

Among Aristocrats in Footwear

If Cinderella could revisit a world grown more proficient in making footwear since her day, she would scorn her famed glass slippers as soon as she could make comparisons. Their rivals of today are something to wonder at.

All the world appears to be coming here to buy our footwear and leather is still mounting skyward in price. Those who are already provided with shoes for a year ahead are going to save money. When the prices get a bit higher we may expect to see cloth shoes with composition or rubber soles taking the place of leather.

The group of slippers shown here, together with silk hosiery and a trifle of frivolous decoration for the ankle, comprises plain satin, satin and cloth and silver brocaded slippers for full dress wear. The white and silver brocaded slippers are worn with white silk hose having the re-enforcement of the heel woven in, in a triangle at the back instead of a square. These pumps have prettily shaped French heels, not too high for comfort, and no decoration. The beautiful black pumps shown just below are equally plain but show an inset at the back in beige color. But these two-color pumps are less popular than those that are all black. The thin black silk hose shown with them have graceful insets of chantilly lace at the front.

The strapped slipper with broad tongue that completes the group is a novelty. It is fastened by a strap across the instep with a single button, and the tongue indicates that this shoe may have been intended for more practical service than the others. If this is the case these slippers are in the wrong company; for the pretty gossamer, with pendant beads worn about the leg is altogether unpractical and thoroughly frivolous. However it is pretty and that is excuse enough for wearing it.

The Bookworm

Four copies of Roberts' Rules of Order may be found in the public library. All but one are the latest edition. They were bought in response to a large and sudden demand for works on parliamentary practice. But enthusiasm for the subject quickly died down, although the books are still here.

Books recently placed on the shelves of the public library are:

"List of Books on Automobiles and Motorcycles," by A. Blessing.

"Care and Repair of Gasoline and Oil Engines," in Machinery's reference series.

"Dyke's Automobile and Gasoline Engine Encyclopedia."

"Valves and Valve Gears; Volume 2, Gasoline, Gas and Oil Engines," by F. D. Furman.

"Gas, Gasoline and Oil Engines," 23 edition, by Hiscox.

The latest volume of the new International Year Book, for 1918, has been received.

Other volumes recently purchased are:

Addams—"Spirit of Youth and the City Streets."

Aldrich—"Told in a French Garden."

Deane—"David, His Life and His Times."

Hyde—"The Five Great Philosophies of Life."

Irving—"The Adventures of Captain Bonneville."

Kent—"Historical Bible."

McGilvray—"Half Century Among the Siamese and Lao."

Miller—"In the Wilds of South America."

Munell—"A Color Notation."

Nicholson—"The Valley of Democracy."

Osborn—"Men of the Old Stone Age."

Rauschenbusch—"Christianizing the Social Order"; "Theology for the Social Gospel."

Tarbell—"New Ideals in Business."

Loti—"Siam."

Young—"Siam," (Peep at many lands.)

Is Found Gagged and Bound Behind Billboard in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 8.—When found, bound and gagged, behind a downtown billboard Thursday afternoon, H. J. Brown, a 26-year-old messenger employed by the Alamo National bank of this city, told the police he had been robbed of $25,000.

Brown had been sent to the National Bank of Commerce, where he received cash on two checks, according to bank officials.
