DEATH OF KIND HEARTED WOMAN IS MOURNED

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—"Mother" Dick is dead.

Grivington street children joined in mourning the loss of their beloved friend, Rebecca Dick, ninety-five years old, who has just died at the home of her son. Hundreds of children joined in the long funeral procession that made its way slowly over the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday to Mount Zion cemetery, in Brooklyn, where she was laid to rest.

Pushcart peddlers always had a good word for "Mother" Dick, and many of them did not take their places in the long line along the street yesterday, but went to pay their last respects to her.

Those who have real troubles on the East Side, in the Ghetto, know that the fifty-family house at 69 Rivington street was not a place of profiteering.

"This is the House of Babies; no rents are raised here."

That was the legend on a sign which was put up by Max Dick, at the instance of his mother.

"Mother" Dick was the patron saint of all the children at 69 Rivington street. It was known as the house of babies, because there were more than 200 of them living there. Every day she went among the families in the house to see that no one should want; and before every important holiday on the Jewish calendar she took especial pains to befriend the needy.

Toward sundown, every day, she would gather the children around her and give them sweetmeats.

About twenty-five years ago Rebecca Dick came to New York from Tarnopol, Austria. Five years before her son had come, and she came to join him, with his sister, who is Mrs. Tillie Mintzer. The son caught the spirit of his mother, and the home at 69 Rivington street achieved fame. Every summer Max Dick held a festival in honor of his tenants and their children, and when a child was born the happy parents received a prize from their landlord.

JAPANESE OFFICIALS WARY OF FOREIGNERS

Policemen Make Careful Search of All Visitors Regardless of Standing

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—Referring to the sensitiveness of the Japanese authorities about the movement of "suspicious foreigners" who arrive in this county, the Jiji says that no doubt the authorities are wisely careful to prevent the influx of such dangerous ideas as Bolshevism and socialism, but the result is that foreigners who are very favorably inclined toward Japan are not infrequently subjected to a system of vexatious spying or shadowing.

The Jiji relates that recently an American whose name is well known in business and economic circles in America, while on his way from Nagasaki to Tokio, is said to have been subjected to examination at the hands of half a dozen different detectives. The American who is a friend of Baron Shibusawa, in the course of an interview with him, drew his attention to what had occurred during his journey and said that such an experience, if suffered by other foreigners, is likely to send them away with a very unfavorable impression of Japan.

The Jiji also refers to the case of Dr. Frederick Starr, professor at the Chicago university, who is well-known among the Japanese by the name of "Ofuda Hakase" or Charm Doctor, owing to the great interest evinced by him in the collection of charms from Japanese temples. The American professor recently arrived in Japan. As soon as Dr. Starr landed at Yokohama the local police authorities instructed a police officer to follow him to Tokio. Later, when Dr. Starr left for a trip to Mount Fuji, the police authorities supplied, unasked, a police escort to the American visitor, and the officer accompanied him all the way to the top of the mountain. Dr. Starr is at present staying at Koza and his residence, says the newspaper is unnecessarily closely watched by the lynx-eyed police.

The Jiji adds: "It is the height of absurdity that the Japanese authorities should evince suspicion about the movements of such men and detail detectives to keep watch over them."

The Methodist church will have a rummage sale in basement of the church, Wednesday afternoon, October 15. 10-12-2t

BOOST PLANS FOR COUNTRY LIFE

[By Associated Press to The Observer]

LONDON, Sept. 10.—More than 350 English villages have recently organized branches of the Village Clubs Association, a union of rural community societies through which it is planned to make country life more attractive. In each of these communities, clubhouses have been constructed varying in size and appointment from a simple reading room, which may also be made to serve as a general meeting place, to Nettlebed's pretentious village hall which offers men's and women's dressing rooms, library, reading and billiard rooms, a play shed, skittle alley, rifle range, kitchen and cookery school.

In the organization of these clubs four points are given prime consideration—the eligibility of both men and women to membership, that the clubs shall be non-political and non-sectarian, that they shall be self-supporting and that they shall be administered by a committee elected by the members.

SEARCHING FOR A LOST CONTINENT

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 12.—Search for evidence supporting the theory of a lost Pacific continent is being prosecuted in the Hawaiian Islands, the South Seas and along the west coast of South America.

Professor Douglas R. Campbell of the botany department of Stanford University thinks that in certain specimens of ferns found on the island of Hawaii he has established the fact that at some period there was land connection between the Hawaiian Islands to the south and west through to the Malay peninsula. Professor T. A. Jaggar, Jr., in charge of the federal observatory at Kilauea volcano, agrees with Professor Campbell's theory, asserting that there are geological indications that the islands of the Pacific were once connected.

Seeking data in support of Professor Campbell's theory, Professor W. A. Bryan of the College of Hawaii is now touring the west coast of South America and the South Sea Islands.

WEST POINT CADETS ENTERTAINED IN ROME

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 14.—The cadets of the graduating class of the West Point military academy, who came here to see and study the battlefields of the great war, have been welcomed and lavishly entertained with luncheons, banquets, drills and dances in ten Italian cities. Colonel John R. West, who commands the cadets was compelled to respond to 51 addresses of welcome in seventeen days.

The fetes in honor of the Americans began at Leghorn where the cadets landed in Italy and where they were guests of the Royal Naval academy at an elaborate luncheon at which addresses were delivered by officers of the Italian navy and by Colonel West.

In Rome, famous archaeologists and artists acted as guides for the cadets in sight-seeing tours and exhibitions of bombing machine gun work, cavalry charges, trench-knife fighting and an artillery drill was given at the Macao barracks. A luncheon given in honor of the young lieutenants in the Royal Military academy was attended by Premier Nitti, General Albricci, secretary of war, and General Diaz, chief of the Italian general staff, all of whom delivered speeches.

Thence, the West Point special train proceeded to Naples, Terni, Florence, Modena, Venice, Como, Turin and Genoa, in all of which places they were cordially received and entertainments were given in their honor. The cadets then departed for a visit to the Italian front.

Lieutenant Ellis Williamson of La Grande, is a member of this West Point cadet party, now touring Italy.

Loyalty Well Rewarded.

A Parisian with a sense of humor bequeathed 300 francs to each relative who abstained from attending his funeral. One poor relative insisted on following the deceased to the grave; and her loyalty was rewarded for by a codicil to his will the deceased left the residue of his large fortune to those relatives who were prepared to sacrifice the 300 francs.
