Fine Telephone System Perfected In Germany By Army of Occupation

COBLENZ, (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—At the time the Americans began withdrawing from Germany the United States army had perfected one of the finest telephone systems in Europe. From the headquarters of the Third Army in Coblenz fifty long distance lines had been set up and it is possible for the commanding general to sit in his office and talk with American officers in London, Berlin, Vienna, Rotterdam, Brussels, Antwerp, Paris and various other points in France.

The Army of Occupation has a telephone system closely resembling the best commercial system in the United States. On the top floor of the headquarters building in Coblenz a nine position switchboard was installed soon after the Americans reached the Rhine. Scattered throughout Coblenz are twenty private branch exchanges of the various units of headquarters. Connected to this system are more than four hundred "subscribers" in addition to the fifty long distance lines.

With the German occupied area there has been established by the Signal Corps under the direction of Colonel Parker Hitt, chief signal officer, a network of wires connecting the various units of the Third Army. Direct lines connect with all the corps and divisions, approximately 16,000 miles of wire being in service.

This extensive plant has not however, been built by the Third Army, but consists almost altogether of the German lines taken over by the Signal Corps and so arranged to meet the needs of the army. Sufficient circuits were left, however, for the civilian population to carry on their business.

More than 15,000 calls are registered daily on the Coblenz switchboard. With the establishment of exchange in Coblenz it was necessary to employ operators who could speak English, French and German. The fifteen operators on duty in Coblenz are all members of the Women's Telephone corps and have been in the service more than a year. The chief operator, Miss Helen Cook, was a former employe of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in New York. Previous to joining the American Expeditionary Force, Miss Cook spent six years as instructor for the Bell system in offices in Chicago, Minneapolis, Omaha, Cleveland, Detroit and Memphis.

The word "Doodlebug" is the code name of the Third Army switchboard in Coblenz, the corps and divisions also retaining the code names that were assigned them during the war. On the back of a twenty-page telephone directory issued by the Third Army the artist's conception of a "doodlebug" has been reproduced in the shape of a bug made up of a combination of sabres, rifles and an aerial bomb.

All the apparatus, including switch boards, telephone instruments and in fact everything except the wires, is of American manufacture and it to be taken out when the Americans in force say good-bye to the Rhine and start for France and home.

LARGE CROWD OUT TO HEAR REV. G. L. CLARK LAST NIGHT

An audience that completely filled the auditorium and the gallery of the First M. E. church and necessitated the use of the Sunday school room greeted Rev. G. L. Clark last night on his first public appearance since his return from overseas. Rev. N. Sierman Jaws, pastor of the church, conducted the service, asking Rev. James Alkin Smith, the new pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Rev. Mr. Clark's successor, to introduce the speaker. Rev. Mr. Smith's words of introduction were very able.

Rev. Mr. Clark spoke for over an hour on his various observations and experiences in the Y. M. C. A. service overseas and gave his audience one of the most interesting and most profitable evening they have spent for a long time.
