TWO PAULINE FREDERICKS WILL PUZZLE ADMIRERS

Pauline Frederick comes in her new Goldwyn Picture, "One Week of Love," to the Sherry theatre today and tomorrow her admirers who see her as two heroines in the same drama, each totally unlike the other, will wonder which is the real Pauline Frederick. How many of her admirers and how many of her admirers are to express when playing a part. They will know that she has none of the characteristics of Mrs. Kinsley Sherwood, except her vivid beauty, and Marion Roche, the other girl, the chameleon-like star will also keep them wondering. What is Miss Frederick like where she is not someone else but just herself?

Nothing affords a better insight into a personality than his or her likes and dislikes. Let Miss Frederick's friends gratify their curiosity when told, on the greatest authority, that her favorite color is deep blue, and that the jewels she most likes is a sapphire, in combination with diamonds. She likes to read detective stories and narratives of adventure, and she reads a great deal. Candy she enjoys and her closest friends see to it that she never wants for chocolates. Highly seasoned food appeals to her and recently she ate her first hot tamale, in California where she lives not far from the Goldwyn Studios. She enjoys singing simple ballads, including "Maymournin'," which she can't forget because her first professional appearance required her to do that twice a day.

Heavenly is always fragrant with white carnations and red roses. She appreciates either flower, but loves them together. She owns a intelligent Pomeranian, a black one, which she calls "Stocker." And she adores him. She owns a folding typewriter which she keys proficiently, writing her personal letters on it and even taking dictation sometimes from her husband, Willard Mack. She revels in magnificent furs, but in spite of her escapades and antics really thinks she prefers crossed fox.

NAZIMOVA KNIGHTS DUAL ROLE OF UNUSUAL POWER

Distinguished Actress Plays in "The Red Lantern" at the Arcade Theatre

Nazimova, the distinguished Russian actress will be the attraction tomorrow and Tuesday at the Arcade theatre, in the powerful drama, "The Red Lantern." She was seen in a dual role, playing both Mahlee, the Eurasian, and Bianche, the English girl. The roles are of such vastly different character, that it was amazing to think that one woman could portray them both.

As Mahlee, Nazimova was supreme—depicting the passionate and inescapable daughter of two races—the child of an English father and a Chinese mother—whose instincts, traditions and emotions surge in constant conflict—making of her a mental outcast, belonging to neither race.

The story reaches dramatic heights when the unhappy girl finds that her yellow blood is an insurmountable barrier between a young missionary whom she loves and herself, and that although he is powerfully attracted to her, this difference of race can never be overcome. Wild jealousy grips her when she finds that he really loves her half sister, Bianche (also played by Nazimova) and in a frenzy she agrees to the proposal of Sam Wang, who loves her, but whom she hates, to go with him and lead the yellow races in an uprising against the whites. She assumes the fantastic title of the Goddess of the Red Lantern, which thrills the people to a fanatic religious frenzy, and they determine to exterminate the "foreign devils."

Relentless, remorse seizes her for what she has done, and at great risk to her own life she tries to save those of her father's race whom she loves. A tragic end occurs when the girl realizes that she belongs to neither people and can never hope for happiness with either.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG AT THE ARCADE THEATRE

Moving picture patrons of this city will be accorded a rare treat today when Clara Kimball Young and her own company are seen in her latest Select Picture, "Cheating Cheaters," at the Arcade theatre. This is a screen adaptation of Max Martin's famous stage success of the same name, and concerns the adventures of a clever girl who knows how to use love and business without any serious consequences to either.

The story concerns the activities of two notorious bands of crooks. Nan Carey, played by Miss Young, is the leader of a band which poses as the Brocton family. They reside in a fashionable section of the city for the purpose of becoming acquainted with the wealthy Palmer family, after which they plan to "take off" with the Palmer jewels. One night Nan is invited to play at the Palmer home, but instead of making the haul that the Brocton crooks had expected, she learns that the Palmer jewels are also crooks, and that their owners are also crooks, who in turn were planning to rob the Broctons. When the identity of the rival bands is shown to their respective leaders, they plan a meeting for the purpose of forming a joint syndicate although they are fearful of the reported presence in the neighborhood of the renowned detective, Ferris. However, the meeting is held, and true to expectations, the police arrive and arrest all present.

Throughout the story there is a growing romance that culminates when Nan reveals herself as Ferris, the detective. She obtains the release of the leader of the Palmer gang and there is discovered a real love story which has already progressed to an advanced stage.

COUNTING BY MILLIONS

On the 15th day of December at 1:55 p. m. in the year 1915, the Ford Motor Company cast the one millionth Ford Model T motor, the famous power plant of the famous Ford car. It marked a great achievement when 1,000,000 motors had been cast consecutively, without a hair's breadth of change from the original design.

On April 8th, at 1:30 p. m. in the year 1919, the Ford Motor Company cast the three millionth Model T motor, and it was identically the same in every detail, without a change of a hair's breadth in any particular, as the first Ford Model T motor that was cast, 3,000,000 of one piece of mechanism cast one after the other, without a change, is certainly about as strong evidence of perfection as it would be possible to conceive. Already now more than 3,000,000 Fords in daily service, and more than 3,000,000 alone carrying this famous Model T power plant.

A further pressing fact is that there has not been a day in the past three years when the Ford Motor Company has not been more than 100,000 cars behind orders for immediate delivery, and the output at the present time is in excess of 2,000 cars per day.

Several Eastern Oregon Men Mentioned to Take Place of Highway Board

Although a statement has been made by W. L. Thompson, who has been made vice president of the First National bank of Portland, that he will retain his residence in Bend until the first of the coming year, it is not believed here that Governor O'Leary will wait until that time to appoint Thompson's successor on the state highway commission. Thompson, in his communication to the governor, gives the executive the liberty to consider the letter one of resignation if he thinks an immediate change the practical move to make.

Already there is speculation about Salem relative to Mr. Thompson's successor, says the Portland Telegram. It is necessary under the ident of the second congressional district. One name mentioned prominently is that of William Pollman, of Baker, a wealthy business man. Fred Holmes, president of the La Grande National bank and state fuel administrator during the war, is also mentioned, as are State Senator Roy W. Ritter, of Pendleton, and ex-State Senator J. N. Burgess, of Pilot Rock.

OREGON'S BIG ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

Cooperation is without doubt the most significant word that has come down to us from the war.

The power of the word is of course in the practice of its meaning. The people of Oregon have shown the world what they could do by working together to one end.

Here in Oregon we have approximately one million people, and our performance during the war advertised this one million to the other nine million people that Oregon people were leaders in everything they undertook to do.

Our shipbuilding record is a world's record, and in taking this position two outstanding facts were established.

With working men throughout the U. S. our workers were, by their leadership, proclaimed a superior type and this carried with it the impression to other workers that Oregon must have a mighty fine lot of fellows who had working conditions that made it easy for them to achieve such wonderful results.

This impression means that thousands of men will want to see the State of Oregon and the net result will be that we will gain in added downfalls.

On the other hand, the employers throughout the U. S. have received a most favorable impression. Their belief that Oregon must be a superior place is bound to produce returns.

If Oregon men can beat other states, there must be reasons for it—climate conditions that put "pep" into men, etc.

The result will be that opinions will be formed that Oregon is the place to start factories where records are made by its workmen.

Oregon was first in filling its quota of fighting men.

Oregon was first in all the important big drives for financial aid.

And, taken all together, Oregon has been unconsciously advertising itself to millions of people as a mighty good place in which to live.

Without any chance for contradiction, we truthfully say that with the signing of the armistice Oregon closed the biggest advertising campaign in its history.

And there is no doubt in our minds but what we now stand in the doorway of the greatest period of prosperity we have ever known.

Shops—shops and smokstacks will now be the order of the day.

To The House-Wife

You perhaps have been struck by the difference in prices at different stores. Does the average housewife know why such conditions should exist? Does the housewife appreciate HER POWER as a regulator of food prices.

To begin with the average housewife can in a large measure control the price of food by keeping close track of the stores that are selling staples and other foodstuffs at the lowest prices. She can do this by comparing prices—Take advantage of the offerings we advertise—Patronize the store that gives you more for your money.

But What Too Often Happens?

The housewife does not read the paper before ordering supplies—AND DON'T CARE to take a visit to the different stores and secure prices. Therefore she does not know anything about what she can get things for, and when she goes around to the stores NEAREST home, or those most convenient, and pays whatever happens to be asked for the goods. Some read the Ads after they get home, as in the following, the UNBUSINESSLIKE way of running a house.

The Other Morning

A lady started for market with a list of the things she needed that day. She went from store to store in THE VICINITY where she was accustomed to dealing; finally she finished her marketing and went home, and By Accident picked up the paper, noticed the grocery advertisements and began making comparisons from the slip that came with her groceries, the total of which amounted to $5.37—THE VERY SAME IDENTICAL ARTICLES could have been purchased for $4.52 had she read the advertisement first, and gone shopping at the RIGHT STORE—"The Greater Hooverized."—EIGHTY-FIVE CENTS, OR NEARLY 15 PERCENT WASTED!

Many a housewife will be astonished if she compares prices, but so long as they will not take advantage of the opportunities offered them, how can they expect to make any use of the power which is theirs! WE POSITIVELY UNDERSELL ALL COMPETITION—GIVE US A TRIAL and be CONVINCED!
