundation, commission serving with the American Red Cross. Dr. White has conducted an exhaustive investigation of the educational system of Italy with a view of introducing into the schools the American system of hygienic instruction.

"We have found in the libraries throughout Italy, hundreds of books telling of German methods and German systems. The ramifications which the German empire had in Italy's trade were enormous. It brought her results for, until 1915, she had a greater commerce with Italy than any other nation."

"Knowledge of America where almost half a million Italians went annually before the war, of American methods and life are lacking in Italy while works on German education, can be found in great abundance."

HUN HIDES 4 YEARS

Conceals Self in New Guinea Jungle During War

German Army Captain Rieck Death Among Cannibals Until Armistice is Signed.

Konrad Detzler, a German army engineer who had been hiding in the New Guinea jungle since the beginning of the war, has come back to civilization and now is in an internment camp in Australia. Detzler's story is on a par with other romantic incidents of the war as it affected the South sea.

Detzler holds a captain's commission. When the war began he was surveying the boundary line between the then Kaiser Wilhelmland, or German New Guinea, and Papua, or British New Guinea. He decamped into the bush. This was a risky act, for the bushmen prefer human flesh above all other kinds. When an Australian force occupied Kaiser Wilhelmland Detzler was overlooked.

For more than four years Detzler lived in the bush near Mimsia. He had a shotgun, but it was not long before he ran out of cartridges. Thereafter he lived on yams, taro and kava (a variety of sweet potato) in common with the natives, and upon birds and animals which he caught by means of snares.

Several times the Australians searched for him, but Detzler managed to elude them. He might have stayed indefinitely in the jungle, but missionaries told the Papuans of the armistice and they in turn told him. Thereupon he surrendered to the nearest Australian officer. While living throughout the war at Mimsia, Detzler wore only a lava lava (native kilt). The result is that he is almost as brown as a Papuan. He now wears a German uniform.

HOW DEPTH BOMB STARTED

British Admiral Responsible for Weapon That Revolutionized Anti-Submarine Warfare

New York.—How the submarine depth bomb, familiarly referred to as "ash can," came into being to revolutionize anti-submarine warfare was related here by Rear Admiral William S. Sims, commander during the war of the American naval forces overseas.

Rear Admiral Sir Charles Edward Madden, chief of staff to Admiral Jellicoe, was the author of the idea. Admiral Sims said, giving as his authority Admiral Jellicoe.

The idea came to Admiral Madden, he continued, while the British officer was aboard a cruiser which sighted a submarine. The cruiser gave chase, he said, but as it drew near the submarine submerged. Admiral Madden, chagrined at the cruiser's failure to "get" the submarine, exclaimed:

"Why wouldn't it be a good idea to work up some sort of a device to drop on these Hun?"

Other officers approving the plan, the cruiser put back to port, where the idea was presented to Admiral Jellicoe. He approved the plan, and munition experts were put to work devising the "ash can."

The depth bombs evolved contained 300 pounds of trinitrotoluol and were capable of wrecking a submarine.

SPOIL O. HENRY'S SKETCHES

Texas Workmen Tear Down Building Where the Author Was Employed

Austin, Tex.—Sketches on the walls of the old land office building on the Capitol grounds, drawn by O. Henry the author, while he was a clerk in the statehouse here, are being destroyed. Workmen are tearing down the building.

O. Henry, in his adolescence, published a little weekly, The Rolling Stone, worked in the land office as a clerk, and worked prodigiously on the stories that later were to entertain an army of readers.

His real name was Sidney Porter, and he was then unknown to fame. No one seems to remember whether he was a good clerk, and those who have seen the sketches say that as an artist he was a good story teller.

To Restore Tired Eyes.
If the eyes are very tired and one especially wishes them to be as bright as possible, it is quite helpful to lie down for half an hour with the eyes closed, and a folded handkerchief dipped in cold water, in which borax and powder is dissolved, laid across the forehead and eyes. This can be redipped as soon as the cloth is warm.

VICTIMS OF WAR OF 1878

YAKIMA, Wash., June 12.—Location of the exact spot upon which Mr. and Mrs. Loretta D. Perkins were killed in 1878, by Indians has been charged to a committee by the Yakima Historical Society which plans to erect a monument to their memory. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were killed near Rattlesnake Springs, but the exact spot is unknown. William Stillwell, aged 91, of Tillamook, Oregon, has written the society he thinks he can locate the place as he was in this section at the time they were killed.

Why a HOT SPOT Chalmers is Well Nigh Trouble Proof

MOST troubles in a car come from faulty lubrication. An authority remarked the other day that 75% of all troubles could be traced to this cause.

A former professor at Yale said: "Give a car plenty of lubrication and it will take care of itself."

Now here's how the Hot Spot Chalmers happens to be free of lubrication ailments.

Hot Spot "heats up" the raw gas, "turns it into a vapor cloud," so that when the ingenious Ram's horn has passed it on to the cylinders it's finely prepared for combustion.

No raw gas runs down past the pistons into the crank case to thin out the lubricating oil.

In engines of the old type—those without Hot Spot and Ram's horn—raw gas has caused endless trouble:

- burned bearings that cost a great deal to replace;
- excessive vibration that develops countless rattles;
- engine knocks that are often taken for carbon knock;
- overheated engines.

Such things you rarely experience in a Chalmers and then only through extreme personal carelessness.

See the modern engine in the modern car—the Hot Spot Chalmers, one of the few great cars of the world.
