BIG GUNS ON THE PACIFIC FLEET

These Weapons Were the Great Accomplishment of American Navy in the War.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29 — Not the least interesting feature of the new Pacific fleet is its fourteen inch gun, twelve of which are mounted on Admiral Hugh Rodman's flagship, the New Mexico and several other ships of the fleet.

Design and construction of the 14-inch naval gun or railway mountings on the western front was one of the great accomplishments of the American navy during the war. The guns hurled 1400 pound projectiles far behind the German lines and were a strong factor in reducing the St. Mihiel salient.

The gun was designed, built and delivered in less than four months. On December 26, 1917 according to Secretary Daniels' official report not a drawing had been started. On April 25, 1918, a completed gun was rolled on its own wheels to Sandy Hook Proving grounds for long range tests.

The guns, Secretary Daniels, said, originally were intended for the new battle cruisers, but a change in design of the vessels made the guns available for other use and it was recommended they be mounted for land service.

The guns were mounted on carriages which could be moved freely over the French railroads. With them went their navy crews. Ten cars were required for each gun—machine shops cars, armored ammunition cars, kitchen, berthing, crane and wireless cars. The batteries were sufficiently mobile that if an order came to move while in action they could be on their way in an hour.

The fourteen-inches had greater range than any gun ever before placed on mobile mountings. The German guns which fired on Paris were "freaks". They were built on permanent steel and concrete foundations. Their projectile was small and especially built for long flight. This reduced their efficiency and while they had moral effect their military value was small. Because of their permanent position their location was discovered by allied aviators and the guns silenced. The German 15-inch gun in Flanders also became famous for its long range bombardment of Dunkirk and other allied bases, but neither could be shifted from base to base without delay of weeks. The American fourteen-inch gun could move from one end of France to another and had a range of thirty miles. At range of 22,000 yards it pierces armor successfully.

World's Urgent Need.

The state will be saved if the Lord puts it into the heart of the average man so to shape his life that the state shall be worth saving, and only on those terms. We need civic righteousness.—Theodore Roosevelt.

ANOTHER SATURDAY POST STORY FOR BERT LYTELL

"The Lion's Den," Is Latest Metro Play to Be Shown at the Sherry Theatre.

"The Lion's Den," the latest Metro play in which Bert Lytell is starred, will be the feature at the Sherry theatre today and tomorrow.

This is the second story from the pen of Frederick Orin Bartlett, the noted author, in which Bert Lytell has appeared—the first being "The Spender," a production which caused countrywide acknowledgement for its unusual charm. Both these stories first became popular through the medium of the Saturday Evening Post.

"The Lion's Den" tells of a young clergyman who desires to save the boys of his flock from the evils of the street by offering them, instead, a well-equipped club. How his project seems doomed to failure through the lack of funds, and his ultimate decision to enter the "lion's den of commerce," and earn the money himself are incidents which makes a play of unusual strength and human appeal. It is tense with gripping moments though generously lightened by flashes of humor distinctive to the young actor. There is also a romance of charm and beauty which crowns the efforts of the young clergyman with deserving happiness.

Mr. Lytell is surrounded by a cast of noteworthy players, among whom are Alice Lake, Joseph Kilgour, Edward J. Connelly, Augustus Phillips, Howard Crampton, Seymour Rose, Alice Newland and Mother Anderson. The play was directed by George D. Baker.

Also the comedy, "Too Many Wives," will be shown.

SPLENDID VAUDEVILLE BILL AT THE ARCADE WEDNESDAY

The four-act Hippodrome bill that will be the attraction at the Arcade Wednesday comes highly recommended as one of the best bills as a whole that has been over the circuit this season.

Stanley & Stanley, Rope Whirling Comiques.—The blending of timely comedy in song and story with expert handling of the cowboy's lariat, is the novel act presented by Stanley & Stanley, a man and comely woman, who are not only garbed in the plainsman's attire, but are of the atmosphere suggesting bucking bronchos, unruly steers and all that goes to make up the life of the cowboy. There is displayed in this act unusual skill in the manipulation of ropes or lariats in various lengths, one of them being 75 feet long, while all during this time there is kept up a running fire of appropriate comedy talk and song. The cowboy as a figure in American life, claims the devotion of the small boy to whom he is the ideal hero, whom no one can replace. This adoration extends to all our people, which probably accounts for the enthusiasm greeting the appearance of Wm. S. Hart and similar characters. Stanley & Stanley are a good representative of the "Cowboy Couple."

Bethew & Morton.—A versatile comedy pair present an amusing rural offering which they call "I'll Be Gol Darned." This is a very funny skit in which the plot of the vehicle is built around a case of mistaken identity, which furnishes much laughter throughout the act. They are both clever, quaint comedy dispensers, and their witty remarks of a local character are unusually funny, being good vocalists. Their comedy numbers are put over with a dash that makes them popular with their audience.

Lavigne Sisters.—A duo of clever girls who sing, dance and make several changes in their offering which they bill as "Those Two Girls," open with a becomingly breezy manner. They both make a change, each furnishing a single number that brings them both on in a soft-shoe dance that is most cleverly performed and shows a remarkable knowledge of terpsichore. A song and dance follows that gives them opportunity for the presentation of more clever dancing of the kind the present generation loves to witness.

Ed & Flo Brown offer a splendid singing and talking and dancing act. Miss Brown is a handsome woman with a fine voice and her songs alone would make the act noteworthy; while the lively little Eddie, who works with her adds a touch of comedy and an element of good knock-about dancing too. Place the specialty in the first rank of good acts!

TOURISTS COMPLAIN OF BEING HELD UP

Assert That They Were Asked to Pay an Exorbitant Price for Supplies by a Local Concern.

La Granders have been hearing many nice things about themselves and their city of late since tourists from other states began passing through on their summer treks. This is a nice city and there is a fine place to spend the night in camp, enjoying the cool, breeze off the mountains, after the tiring heat of the day, and the majority of us treat he stranger right and make him want to come again; but here when we are enjoying most the fragrance of the bouquets that have been handed us we are pricked by the thorn of the rose. Some of our citizens, it is said, are not treating the strangers to behavior honest and loyal [illegible].

A couple of days ago there were a couple of automobile parties of tourists from Clinton, Illinois, in town for a brief stay on their way west. They needed new inner tubes and they went to a local house to get them. They returned to their machines without them, vowing that they would spend [illegible] on the road repairing old tubes before they would consent to being robbed. They must think here that this is the only town on the map — that we have never bought tubes anywhere else and do not know the price of them. They said. And though they had been expressing a few minutes before their pleasure at being in La Grande they climed in their cars and went to hunt another town where the men who sell automobile tubes would not endeavor to demonstrate the stretching quality of their portionate extent.

If La Grande has one dealer of this calibre, both the dealer and the city are unfortunate. The tourists may have been grousing. Prices may have taken a jump since the last time he had purchased a tube, as prices have such a way of doing in these times, but it may have been that his complaint was justified. Only the dealer knows. May it be that if his was the mistake he will see that the case mentioned shall be the only time a tourist shall have cause for such complaint against La Grande.

TIRE CONSERVATION—

is important. It is made possible by vulcanizing which prolongs the life of old, worn tires and tubes and avoids the necessity of buying new ones at frequent intervals. Our vulcanizers are especially skilled experts in tire conservation. If it is at all possible to save that tire, we can do it.
