Between Syracuse and Rochester lies a country of hills, known as drumlins, which is one of the most beautiful and unique bits of scenery in the eastern United States. The term drumlin is an Irish one and is applied to low, rolling hills of glacial origin which exist in that country, and also in parts of New York and New England. This section between Syracuse and Rochester is the very heart of the American drumlins. Most American mountains and hills were formed by violent disturbances of the earth's surface, and their rule origin is reflected in their ruggedness. But the drumlins were built by the great ice sheet which once covered all of North America. The materials of which they are made were pushed together slowly by the crawling glaciers, molded and tamped and smoothed by the great ice fingers as a child makes mud pies. The drumlins look as though they had been designed by some great intelligence with a sense of beauty, for they rise in smooth, gentle curves, like those of a perfect human body. They are remarkably uniform in height, usually a little less than 200 feet, and so smooth and leucant are their slopes that many of them are cultivated to their summits. Some of them are as round as half an apple, and others are long wells or rolls. Scattered among the hills are a number of small lakes and ponds, clear and pretty, and there is good fishing in many of them. The drumlins are a favorite playground of the people in Syracuse, Rochester and other nearby towns, but they are little known beyond the counties in which they lie. CHARM OF "MERRIE ENGLAND" What It Was in the Days of Old Can Still Be Discerned in Spots Today. Of our forefathers, nine out of ten lived in the rural parts; and the remainder, the busiest and the best of the English humanity, in towns whose darkest lane was never a mile from the orchards round the town, so that the recreation of the city dweller was by the hedgerows and riverbanks. . . . The spring and the winter come unsought into every man's life, not as they come today, wayfarers bewildered among the houseposts, feebly whispering of unknown things in far suburban lands, but fresh with bursting laugh or strong in glowing frost. The thoughts of the "Allegro" and "Penseroso" are indeed the thoughts of a rare mind, but the most vulgar slave of custom enjoyed in the days of King Charles the conditions of daily life which Milton there described; the sweet influences of the seasons, had their effect. . . . Whether they saw it or not, the Cavaliers drew their charm from the fields, and the Puritans their strength from the earth. . . . What this old England was can still be seen and felt in the combs and on the round hilltops of Somerset and Devon, in the wooded lands over which Malvern looks to the west, and in the broken, valleys that lead the lake mountains down toward the sea. —G. M. Trevelyan. Prizes for Pigmanship. Every year a pig race is held at Cronos-Murcia, in the north of France, a prize of 2,000 francs being awarded the lucky rider of the winning pig. This race is held in accordance with the terms of the will of a wealthy tradesman of the village, who died forty-two years ago. He ordered that amongst the amusements of the annual fete should be included a race with pigs, to be ridden either by men or boys. The prize, however, was not to be handed to the winning jockey, except on condition that he wore deep mourning for the deceased for two years after the race. The municipality accepted the eccentric bequest, and these singular races have been held regularly ever since. Fidelity a Necessity. The presence of a wise population implies the search for fidelity as well as for force; for can any population reach its maximum but through that wisdom which "follows" in the habitable parts of the earth. The desert has its appointed place and work; the normal engine, whose beam is the earth's axis, whose beat is the year, and whose breath is the ocean, will divide impartially to the desert king doms bound with unforgotten rock, and sweep by nearest sand, their powers of frost and fire; but the zones and lands between, habitable, will be levelled in the matter. The desire of the heart is also the beat of the eye. —Rushin.

SPECIALISTS IN RUMAN ILDS. Some More or Less Sage Reflections on the Subject of Diseases and Their Treatment. Scientists now cure rickets, dyspepsia, kidney troubles, eye and ear ailments, quill, filling or other ailments, the teeth, stomach specialists relieve toothache by treating the digestion. Headaches have nothing to do with the head, except to make it hurt; the seat of their operations is in the stomach or liver. The whole body seems to be merely a system of interfering directrices, the Philadelphia Ledger comments. Why, then, one is inclined to ask, do we have specialists? If the functions of the body, instead of being a system of such complete entanglement and interrelation, from head to foot, were really divided up into watertight compartments, then specialistic treatment would indeed be indicated. In that case each specialist would have his own compartment to look after, with a sign upon the membrane which marks the entrance to his domain. "Trespassers will be prosecuted." But what are you going to do with a body in which nephritis is directly caused by an ulcerated tooth which the dentist hasn't discovered, and the legs swell up and become useless because there is an unlocated intestinal knot? It would really seem that before a man is fitted to operate as a specialist on any part of the body he must have specialized a while over every other part of it—so that the last side door for his sign, "Specialist in All Diseases," need not be regarded as so absurd after all. The first qualification of a good specialist is to be an all-around physician. But at present the dentist has the advantage over all other specialists. Give him a chance to pull out every tooth in your head and you will be delivered forever from Bright's disease, rheumatism, pleurisy, liver complaint, neuritis, pyelitis, and virtually every other kind of disease. But what will the dentist do when he has drawn everybody's teeth? MUCH DEPENDS ON ONESELF. Good Hard Sense as Applied to Ancient Superstitions Concerning "Blue Monday." I happened to find a most entertaining old book in the free library—a dictionary of superstitions. It has three big volumes, all crammed with the fears and beliefs of the human race. Just to sample some of them that apply to Monday, here are a few: "If things commence to go wrong on Monday they will go wrong all the week, but if you have good luck on Monday you will keep it up." "Pay no bills on Monday if you can help it." (This is congenial advice and easily followed.) "If you meet a cross-eyed person on Monday you will not have good luck till Thursday." "If the sun sets clear Friday night it will rain before Monday night." "It is a bad sign to lose a tooth on Monday." (Yes, or a hand or a leg either, I should say.) "If you lose your temper three times on Monday you will have a great family quarrel." (This bit of sagacity has an excellent chance of being true, one would think. Still, there may be some men who could get away with three blow-outs and have no comeback.) To add our own observation to the collected wisdom of the ages your Monday is neither more or less than what you choose to make it when you get out of bed in the morning. You

NEW YORK, July 9.—Purchase by the United States of the R-34, the big British trans-Atlantic dirigible balloon, or its sister ship, the R-33, as a working model for dirigible development here, was urged by Henry Woodhouse, chairman of the Aero-Club of America in a statement issued here Monday. Mr. Woodhouse added that army and navy aeronautical experts favored the plan. Henry Warren Poor on "The Closing Days of the War." While the number of campers at the park has not been as large this season as in other seasons, the seating space at the evening entertainments in the pavilion has been all taken up nearly every evening. MONTANANS MAY LOCATE HERE. Wilbur F. Brock Brings Them to Inspect Ranches in Eastern Part of the State. Wilbur F. Brock, realty dealer and farmer of Summerville, accompanied by two Montana ranchers whom he is trying to locate in his part of the country, arrived in La Grande yesterday afternoon on their way overland to points in Union and Wallowa counties. One of Mr. Brock's clients wants a large stock ranch and the other wants a cash ranch. Both have fine young ranches in the Dutchman range near Lewiston, Montana, to trade on land that is situated in this section. Each of the Montana men have made considerable fortunes on their farms in Montana, one having operated there for thirty-two years, but both have decided they want to live in Oregon. The native man has a place capable of carrying about 250 head of stock and the wheat farms has 100 acres. Through Mr. Brock both men have bought five acres in Portland and left their families in the hope of starting on the automobile trip that brought them to La Grande. Mr. Brock's advertisements in the Observer as to what the clients want

Per Cent Proof. THAT STUFF OUGHT TO BE SAFE IN THERE NOW. PSSTT!

Expressible Fevers. Sunshine seems to play an important part in the lives of cows. There is no doubt that they lay much more regularly and appear generally happier when in the sunlight. The next best thing to sunshine in this part of the country is a light which gives to the cows the impression that the sun is shining. Fortunately the fowl is easily deceived, with the result that a great deal of success has attended the experiments of a well-known engineer who is building a four-house with a material similar to canvas, stained and varnished so that the house is always lighted in the daytime with light of a pleasant golden color. By means of electric light placed outside, the fowls can easily be made to think the sun is really shining; and so successful have been the results that a farm is being established on this line. Field of Distinct Vision with PUNKTAL 60° LENSES. Average Limit 32° of Ordinary Lenses. The Comparative Value of Ordinary Eye Lenses and PUNKTAL NORMAL VISION. is indicated by the above diagrams. The field of clearly defined vision through an ordinary lens of average power is represented by an angle of 32 degrees, while the scientific correction of PUNKTALS increases this angle to 60 degrees in all powers. This means that ordinary lenses give truly clear vision through the central portions only, while with PUNKTALS such results are obtained from margin to margin. These new lenses are worth investigating. Ask us for booklet, "The Eye and the Lens." We have the only Verter Refraction Case in Eastern Oregon, enabling us to correctly fit and prescribe Punktal Lenses. J. H. Peare & Son.

SALEM MAN LISTED KILLED IN ACTION. (By Associated Press to The Observer) WASHINGTON, July 9.—An army casualty list published today reports John Janzen, of Salem, Ore., son of Mrs. Eva Hachen, killed in action. DENVER, Colo., July 9.—Nine attempts were made here today by the street railway company to get their cars operating in defiance of the strike action taken by their employees the first of the week; following a reduction in the men's pay. Every attempt failed, however, a crowd of strikers forcing the crews to turn back. There was no violence. Iva Martin Goes After Position on the State Insurance Commission. SALEM, Ore., July 9.—Iva Martin, state assessor from Nevada county, is reported to be a candidate for appointment to the state insurance commission, succeeding Harvey Wells, who tendered his resignation last yesterday. Wells intends to engage in the insurance business in Portland. Governor Orin C. Post has just announced his intention of a successor to Wells. SOLDIERS WHO NEED! FOR HARVEST FIELDS. WASHINGTON, July 9.—Orders were issued by the war department yesterday to the commanding general of Camp Pike and Camp Texas, at Fort Tova, Funston, Kan., to get 500 Okla. men, to extend all emergency men possible in work in wheat fields, because of the urgent need for farm labor.
