

FILM STORY FOR FARMERS

An industrial motion picture film that is both interesting and deeply instructive has been booked to be shown in more than 400 of the leading show houses in the West. It is a feature put out by the manufacturers of Olympic feeds, who are doing much to educate and instruct the farmers and stock-raisers in the most advanced along the lines of scientific feeding.

This film was prepared at great cost and expense with the particular purpose in view of showing the farmer that feeding is the most important element in the profitable production of livestock and poultry. Games and effect are dealt with in an interesting manner, as well as to properly tell the educational side.

The action, which has all the necessary "punch," so essential to the modern film, begins on a farm of the typical sort and portrays some of the problems so familiar to the farmer and the stock and poultry raiser. From there, it swiftly changes to the great Olympic mills, where is visualized the assistance which scientific feed-making brings to play in his affairs. There is seen pouring into the mills the raw grains which come, mayhap, from his own or the fields of others whom he knows.

A fascinating and most instructive insight into this great industry, exemplifying the wonderful progress in the milling business, is that which shows the viewer of this film the selection of the wheat, oats, barley, alfalfa, soy bean, kaffir corn, corn, milo maize, hemp, peas and other elements which enter into the manufacture of a diversified line of stock and poultry feeds. Every step is shown, from the time the grain is unloaded from the cars until it comes forth one of several kinds of scientific feeds, sacked, weighed and ready for shipment.

Like all successful picture stories, this film has a happy finale, the farmer being shown a few months later after first feeding his herds of livestock and his flocks of poultry with Olympic scientific feeds. The standard 1000-foot reel is used and about 20 minutes are consumed in the running.

The Olympic Feed Mill, which is featured in the film, was completed early in 1920 and marked the latest development in the feed manufacturing industry in its equipment and facilities.

An exclusive product of the Olympic lines of feed in the west is dried buttermilk, an element entering into a number of the stock and poultry feeds. Experts pronounce the value of this as being without equal.

WHEN LAND WORDS GO TO SEA

Not that the movement has gone into the business of operating ships and due to conditions beyond its control, but appoint some who are training has been were political issue national. We publish herewith for them the first installment of a dictionary. This is done solely in a spirit of service in the hope that it will help eliminate those annoyances which it is reported have been caused through misapprehension of terms in official and interdepartmental correspondence.

BALE does not refer to cotton or merchandise compactly secured; it means to throw water out of a boat.

BANK is not a place of deposit for money, nor a mass of earth; it means when earthen are seated side by side in couples, pulled separate oars.

BEAR is not an animal; it means the direction from the person looking.

BEATING is not striking or over-coming; it means tacking against the winds.

BEES are not honey makers, but pieces of plank through which to receive staves.

BEND does not mean to deflect from a straight line, but the making fast of a sail to a spar or tying a cable to an anchor.

BIGHT does not mean a bend in the shore; it is the double part of a rope when it is folded.

BILL is not a statement of an account, but is the end of an anchor fluke.

BITTEL-END does not mean a sailing, but the part of an anchor cable which is back of the bits to which the cable is made fast.

BOARD is not a plank, but the stretch a vessel makes upon one tack when beating to windward.

BOLSTERS are not such as are usually found on beds, but are pieces of wood upon which certain parts of the rigging rest.

BONNET is not a woman's head dress, but is a piece of canvas laced to the foot of a jib.

BOOM is not a speculative trend upward, but is a spar at the foot of a sail.

BOW is not a forward inclination of the head or body, but is the rounded forward part of a vessel.

BOWER is not a sylvan retreat, but is an anchor.

BOX is not a wooden container; it is to repeat the 32 points of the compass.

BREAKERS does not mean waves on the seashore, but a small water cask.

BULL is not an animal, but a small keg.

BUNT is not to kick a foot ball; it is the middle of a sail.

BY does not mean place or direction; it means that the bow of a vessel is submerged lower than the stern, although it also means one point toward, "as to sail west by north."

CAP is not something to be worn on the head, but is a heavy bulk of wood with two holes holding together the head of one mast and the lower part of the mast next above.

CAT is not an animal; it is a tackle used to hoist the anchor.

CHAINS are not chains, but plates of iron bolted through a ship's side to which the rigging supporting the masts is fastened.

COAT is not a thing to be worn, but is a piece of canvas placed around the mast where it enters the deck to keep out water.

DOG is not an animal; it is a short iron bar with teeth at one end and a ring at the other.

DOG WATCHES are not periods of time consumed in watching dogs, but they are half watches of two hours each from four to six and six to eight p. m.

DRAUGHT is not a drink of water, but the depth of water in which a vessel is required to float.

DECK is not a thing that swims and quacks, but a tight canvas used for small sails.

EYE is not an organ of sight; it is a circular part of a sheave or stay that is looped over a mast.

FAKE is not something deceitful or pretended; it is one of the electric masts in sailing a rope.

FATHOM does not mean to get to the bottom of something; it means the rope by which a vessel is secured.

FISH-HOOK is not used for catching fish, but is a pendant with a hook used for fishing an anchor.

FLAT is not a series of apartments, but is a term to describe a "sheet" (or rope) when it is closely hauled down.

FLY is not a household pest; it is part of a flag which extends from the union to the extreme end, or it is a small triangular flag flown at mast head.

FOX is not an animal, but is something that is made by twisting together two or more rope yarns.

GRIPES do not come from eating green apples, but they are bars of iron used in connection with lashing boats to the deck.

OLD TIME DANCES will be held on Wednesday evening, instead of Thursday as heretofore.
