La Grande on the Map

Messrs. Penney & Co. are in receipt of a folder containing some publicity announcement of the Holland Industrial Fair at Utrecht. The unusual part of it all is that it was addressed: "Messrs. Penney Co., La Grande, Nord Amerika." This was the shape it was in when it left the city of the Netherlands, but it appears that the postal authorities in New York had added in last

Marine Recruits Heard From

Horace and Clarence Smith, of Elgin, who enlisted a short time ago in the U. S. Marine Corps and who are now in training at Camp Quantico, Va., have written back to Corporal Dale Wingerd, of the local Marine recruiting office, regarding their experience. Their letter is as follows:

Well, we arrived in Quantico O. K. and like it fine. It is rather warm down here and keeps us sweating most of the time, but that is good for us you know. We drill about three and one half hours each day and in that time we are given instruction in drilling with the rifle, bomb throwing, hand grenades, etc. From noon on we are at leisure to do as we like. We will be here until about the 28th of this month and then we leave for Europe. All the fellows organize teams to bet across the pond to see what the country looks like over there. Many of the men that have been over there for several months and have been returned to the United States and discharged are taking intensive training with us and will be ready to go across again with us. We will be on our way by the 4th of July, anyway. I suppose we will celebrate the 4th on board ship, unless something happens that we are out expecting now. Well, Sergeant, guess we will have to close for this time as we are planning on a trip to Washington, D. C. this afternoon and tomorrow and haven't much time left to get ready for it so please give our best regards to every one.

Sincerely yours,
HORACE M. SMITH,
CLARENCE P. SMITH.
