THE SILVER KING THRILLING PLAY NOW IN PICTURES

William Faversham, Celebrated Actor, Appears in the Star Role

After holding the stage in England and this country for more than thirty years, "The Silver King," the famous melodrama of England life, written by Henry Arthur Jones and Henry Herman, has been pictured with William Faversham in the stellar role, and the great Paramount-arts-craft special picture will be shown at the Arcade theatre tomorrow and Saturday.

"The Silver King" deals with the adventures of Wilfred Denver, an English country squire, who is ruined by a supposed friend in a ruse for cutting him out in the affection of a beautiful girl whom Denver marries. Years later, Wilfred returns to Denver to see the success of his scheme, the result being that he is impoverished. When Denver hears Wilfred is plotting over the success of his scheme, he goes to the latter's house at night with the intention to kill him, but Wilfred is slain by the leader of a band of robbers.

Denver is suspected of the crime, but he escapes arrest by fleeing to this country and he amasses a fortune in a Western mining camp. His wife and friends, as well as the police, believe him to have been killed in a railway accident and when he reappears in England under an assumed name, exciting suspicion, Denver's innocence of murder is established and he is reunited with his family.

Mr. Faversham is supported by Barbara Castleton, who plays opposite to him; Warburton Gamble, John Sonderland and other well known players.

"COMMON PLAY" BIG PLAY; BIG INSPIRATION

Ellen O'Grady, a Deputy Commissioner of Police, New York City, after seeing a private showing of "Common Clay," A. H. Woods' screen production of the Harvard prize play, had something to say of the sex problem of stage, screen and story. She is one of the foremost women of the world in her line of service and observation; and the regulations of the Metropolitan Police Department show that she has "supervision of all conditions relating to white slave traffic; crimes and offenses affecting women and girls; social welfare; and the protection of juveniles."

And so she detailed the things that intimately encompass "Common Clay," Cleveo Kinkadee's masterpiece, in which Jane Cowl appeared for an entire year in New York City; and the beautiful screen version in which Finkle Ward is said to have done the superb emotional work of her life. On the stage it was played in every city of the United States and Canada and the film version, if the reviews are a guide, will have even a wider success. It was at once booked by the Rivoli Theatre, New York by Director, Hugo Riesenfeld, who considered it a 100 per cent picture and human drama.

Commissioner O'Grady, to whom it seemed like a page from her own observations, was so impressed by it that in a discussion with Miss Ward, after the exhibition, she suggested that she go to meet all the moral problems of life, the Ten Commandments might be fitted.

"It is, indeed, a great idea!" exclaimed Miss Ward. "I think it would make a series with a universal appeal and add an enduring dignity to the screen. If anything that I have accomplished in my work in 'Common Clay' has moved you to this inspiration, I shall consider in a long while is "Cupid's Day Off," that I have scored one of the greatest spiritual and artistic triumphs of my life."

"Sa Camille" is superior to any other front lace corset, for without the Ventile features no corset can possibly be just as good. It contains the master touch of scientific construction.

"Common Clay," which is one of the notable screen productions of the year, is in seven reels and will be shown at the Sherry theatre today and tomorrow. It is many times more vivid, gripping and convincing than the stage presentation. It is a woman's play, with a theme that commands the interest of all mankind.

Also shown a very interesting Pathé review.
