Fred Siegel, brilliant young actor, who will appear at the Arcade Theatre, supported by an excellent company, in "It Pays to Advertise," Monday night, August 11.

he leaves home as the result of a quarrel, and through a series of amusing adventures finds himself, after an incredibly short time, the rough and ready sheriff of a wild western town. Riding is difficult, handling a gun is harder still, and reforming the town seems hard at the outset, but isn't.

It is when Dick is riding with Ross (played by Ora Carow), a true daughter of the mountains and plains, that he voices the confession that riding is not his forte. Just what he means by shock absorbers is not hard to imagine. He is sore all over. But when the time comes Dick by no means is a tenderfoot. He is able to cope with the most desperate situation, as every well-ordered screen hero should.

Wise John.

John was able to persuade Ruth to do most things he desired. One day the children, with their little cousin Edward, decided to draw pictures. Edward and John each found a pencil, but Ruth was still without one until her mother came to her aid with a big new pencil. John, whose pencil was a blue stub, looked longingly at the new one and then in a coaxing voice said: "Ruthie, don't you want this nice pretty blue one? It just matches your eyes." Needless to say, John secured the long pencil.

Matter of Adaptability.

Adaptability works toward contentment in the most things he desired. One day the children, with their little cousin Edward, decided to draw pictures. Edward and John each found a pencil, but Ruth was still without one until her mother came to her aid with a big new pencil. John, whose pencil was a blue stub, looked longingly at the new one and then in a coaxing voice said: "Ruthie, don't you want this nice pretty blue one? It just matches your eyes." Needless to say, John secured the long pencil.

hides him from the police. Jacques is sent to search the room and although he has seen Treffrey enter he has— for Memory's sake.

Later Jacques and Memory go on a deer-hunting expedition and become separated in the woods. Memory, after tramping many miles finds herself at the Raven Roost—a disreputable inn, where Treffrey had taken refuge. Blake, proprietor of the inn takes Memory for a dancing-girl he is expecting. Treffrey says that she has come to marry him. Blake is enraged and demands that Memory go through with the marriage. At the point of a revolver the ceremony is performed.

Jacques arrives and Treffrey's wedding day almost ends in being his burial day. Jacques takes Memory away and on the way home accidentally shoots Warren Sherman, a young man from the States who has come North to make good. He is taken to the Baird home where he slowly convalesces, during which time a strong affection grows between him and Memory. Jacques sees the condition of things and goes in search of Treffrey. While he is gone Treffrey returns and demands Memory as his wife. A chase on dog-sleds through the snow and a flight the like of which has never before been seen on the screen, ends this dramatic picture of the Northwest. "Jacques of the Silver North" which comes today to the Arcade theatre.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE."

To Be First Offering by Fred Siegel Stock Company, at Arcade Theatre, Monday Night, Aug. 11.

The playgoers of La Grande will be glad to know that Meyers & Ford have succeeded in securing the Fred Siegel Stock Company to present a series of up-to-the-minute plays in La Grande at the Arcade Theatre every Monday night, beginning August 11. This company is considered to be one of the strongest organizations of its kind in the west. The company has just completed a 20 weeks engagement at Boise, Idaho, playing to crowded houses continually. Press and public proclaim this company to be as good as any of the attractions playing at 82.

Fred Siegel has surrounded himself with an exceptionally strong company of players and will present only the latest New York successes, at popular prices. Messrs. Meyers & Ford look for a record-breaking crowd on Monday night, when the Fred Siegel Stock Company will open their engagement, presenting Geo. M. Cohan's great three-act comedy, "It Pays to Advertise." Prices, 35c, 50c, 75c. Seats now on sale.

TOM MOORE PROVES THAT HE'S NO TENDERFOOT

"Let's walk a bit. I left my shock absorbers at home," says Tom Moore in his new Goldwyn picture, "Go West, Young Man." The incident is only one of the amusing moments in the comedy drama which comes to the Sherry Theatre today and tomorrow. It grows out of the unusual situation in which young Dick Latham finds himself.

Jacques La Rouse, Canuck trapper with a song in his heart and a laugh upon his lips, loves Memory Baird with a love that is beyond human comprehension. He asks nothing but to make her happy, to make the part of the earth she inhabits a pleasanter place to live in, the suspicion to her heart and she to give—give—give. He wants no return. His devotion to her is like that of a dog to its master.

In the far, cold North country, Memory lives with her father, Don Baird, pioneer settler and owner of a trading post. When Joseph Treffrey, a product of elite society but a fugitive in the North, seeks to make the part of the earth she inhabits a pleasanter place to live in, the suspicion to her heart and she
