

IN THREE WEEKS GAINS 14 POUNDS

"I'll Always Bless the Day I Began Taking Taniae," Says Mrs.
Whitney.

"It's the actual truth, I've gained fourteen pounds since I began taking Taniae three weeks ago, and it's simply wonderful the way this medicine has completely restored me to health in so short a time," was the statement made to a Taniae representative the other day by Mrs. Lucy Whitney who lives at 945 East 48th st., Los Angeles, Cal.

"I was in a miserable run down condition, and what little strength I had was dwindling away. My appetite left me and the little I ate didn't agree with me. My nerves were all upset, any little thing out of the ordinary that happened irritated me and at night I would have awful nightmares. For days and weeks at a time I have gone on half the sleep I ought to have had. My housework was a drudge. I couldn't half do it and several times I thought of giving up entirely. I tried so many different medicines and treatments without relief, and all the time my health was getting worse. Finally I kept running down and getting so weak that I actually weighed only eighty-two pounds, and I became alarmed at my condition.

"One of my friends, a neighbor, suggested that I try Taniae, as it had helped her so wonderfully. I was willing to give it a trial so I told my husband to get me a bottle. To my dying day I'll bless the day I first got this medicine, for it's the finest thing I ever saw and the only medicine that ever did me any good. I began to improve from the very start and have taken only two bottles, but I've actually gained fourteen pounds, and I'm glad to be able to tell you the wonderful good this Taniae has done me. I've gotten completely over my nervousness and I can sleep like a child every night. My appetite has come back, and I can eat just anything I want and am gaining in weight every day. My constitution and whole system have been built up, and I had no idea such a great change could come over me in so short a while. I just feel so much better that my housework is a pleasure to me."

Taniae is sold in La Grande by Sullivan's drug store; in Union, by L. A. Wright; in North Powder, by L. Russell; in Elgin, by Scott & Harris; and in Telocast, by Telocast Grocery Store.

A WANT AD will do it.

they are alive and looking to us to do the parent's part. We can quit if we choose and go to the quitters' place. We can neglect it if we choose, and go to the place where the careless are. We can draw back into our own limits and say, "Now we will deal with our own family problems here at home," if we can still a still, small voice that repeats something in our ears that we are our brother's keeper according to our ability to keep him. But I recall that in my old church service was a phrase which ran, "brothers, we are persuaded better things of you and things which accompany salvation." We in America are not quitters. We are not going to lie down on the job, we are going to do our part. We have let off a lot of steam since the armistice, have had some heavy scraps at home among ourselves, have broken out rather irrationally in excesses, but we all know that we shall settle down and attend to business. It is just as well to be quick about it if we are to be in time. A recent report of a visiting French shows that almost a miracle of resurrection has been wrought. This is what we should expect of a people like the French who are willing to work and save. Their burdens are tremendous, but they have this wonderful asset of thrift and it will go far to carry them through. It makes their credit good, this thrift of theirs, and those of us who would help France would do well to remember this characteristic in which they excel every other nation. It is the soundest basis for credit which a man or a business house would have, and the French have it almost in perfection. It is wise also to remember that Great Britain is finding herself. She is in the field with government credit for her foreign trade, securing 50 per cent of accounts that are beyond the normal scope of banks and taking her share of losses to that extent. She has developed credit insurance in her foreign trade. Her burdens are immense, but the old giant is getting on his feet. It is well he is, for though our competitor he is also our biggest customer and he and we together must chiefly carry the world's burden for the next ten years or more. We must not forget that there is one thing we have to do with abroad of rather pressing importance. The world owes us about 15 billions. If we include the three years' interest on government loans which is to be funded, somehow or other the world has got to find means to pay us that 15 billions and to pay interest on the most of it. Meanwhile and in addition to that it has got to find means to buy the materials, tools, and the food with which to work and live while they are earning enough to pay us principal and interest and to get themselves on their own feet otherwise. We are the creditors, they the debtors. It is no use to suggest to them that we should like to be paid or even to say in a careless way that we will wait until they are able to pay. They can't pay now and they can't even wait unless we help them. Of course I am not speaking so much of the highly organized states with well developed systems of finance but rather of the smaller and newer nations whom we have brought into life. Nevertheless the older nations in the family are having their troubles. The burden on Great Britain is such that to work and to save is the Jordan of all her statesmen's thought today. She must save if she is to pull herself out. She is deeply involved, and spending and striking only faster and faster (as they do our feet) deeper in the mire. We over here have all that the nations lack, credit on a vast scale, sufficient to bring the world's salvation. If we had the minds to use it, sufficient to furnish materials and machinery to the empty cells of the world, sufficient to equip the roads and the railroads, with all they need, sufficient to supply the farms with animals and machinery, sufficient to set the world with adequate tools and supplies. All these things we have, all these things we want to furnish. How shall they be supplied to those who can not pay? Only by furnishing them the means with which to pay. We have the goods to sell, they have the need today; we have the means of paying ourselves for the goods, they have not the means of paying us for the goods. We must furnish both the goods and the means of paying. Every business man knows that we can not undertake this task until we have peace. This is not partnership or politics, it is just sense. A large part of the world is weltering in want and misery, subject to all the gusts of mental passion which lead to Bolshevikism, freed from the Hun, trembling toward red radicalism. Meanwhile, great, free, democratic America, about which we sing that she is "the land of the free and the home of the brave" talks and talks some more while the world waits and our job is not done, nay it is not begun, for it is useless to cry "Peace, Peace" when there is no peace, and one can not make plans for granting credit to a state or nation or to corporate enterprise therein when there is no certainty that the state or nation will con-

TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC:

HAVING SOLD my bakery business to Mr. Nettle and Mr. Adelff, two experienced men in this line of work, I wish to thank the public for the generous patronage that has been given me during the years I have spent building up this business to its high standard of today.

I wish to assure all of my trade that the new owners will treat them fine—that a good product will be made in the bakery and that the interests of the consumers will always be looked after.

I have prospered in La Grande, and I am going to make this city my future home. Although I have sold the bakery business, other interests will take up my time and I shall dwell in the city that has been good to me and which I have tried to serve to the best of my ability.

Very sincerely

FRED DUTLI
