"My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

The Fight Is On—Fight It Out.

The news reports invariably refer to the chief business now before the United States senate as a "fight." "The fight is on—fight it out." It is fundamental that no proposition of merit need fear the most severe criticism, on the theory that the right will ultimately triumph. Therefore the peace league question becomes figuratively a fighting issue. There need have been no embarrassment in the President attending the meetings of the committee on foreign relations, if the committee had so desired. It may be at variance with Washington precedence, but that is of no importance. It is nothing unusual abroad. Premier Clemenceau, who stands in almost precisely the same relation to the French government as President Wilson to the United States government, has been attending sessions of the French parliament's foreign relations committee to explain the meaning and purpose of debatable clauses in the peace treaty. There need be no excitement raised, either, over the suggestion that the President may visit the Senate chamber during debates on the treaty, to answer questions and even participate in the debates. This is recognized in every European country possessing a parliamentary system as one of the functions of the executive head of the government—to submit to "interrogation" by the law-makers and explain measures with which he is particularly concerned. Lloyd George has done this over and over again, during the war and since, with regard to his war and peace policies. He will explain and defend the peace treaty before the British parliament. The United States congress, in both branches, is notoriously long on precedent. What the nation is interested in is a business-like handling of the peace treaty. It is nothing more than practical common sense for the President and the senators to get together and work out, or fight out, the issues involved, with the nation for an audience.

One Crop Has Struck Its Gait.

Yes, it is hot and dry and according to the indisputable authority always to be relied upon, is "the worst that has ever been known." In spite of the aridness there is one crop which, if properly planted and attended to, is coming right along, and that is the old stand-by of the larger portion of the United States—corn. The leaves may shrivel and wither through the heat of the day, but there is a rallying spell and the full, dark green comes back and by the time the days grow shorter and the heat of the summer has waned there will be the full corn in the ear. There is no longer any doubt that corn is to become one of the staple crops of this valley, although only up to a few years ago no one would have said anything further than a few rows in the garden for table use. Corn is more than king this year. Corn is emperor of American agriculture. Wheat, even with its unprecedented volume and the high price guaranteed by the government and supported by world demand, is expected to bring in a mere trifle of $2,577,600,000. The corn crop, though smaller than for many years, is said to be worth, on the basis of present market prices, no less than $4,770,000,000. Thus the corn nearly doubles the value of the wheat, and if prices continue their upward trend may really do so, reaching around five billions— incomparably more than any crop was ever worth in any country. Before the war farmers used to get 50 and 60 cents a bushel for their corn. In 1917 the price rose to the dazzling figure of 90 cents. Last year it jumped to $1.35. Now it is $2, and apparently going higher. It has risen much more, proportionately, than wheat. Hereafter its importance will be more fully recognized. American farmers will plant more corn next year, instead of giving the preference to wheat, as they did this year.

Hindenburg On the Sacrificial Altar.

Hindenburg was the seventh to offer himself as the sacrificial lamb in place of the Kaiser. Hindberg began it, then the five younger sons of the war lord lined up, and then Hindy. In his letter to Foch appealing for his aid in saving Wilhelm, he makes this pleasing statement: "The war, despite the harshness necessary in conducting it, has shown by examples on both sides that high morale, soldierly thinking and feeling and a high sense of honor common to all cultured nations are not dead." It is one more evidence of the Germans' inability to see themselves as they are, and it would be funny if the breast did not swell so with righteous indignation at the presumption of it. Honor, morale, soldierly feeling "on both sides?" Hindenburg is the grand marshal of the German army, one of those directly responsible for the conduct of the war. How well has he learned his lesson, when he still can speak like this in spite of Belgium, of France, of the hate of the world. Nothing could show more plainly that personal punishment is needed. There must be no recession from the stand taken by the peace conference. The guilty must be brought to justice, master who ordered and man who obeyed. Nothing else will ever "stab their spirit broad awake."

FORUM

MUST RISE TO THE OCCASION La Grande, July 15, 1919. Editor of Observer: Dear Sir: We have all read the able editorial in Sunday's Observer on the water question, and there is no doubt about La Grande indulging every word in that article. And we are willing to let by-gones be by-gones with the city government if they can only prove to us that they fully realize how serious the water question is. If they do they have not shown it. To be unable to get sufficient water from the city's reservoir is a serious matter indeed, for to be obliged to pump unclean water from the river into the city's main, is a very serious matter, and no doubt a causing our city government great anxiety. But the most serious of all the questions confronting the city government is what are people going to drink when the Grande Ronde river has no more water in it? Better get busy now! Cut out all these printing and printing-making business, rise up to the full measure of American achievement. Settle the city water question for all time and do it now and history will applaud and honor your names. Respectfully yours, L. GARRICK.

WHAT ARE WE TO DO?

Editor Observer: What did I hear this spring? I think it was our city manager saying, "Beautiful, clean up. Now what do I hear—'Shut off using water!' Let your lawns burn up, and your gardens; and pay three times the worth of seed to start your lawns again; be careful of your bath-tub water; save it for the citizens of La Grande to drink. Do they give that to us for half price? Oh, no—full price. Bath water is valuable drinking water. Don't ask our brothers at Perry to quit bathing, for they are as clean as our brothers of La Grande. How can we expect any praise from tourists, when we give them bath water to drink. Hope each citizen of the town will wake up to the situation our water system is in. —A TAXPAYER.

DEFENDS THE SWIMMING POOL.

Perry, Oregon, July 16, 1919. La Grande Evening Observer: I caught by the yesterday's edition of your paper that a worthy warrior announced that a petition be taken up to prevent the lumber jacks of Perry from indulging in the delectable pleasures of swimming in the Grande Ronde river. This gentleman says that he has noticed "a lot of water" but he has been interested in the lumber-jacks that out of his mouth and for that reason he would deny the pleasure of swimming to those worthy tired lumber-jacks. Would ask this gentleman if he should be using our bath water for drinking purposes. Would suggest that he come to Perry and have a plunge and get a wash in the old swimming hole, and then he would witness all objections to the lumber jack bath and admit that he liked it. Respectfully,

ME FOR THE SWIMMING HOLE. GIFT TO MUSEUM APPRECIATED.

LONDON, June 26.—(Associated Press Correspondence.)—The gift by J.P. Morgan, of New York, to the Victoria and Albert museum of the collection of stained glass, which occupied five windows of one of the corridors, caused widespread satisfaction here. The collection is of peculiar interest to students and designers. The earliest items of the glass are four small panels of French glass of the latter part of the 13th century. Two of these represent scenes from the "Temptation of the Wilderness." The subjects of the other panels, evidently contemporary, are the "Miracle of the Feeding of the Five Thousand," and a scene from the life of St. Nicholas. The rest is entirely of German and Swiss origin, and provide material for studying the distinctive developments of art, particularly in the Rhine valley, towards the close of the Gothic period and during the Renaissance.

John McKinney, who married the Brewers years ago, is now plotting the Beaumont club of the Texas League.

Frank Schulte's club played to 6,000 fans in its opening contest at home. Beaumont is a red-hot ball town.

Charley Herzog is playing a good game at second base for Boston. He and Maraville work well together.

Billy Stewart, Louisville's new pitcher, was in the navy and last year played with Jack Harry's team of Jackies.

The purchase of Derrick from Indianapolis by Seattle shows Bill Clymer still believes in his old association acquaintances.

Ross Young is 25 per cent better this year than he was last. He is hitting wonderfully and playing an alert game in every respect.

Jimmy Austin keeps right on going, like Tennyson's famous brook. Many rookies wish this veteran would fade away, but Jimmy says he's just starting.

Manager Leo Pohl of the Cleveland Indians is enthusiastic over Harry Lane, who has, he says, a pair of hands that always seem to be where the ball is.

The Chicago fans are said to have been riding Leslie Mann pretty hard. Just why is not clear, unless it was that his holding out tactics were advertised too much.

Little Cuto, the Cuban cigar, is playing the outfield for Moran's Reds every now and then. He can play any position on the team and do a good job of it, too.

The Louisville club has given Catcher Frank Crossin his release, at his own request. Crossin has just returned from France, where he served for almost a year, and he will take his time about seeking a baseball engagement.
