Polar Bear Can Swim.

The Polar bear is as fine a swimmer as a seal, and believes, in the ice-cold seas of the north, with as much unconcern as though it had been born in that element, writes Dr. R. W. Shufeldt in the American Forester Magazine. It has been known to drift for miles upon a floating iceberg, and this evidently for pleasure and convenience, rather than from necessity, as a number of Arctic explorers have reported having seen Polar bears, hair and heavy, swimming in the open ocean all the way from 40 to 50 miles from land.

Galosh Not Modern Footwear.

The modern galosh is but the grandchild of a long line of strong, sturdy ancestors from the boots of Captain Kidd down. The best wearing fever got so bad in England once that parliament had to be petitioned to restrict the making of boots. "The merchant and mechanic walk in boots" so read the complaint, and "honey of our clergy in shoes and galoshes. University scholars maintain the fashion like wise. Attorneys, lawyers, clerks, serving men all delight in this wasteful wantonness."

Trees for Korea.

Reforestation in Korea started with a handful of seeds planted by a Methodist missionary at Chempul, some 20 years ago, says the American Forestry Magazine. The work of providing shade trees for their stations was taken up by other missionaries, and in a few years the oppressive barrenness of the Korean hills was broken here and there by clumps of boxelder trees about the American mission stations.

Best Wood to Resist Decay.

The forest service says that this cannot be determined, since various species act differently in tropical and temperate climates. Lignum vitae probably comes nearest to living up to this term than any wood in the world. Generally speaking, the following woods may be classed as very durable: black locust, cypress, greenheart, lignum vitae, mesquite, teak and the cedars.

Sheridan and Cumberland.

The story is told of Cumberland that he took his children to see "The School for Scandal" and when they laughed rebuked them, saying that he saw nothing to laugh at in this comic play. When this was reported to Sheridan, his comment was, "I think that Cumberland's last tragedy and laughter heartily at it all the way through."—Henry A. Byers in "The Connecticut Wits and Other Essays."

Pagan Creed Concerning Fire.

That fire and water are the habitations of spirits is perhaps a universal rite of the pagan creed. The sacred ever-burning hearth fire was, in primitive days reckoned the special abode of the household gods; it was, therefore, considered dangerous to give a stranger a burning brand.

Plants in Bedroom.

Do not have flowers or plants in the bedroom, particularly overnight. Poisonous gas is evolved from the colored parts of flowers both by night and day, and from the green parts in addition at night. It is pleasant to have flowers in a guestroom, but for the reason just set forth they should not remain in the sleeping chamber. The way to get around the difficulty is by the use of a window box.

Freshen Roses.

Roses will give much greater return if, before they are put into the water, the ends of the stems are crushed or masticated. Then when the rose wilts cut off the end of the stem, slit it in half for about one half inch, hold the ends in boiling water for a few minutes, then plunge the stems in cold water. The rose will be as fresh as new. Do this at night and let the roses stand in a deep pitcher of water all night before placing them in the vase.

English Language Gaining.

To the observing student of the times, one of the wonders of this age is the spread of the English language. At the present time it is spoken by nearly 200,000,000 people. Each year adds a long list to the English-speaking world. Not many know that in the Philippines today more people speak the English language than spoke Spanish after 300 years under Spanish domination.

Curious Compromise.

When South Africa became federated, ten years ago, a controversy as to the capital city was settled by one of the most curious compromises in history. Pretoria became the administrative and Cape Town the legislative center. So United South Africa has two capitals, which are almost exactly 1,000 miles apart.—Knowledge Eagle.

Making Use of Lizard Skin.

The lizards of India—and India has a great crop of them—are hunted for their skins. Women's and children's shoes, purses and handbags are manufactured from them. These articles have been found to wear as well as cat-skin or glove kid. The average skin is two feet square and is worth 32 cents. A pair of shoes made of lizard skin costs four dollars.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Possible Ancestor.

J. W. Goolley, a scientist of the Smithsonian institution, has dug up a possible ancestor of man in central Montana. That is to say, he came across the skull of a small animal which unquestionably belongs to the great tribe that includes ourselves and the monkeys. The teeth prove it. The animal was not, however, a monkey. So far as known, there never were any monkeys within the limits of what is now the United States.

Burying the Hatchet.

To bury the hatchet means to let bygones be bygones. The phrase originated among the North American Indians, who were commanded by the "Great Spirit" when they smoked their calumet or peace pipe, to bury their hatchets, scalping knives, and war clubs in the ground, so that all hostile thoughts might disappear. It was well-known that the presence of war weapons leads to war at times.

Machine Scrapes Off Paint.

In the renovation of an automobile the greatest labor is in removing the old paint, which was formerly done by hand at a considerable expense of time and labor. This is now performed by a machine which does the work in a very effective manner and very quickly.
