Buck Excited Passengers

Passengers on the local were greatly excited last Sunday morning at the appearance of a deer near the track in the canyon. Just after the train had crossed the bridge at Rondwa a seven point buck jumped up from the river's edge near the track and ran wildly up stream a short distance to the little island where it stood watching the train until it passed from view. Just how the animal came to be there at that time of day is a matter of conjecture, but as the hunting season closed only the day before it is likely that hunters may have chased it that far. There were many passengers who had never before seen a deer jumping with and this experience was a novel one for them.
