If the Barbers Adopted Medical Camouflage.

A certain "D. D." who may be a Doctor of Divinity but is probably a Doctor of Dentistry, bearing the appropriate name of Mohler, writes an illuminating letter to one of the papers in regard to professional terminology.

"I have noticed," he says, "that a medical man's practice broadens with his scope of vocabulary; also that it is far easier to command a large fee for exodontia than for tooth-yanking, though both terms mean the same thing."

He suggests, therefore, applying the same principle in barber shops. Thus: "Instead of treating a man's scalp for dandruff, operate on him for seborrhea sicca; instead of a hair-cut, perform a capillsectomy; instead of applying tonic, call it capilliculture; and lastly, instead of the massage, practice a little vibrotherapy."

Surely no friend of humanity would offer such a suggestion as this. Tom-itorial bills are quite high enough as it is.

Making Mexico Sore By Protecting Ourselves.

Mexico is sore because American troops went across the Rio Grande river and drove off a lot of revolutionary bandits who were spattering deadly bullets into El Paso. That in itself is sore. And that, in turn, is to say that President Carranza is sore.

The United States can stand it, because that is the habitual state of mind of Carranza and those associated with him in his so-called government. The United States can stand it even if it represents the sentiment of the Mexican people in general. Those ignorant masses have been taught to hate and fear the Yankees. A long course of unprecedented tolerance and hospitality on the part of the United States does not seem to have lessened their hatred much, nor improved their understanding. Such being the case, it is probably well to build into them a wholesome fear of our military power and effectiveness.

Stimpy action in every crisis, and stern punishment for every offense committed against American life, right or property, will tend to make the border safe from raids and restore peace with Mexico. It will give the Mexicans, public officials and people alike, more respect for the United States. And then, in time, they may even understand the humanity and friendliness of the United States, and restore peace and stability.

Germany Used Parachutes, Why Not Others?

England is enforcing a rule that no one in the Royal Air Force shall use parachutes of certain trial types, and it is intended to extend the ruling to English flyers generally. This is an eminently wise ruling. There are many designs of parachutes which have proved themselves trustworthy under tests, and it is as absurd to set out upon an air voyage without some sort of life-saving equipment as upon a sea voyage without life-preservers, rafts and lifeboats.

It has been said that the Germans have used parachutes constantly, and that the number of deaths among their flyers has been less than among those of other nations.

A flock, the aviator, says his machine was covered with ice a large part of the time on the way across the Atlantic. "No other way to get cooled off. We can foresee that trans-Atlantic flights are going to be wondrous in the summer time.

Of course, it will be a good thing to have political leaders debate that peace treaty all over everywhere. But to think that they're going to do it just when so many citizens were settling down for a nice, restful summer!

They are drinking hair tonic at 17 cents a throw down in Porto Rico. That must be one of those drinks of which people are always saying, "Even a little goes right to my head!"

The first military post of American women, composed of yeowomen from the Brooklyn navy yard, has chosen the name of Edith Cavell for their title. Her soul goes marching on.

The French "Tiger" certainly chewed up the Germans in that message he sent them along with the armistice peace treaty.

After making sure that Prussian militarism is thoroughly eliminated, it might be well to follow Secretary Lane's suggestion and mobilize against the Flu.

ALIENS FROM WAR PRISON GOING BACK TO GERMANY

SALT LAKE CITY, June 24.—Under guard of United States troops, 267 enemy aliens from the war prison barracks at Fort Douglas, near here, started for Charleston, S. C., in a special train last night. Upon arrival at the Atlantic port they will embark on a specially chartered ship and start on their way to Germany. The ship, it is understood here, will carry close to 2000 enemy aliens who are being deported.

Among those to leave here tonight were Captains Herman Elbo and H. Dienat, who were interred after serving sentences at a federal prison following conviction for complicity in the Hindu conspiracy cases. They were first taken into custody at Honolulu.

NO HOOTING OF ELK

There is to be no shouting of elk in Oregon during the 1919 season. Such was the declaration Game Warden Shoemaker this week, who has received a number of inquiries in the last three weeks as to the date of the opening of the season for hunting of fall elk. In order that the misunderstanding may be cleared, the game warden explained that the 1909 law prohibiting elk until August, 1919, was repealed by the 1913 law, which provides for perpetual protection. "There will be no open season in Oregon this year," said Mr. Shoemaker, "and prospective hunters should consider the game code if they would keep out of trouble."

EXPORTS IN MAY

Exports for May totaled $566,000,000, a falling off of $193,000,000 from the record set in April, but an increase of $55,000,000 over May, 1918, according to a statement issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce. For the eleven months ended with May, the export trade amounted to $6,303,000,000, an increase of $27,000,000 over the corresponding period of the previous year.

May imports were the largest in the history of the country's foreign trade—$628,000,000, a gain of $55,000,000 over April, and of $6,000,000 over May, 1918, which was the previous high mark. Imports for the eleven months ended with May were valued at $2,803,000,000, an increase of $118,000,000 over a similar period in 1918.

The excess of exports over imports during the eleven months was $2,505,000,000, as compared with $2,731,000,000 for the corresponding period in 1918, and $2,364,000,000 in 1917, the previous record.

American Farm Implements Sent in Large Quantities to Macedonia and Greece

SALONIKI, (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Large consignments of American agricultural machinery has been unloaded here for use in Macedonia. The motor plows are badly needed on account of the death of horses and oxen which the Bulgars carried off with them. In the last six months the American Red Cross has been instructing Greeks and Serbs in the use of modern farm machinery and American methods of soil improvement and now farmers are being given the opportunity to buy implements at advantageous prices.

King Alexander of Greece is much interested in American farming machinery. Recently a very large consignment of agricultural machinery and implements arrived in Athens from America. This consignment comprised all classes of power machinery and a considerable number of motor plows. King Alexander viewed these plows at the Athens Botanical Gardens. At his request two or three of them were set to work in an adjacent field, attracting from first to last his special attention. Later these American machines and implements were exhibited at the Zappelon, the large exhibition building in Athens used during the war as a hospital. There they were visited by landowners, farmers and the general public. The Greek government shipped a number of these motor plows and other implements to eastern Macedonia. These are to be used for the spring cultivation. In addition thousands are being shipped into Macedonia. To rail these plows the Bulgarians usually agreed after much discussion to allow seven hundred drachmas to cover the work to the Greeks in recompense for the tens of thousands of animals taken by the Bulgarian army in Thrace during the war.

Only large owners can afford the large plowing tractors.

The American Red Cross has bought in about 300 American farm wagons and later these wagons and the many small American automobiles now being used in the Near East will be sold to the farmers. The Near East is in great need of means of transportation and of farming machinery and American are now meeting the demand.
