"My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

A Caravan of Motor Trucks For Remembrance.

On July 7 there started from the White House a procession of motor trucks. Their final destination is San Francisco.

These are the trucks which took the place to a very great extent, of the sacred army mule in hauling supplies and munitions in this country and abroad during the war.

The war department is responsible for the trip, the main object of which is to arouse national interest in a series of "Roads of Remembrance," roads stretching away across the country, dedicated to the remembrance of the boys who drove the trucks in the war, and their comrades.

The idea of memorial roads is not new, but now it is proposed by the war department that the route followed by the trucks shall be the line of the road.

The forestry department is urging that the roads be lined with trees, and this is the gospel which will be preached as the caravan winds its way westward.

Cheer the trucks as they pass by, for they made history! And let each state build its roads and plant its trees. No nobler tie could join the past and future.

Majority Are Jap Children In California.

In a phase of California's Japanese vacation which is new to most Americans, Mrs. P. H. Johnston, son and daughter, came in Monday from their home at Twin Falls, Idaho, and will spend a few days here.

signs of losing his control of the Columbia river, and of the state as a whole. But there is unquestionably a menace there, of which this particular bit of evidence is more convincing than usual to the rest of the country. It might be well for the government to look into the matter, and ask Japan whether she considers that she is keeping the letter or the spirit of that "gentlemen's agreement."

An Alcoholic Drink That Is Not Banned.

The House bill for the enforcement of war time prohibition and the federal prohibition amendment is drastic, especially in its insistence that liquor containing more than one-half of one per cent is intoxicating. But there is one strange exception made from which thirsty souls, particularly in the rural sections, may derive solace. Cider is excepted. Not sweet cider, but hard cider. This, as too many men know to their cost, is a potent beverage, whose effects are some times disastrous beyond what might be expected from its alcoholic content. And that content, as laboratory inquiries have established, is not at all insignificant.

Department of Agriculture experts testify that fermented cider contains 8 to 10 per cent alcohol, which is twice as much as there used to be in beer. Nevertheless congress in its wisdom decrees that beer is deadly and cider is harmless.

It is probably futile to inquire too closely into the operations of the congressional mind on this matter. Perhaps the "drys" were fearful of making the law too drastic, and chose to create a sort of safety-valve to ease the "wet" pressure and avoid retaliations. Or perhaps the congressmen feared the farmer vote.

At any rate, the exception stands, unless the senate rules it out. And thus cider steps into a new and honored place—or dishonored, if you prefer—in the list of American drinks. Henceforth it is to be the only beverage obtainable that is capable of inducing—not intoxication, of course, congress has settled that—but such transient exhilaration as people have been wont to obtain from alcohol.

It needs no prophet to foretell a big demand for cider and an eager market for every cider-apple produced. Those apples will not be left rotting on the ground next fall.

LAWFUL TO RAISE AND SELL WILD GAME

SEATTLE, Wash., July 29—It now is lawful in the state of Washington, under a law passed by the recent legislature to raise for sale and serve at public meals various kinds of wild game. Raising of wild birds or animals and the serving of them at restaurants is under state license, a fee of $10 for the first year being charged and $5 annually thereafter. Thus, for the first time in the state, the fastidious diner may call for fried China pheasant or roast duck or venison—provided persons are found who see a profit in raising the wild game for such purposes.

PORTLAND MAN IS HONORED

JUNEAU, Alaska, June 20—(By Mail)—In honor of Robert Barron of Portland, Oregon, well known in Juneau, the highest peak of Mansfield Peak (Ala. Alaska, has been named Mount Robert Barron. The Portland boy, who was the son of James T. Barron, head of a packing company on Funter bay, was one of the first American aviators to lose his life near Philadelphia trying to save fellow aviators from death.

Mount Robert Barron, named so by Dr. E. Lester Jones head of the coast and geodetic survey, is situated off Southeastern Alaska, overlooking Funter bay and the town of Funter. It has an altitude of 4,999 feet.
