To Mend an Ugly Tear.
Sometimes you are unfortunate enough to make an ugly tear in a handsome new gown. It may be mended very successfully, and if in an inconspicuous place it will not show at all. Lay the tear edge to edge, and baste across it, being careful that while the edges meet, they do not overlap. Cut a piece of rubber tissue, which may be obtained at any tailoring shop, to simply cover the tear. Lay the garment on the ironing board right side down, place the rubber over the rent, and over the rubber lay a piece of goods of the same material as that of the garment to be mended. Keep both rubber and goods perfectly smooth, and press out with a hot iron for several minutes. Now cut out the basting threads on the right side, and shave off any rough edges remaining. When there is no material of the dress on hand, a piece of lightweight woolen goods of the same color will answer. That the bottoms of men's trousers are held together in this way is a good sign that the method is practical and successful.

To Pad Embroidery.
In padding embroidery use the chain stitch. This is an especially good hint for making scalloped edges.

In making patch work, if you cut your pattern in table oil cloth instead of paper, you will find the work much more satisfactory. The oil-cloth pattern will not slip when cutting and there is no danger of snipping off a portion with the scissors.

A Dress Protector.
When the yoke of a nightdress becomes worn, cut off the nightdress skirt, take out the sleeves and sew it together across the top, leaving a small opening through which the hook of a suit hanger may be slipped, and use it to protect a nice dress hanging in the closet. Washed but seldom it will last a long time, and will be found more convenient than a bag, as it is so much easier to insert the dress without crumpling.

Use for Old Leather.
One should always save the tops of old shoes, or the gauntlets of heavy riding gloves or other pieces of leather. They are excellent as an interlining for iron holders.

Do not make the holder too large, as it is clumsy to handle. Those which are oval in shape are preferable. Cut the covering and the interlining the same size and shape, stitch all the thicknesses on the machine, close to the edge of the material, then bind with a tape or piece of seam binding.

Pongee Again.
As sure as the coming of summer pongee in some form appears. This year there are lovely pongee parasols. Some are mounted on brown frames and sticks, with no other trimming than brown cords on the handles and brown tassels on the ends. Another shows lovely blue butterflies embroidered all over the inside of the parasol, with blue cord and bino ends to the sticks.

A Footwear Fad.
The few who wish to follow fashion's whim in footwear can wear, this summer, white oxfords with black shoe laces and black stockings. This combination is sanctioned by New York's latest decree. Of course the generality of women will use the conservative all white.

IT'S FULL OF SURPRISES

"The Rough Neck," Starring Montagu Love, Will Keep You Guessing

Full of surprises and thrills is the new World Picture, "The Rough Neck," starring Montagu Love, shown at the Sherry theatre, last time today.

The story deals with John Masters, played by Mr. Love. Masters is first seen as the boss of a lumber camp. There he meets Frances Armbrage, who comes with her father to visit the camp. Master's father dies, and he then slips into his father's shoes and becomes the political leader of a great city. In this position he comes in contact with Armbrage, and finds that the latter is endeavoring to put over something on the city which he thinks is graft. He then goes after Armbrage, with the result that he greatly antagonizes Frances. He regrets this because he has fallen in love with the girl.

The manner in which Frances comes to find out that Masters is not the brute she has thought him to be, and the way in which she comes to reciprocate his love, constitute an exceedingly interesting and unusual photoplay. Barbara Castleton and Frank Mayo are featured in the cast.

Also shown Billie Rhodes in a comedy and the Pathe Review.

who rebels against being sold to a wealthy suitor for whom she has little, if any affection. When she meets a novelistic while praying in church, she looks upon him as the answer to her prayers and instantly allows upon him the wealth of her love. But this chap is eager to say the least, and when Dolores discovers that he is betrothed to another, her hot Latin blood prompts her to resort to poison as the only means for revenge upon himself upon him for his perfidy.

But it happens that a kind fate intervenes, but how, the picture itself shows best. It is sufficient to say that Dolores does not become a murderess, but on the contrary, finds love and happiness. The story of "A Daughter of the South," is exceedingly thrilling and its heart appeal is exceptionally strong. Miss Fredrick's portrayal is said to be unusually artistic and that it will prove one of her best screen performances.

HOUSEWIFE BECOMES NEW WOMAN

"All of our best doctors had given me up. I was unable to leave my bed for 16 weeks and was yellow as a pumpkin, besides the terrible stomach pains I suffered. Our druggist advised my husband to try May's Wonderful Remedy and it has saved my life, and a new woman, now." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

GLADYS BROCKWELL AS AN HONEST THIEF

Gladys Brockwell, the William Fox star, in the role of an honest crook, will appear at the Sherry theatre tomorrow only. The picture is "Falls of a Big City," which is described as an intense and powerful drama of the underworld.

The scenes have been taken with great care, and many of the crooked streets and dingy streets which appear on the screen are said to have witnessed real crimes.

"Falls of a Big City" tells the story of a woman who robs the life she had led and decides to reform. Due to her great strength of character, this woman is able to break with her old associates and carry out her plan. A pretty romance is woven into the story.

Also Patsy Aronke and Matt and Jeff.

WORLD YOU ENJOIN REVERT. BLAME WHO BREAKS YOU?

If your sweetheart proved false to you and while professing to love you made love to another, would you blame him? This is the problem which Dolores, a fortune teller, the character portrayed by beautiful Pauline Frederick, is her second Paramount picture, "A Daughter of the South," will put to the test at the Arcade Centre Saturday night. This picture is called "The South" and is one of the many interesting incidents which the authors of this remarkable photoplay have crowded into their story.

Dolores is a self-willed young beauty who struggles against

GRAIN and STOCK FARM WANTED

One large combination farm, or two separate farms will be considered. Two prosperous Montana ranchers, who have two of the best producing ranches near Lewistown, Montana, are traveling with me and are ready to trade their well paying plants for going properties in Eastern Oregon. One of the ranches is similar to the best farms near Summerville, sub-irrigated; the other resembles "Sandridge" farms, dry farming system.

I have other clients who have city and farm properties in the Willamette Valley and Waila Waila Valley to trade for properties here. Exchange made on strictly conservative cash basis. State price and describe accurately and fully, addressing
