Miss Fienlyson, the juvenile leader for the week, is a live girl in every way. After her introduction by Mr. Cochran she made a very fine speech in which she outlined her work and won the youngsters to her. She has promised some very good things and without doubt she will make good.

Yesterday afternoon the Chautauqua director gave an interesting lecture, according to program announcement and in the afternoon the Fillion Concert party entertained. A lecture by Captain Hindley was pronounced that class. In the evening the Fillion party again held the stage much to the delight of all and Dr. A. D. Carpenter delivered a forceful lecture on "Worlds in the Making."

Sunday Program Exceptional
Sunday's program promises a great deal of entertainment. There has been a slight change in the general scheme of things, and, instead of one man delivering all the morning lectures, there will be three for the week: by many people. The second of these comes this morning in the nature of "American Girls Americanism." There will be a popular concert by the Lewis Military quartet this afternoon and again tonight.

"Turn to the right" by Whitney, will be the lecture number to night. If there is one-day of the whole week that is better than any other, it is that which comes on today and tonight.

CHAUTAUQUA HAS GOOD OPENING

story and the other big Chautauqua topics it under for this city to have a good program regardless of what happens, that most of the Chautauquas will depend on other sources for their talent.

Mr. Cochran introduced Director Brooks, who will have charge of the work for the week, and he said that Mr. Brooks shows mighty well or his first night in La Grande. In the past Chautauqua directors have been good, fair and poor, but Mr. Brooks made his get-away with a good strong voice, a willingness to be fished and lashed back in return, a desire to please and a possession of a very good line of talk to iron out wrinkles in the program.

Clever Girls in First Number
Miss McFannough and Miss Eastman, readers and singers, gave the distinction of being the "openers" and they pleased the crowd in a grand way. Each of the girls has a burst of talent and it is well directed. They read well and sing well. Their program was not too long and to their credit, he announced they left their audience demanding more, which is always a good way to leave them.

Rev. Joseph C. Clarke, who had been a Congressional nominee for the British and American people in Detroit from 1912 to 1915, was the chief speaker of the evening. He talked on Russia and what he said was a story of a man on the ground during the different revolutions which Russia has experienced. He said the first revolution was a just one and he could see the hand of God running the play simple people who organized it. After that he claimed it was a case of trickery on the part of leaders. He wanted the Bolsheviks with a mighty swing and gave some inside light on the Russian situation which many were glad to hear. As a speaker the Reverend gentleman would take no prizes for his delivery is not good and he is inclined to be woody and without charm. But his story was well worth hearing.

The Custom Tailored Man Is Always Sure of Himself

You can always tell a custom made suit. Nobody ever asks you if it is a "hand-me-down." It is a guarantee. Men who work and know value have their clothes made by a good tailor. One of our custom made suits will last twice as long, not only because the materials are better, but also because there is a very great difference in the workmanship that goes into it.

Lives; but Officially Dead.
Sergeant Samuel Friedland, a member of the 28th Division, who was officially reported killed in action, last October, arrived home at Shennansh, Pa., the other day and was given a royal reception by the leading citizens. He was a member of a regimental band and was in the thick of the fighting at Chateau Thierry and in the Argonne woods. He was slightly wounded in the latter battle by a bursting shell which killed comrades around him. He is the son of a leading manufacturer of this city.

Stops Saves His Auto.
Charles Libby of New Oxford, Pa., fell asleep in his automobile, which he had standing on Federal street, and was suddenly aroused to see a stranger at the wheel and the engine chugging to start. Libby's awakening attracted the attention of the stranger, who suddenly realized he had a passenger and probably the owner, for he jumped and disappeared. The machine was moving at that time and before Libby could get control of the wheel, the auto had collided with another automobile.

Dies Driving His Auto.
While driving along the highway near Buckle River, N. J., a small automobile, owned and driven by Jess Knappe of Toms River, was badly battered when it crashed into a tree.

Wrecking a Couple.
Said a man with a great idea has got out of a job and desperate he will push a comfortable salary has done much good.
