MODART CORSET Front Laced

WHY LOOK OLDER THAN YOU ARE?

It is astonishing how many women through lack of attention are wearing corsets that give a more mature appearance to the figure than it should have, and consequently they appear to be five or ten years older than they are.

It is possible to readily improve that condition if you will use our corset department and get a trial fitting of the MODART front laced corset.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Will Handle Big Crop

William Bollons, O-W R. & N. superintendent, with headquarters at La Grande, is in Portland this week attending a general conference of railway officials. Mr. Bollons says that all arrangements have been made by the railway companies to handle the largest wheat crop in the history of the road. According to the railway estimates the gross number of bushels will be far greater than usual, as the farmers throughout the Eastern Oregon wheat belt have planted every available acre in order to get the price made sure by government regulation. While here Mr. Bollons will also visit his son, who has recently returned from overseas.—Oregon Journal.

Professor Visits

Myron B. Hockenberry, a former resident of Portland, but now instructor of sciences at the Fresno Junior college, Fresno, Cal., is in the city, visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hockenberry. Mr. Hockenberry is connected with the Oregon and Washington Teachers' agency of this city and will devote his summer vacation to looking after its affairs in Oregon. Mr. Hockenberry was connected with La Grande schools a few years ago and is well known throughout this part of the county.—Oregon Journal.

Pleaded Not Guilty

Charles Connors, alleged robber of the Haines bank, yesterday entered a plea of not guilty to the crime with which he is charged before Judge Anderson. Connors was indicted on the charge by the last grand jury before he was captured, and his trial, unless he changes his plea, will be held at the next term of court. He was not represented by legal advisers.—Baker Democrat

Two Odd Frocks for Afternoon

When costumers have busied themselves for weeks turning out numbers of beautiful and graceful afternoon frocks they come to a place where they take time to explore occasional by-paths of fancy. Then we are treated to a few odd and sometimes amusing ideas in frocks of varieties quite different from those that have gone before. The late arrivals lend spice to the styles and sometimes prove to be the forerunners of new models. After a survey of this season's afternoon frocks the two models pictured here are more than likely to be pronounced "odd," but with the concession that they are pleasing.

Satin and georgette were made for each other and join forces in the quaint-looking frock on the figure at the left of the picture. A plain satin skirt is the foundation for a short, full tunic of georgette, which in turn supports three bands of satin. In the bodice the order is reversed and the crepe provides the under portion and furnishes the long sleeves, the short-sleeved peasant waist worn over it has a double row of small, round, satin-covered buttons down the front, set very close together. All its edges are piped with satin-covered cord. This frock must stand or fall on its own merits, as it has nothing in the way of precedent to lean upon in the season's showings.

The dress at the right starts out with a plain skirt of satin and finishes up with a very short tunic and bodice of the same material. For once georgette crepe plays no part in the story. The tunic is shorter at the left side than at the right and manages to make place for three bands of satin and also contrives to look frivolous. A full bodice and wide, crushed grille lend such a flavor of youthfulness to this frock that its frivolity is taken as a matter of course, and the deep flaring cuffs that finish the sleeves prove so unexpected as to be amusing.

Business is Reported Good

L. M. Jensen, manager of the Grande Ronde lumber company's branch establishment in La Grande, reports that business in his line is good. Mr. Jensen has added coal to his line of fuel and for the handling of this business scales are being installed at the office. A spur from the main line has also been established to facilitate the delivery of building material and other supplies handled by his company.

Well at Palmer Mill

Owing to the bad condition of the city water, the Palmer mill authorities have started work on a well to supply the mill men. It was begun yesterday and is well under way today. If a few of these wells were dug it would relieve the situation immensely.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

your committee, to whom was referred the solemn duty of forming a set of resolutions of the death of our late brother, Chas. E. Andrews, would respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Great Supreme Ruler of the Universe has, in his infinite wisdom removed from our midst, a worthy and esteemed brother, Chas. E. Andrews, and Whereas, his long and faithful membership in this society makes it eminently fitting that we record our appreciation of him, therefore, be it resolved:

That the sudden removal of our brother from among our midst leaves a vacancy and a sorrow that will be keenly realized by all the members and friends of the organization.

Resolved, That with deep sympathy with the bereaved relatives of the deceased, we express our hope that even so great a loss to us all may be overruled for good by Him who foreshadows all things well.

Resolved, That as a just tribute to our departed brother that we drap our charter in mourning for thirty days. Furthermore, be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of this organization, a copy printed in the local paper, and a copy forwarded to the bereaved Sister.
