To Visit County Schools—
Mrs. A. E. Ivanhoe, county superintendent of schools, will spend tomorrow and Friday visiting the schools at Imbler and Elgin. Tomorrow she will visit at Imbler and Friday at Elgin, returning to La Grande Friday evening.

Impressive Memorial Services—
The Women's Relief Corps held their very impressive memorial services for Mrs. Bertha Newman, in the K. of P. hall last Sunday afternoon. The service was opened with music by Miss Mary Scroggin, followed by the ritualistic work by the corps. Rev. A. R. Sutton, of the Baptist Church, delivered the address and Miss Ellen Maxfield sang, "Some Sweet Day, Bye and Bye," in a very pleasing manner.

Men Succeed in Kitchen—
The men of the Baptist church proved last evening that the women are not the only ones who can cook. They gave a dinner at which all the work was done by them—excepting coaching by several of the women in the kitchen, but the diners were not supposed to see what was going on in the kitchen.

The proceeds from the dinner will be used for church purposes. A large number of people took advantage of this opportunity to sample the cooking of the Baptist men and all came away well pleased.

Wedding Ring Found—
Everything is found sooner or later, and this has been the case of a wedding ring, which an elderly lady lost last Christmas time while trying on gloves at the J. C. Penney Company. She realized her loss soon after her departure from the store, and hurrying back to the glove counter, a thorough search was made through all of the gloves which she had looked at, but no trace of the ring could be found. Yesterday, in showing a customer a pair of gloves the ring was found enclosed within, and now an effort is being made to locate the woman, who lost the ring, she having prized it very highly because of its significance.

Able to Return Home—
Miss Elsie Nash, who has been in the hospital for the last four weeks has so far recovered that she was removed to her home Sunday.

Sister is Ill—
Mrs. M. E. Cheif, of 1702 Adams Ave., will leave on No. 4 tonight for Lander, Wyoming, to spend two months with her sister, who is in very poor health.

Case Postponed—
The case of Harry Holmes, scheduled in municipal court for this morning, was postponed until tomorrow. Holmes is charged with four violations of the traffic law.

Will Deliver Lenten Service—
The Rev. James J. O'Hagan, missionary priest of Baker and Grant counties, will deliver the Lenten sermon at the Church of Our Lady of the Valley, Fourth and L streets, this evening at 7:30. All are cordially invited to attend this service.

Visiting With Son—
Mrs. J. H. Keeney is visiting with her son, Kenneth, in Pendleton, where he recently accepted a position. She is also visiting with her sister, Mrs. W. E. Ferguson, of Pendleton.

Returns to Portland—
Miss Stella Desilet spent yesterday in the city visiting friends and relatives. Miss Stella formerly lived here, but is now living in Portland, where she is employed by the O-W. She returned to her home last evening, having only the one day vacation, Washington's Birthday.

Returns to Pendleton—
Mrs. Edna Sturdivant and little daughter, Jean, have returned to their home in Pendleton after visiting here since Friday with Mrs. Sturdivant's sister, Mrs. Earl Doane.

Pays Fine, Is Freed—
Harry Boston, lodging in the city jail for several days, this morning paid his fine and was released. He was found guilty in municipal court of assault and fined $75 which he could not pay at the time.

Called to Walla Walla—
A. Cameron and his daughter, Mrs. Margaret McDonald, of Walla Walla, arrived in the city last evening on their way to Walla Walla to attend the funeral of the small child of Mr. and Mrs. George Cameron. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hood, also of Walla Walla, joined them here, and the four went on to Walla Walla. Mr. and Mrs. Hood have been in La Grande the past two days, Mr. Hood having some dental work done.

FARM HOUSE OF COLONIAL DESIGN

House That Will Make Children Contented and Happy.

HAS LABOR-SAVING FEATURES

Contains Nine Large, Comfortable Rooms, Six of Which Are Bedrooms—Has All Conveniences of a City Home.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority in all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"I am going to make home life so attractive on this farm that my boys won't care to go to the city for excitement and variety when they grow up to manhood," remarked the farmer in his talk to the contractor. "That is one reason why I am planning a modern home with every convenience known to the building art."

What he had in mind was a home like the one illustrated here with floor plans. He had learned the lesson from the experience of many of his neighbors and he was determined to profit by their mistakes. Alert and progressive, he had very soon recognized the vital fact that to keep the children on the farm contented—a happy home life and freedom from the drudgery which has so often driven the boys to the larger cities just when the father had planned to turn over the reins to them was essential.

The first important step in his program was the farm home. This he decided was to be so attractive as to arouse the envy of city visitors. He could not have picked a prettier and more charming design than the colonial type shown in this picture. At ways appealing, never falling in its popularity, although it is one of the oldest types of architectural styles in the country. It has a homelike atmosphere that cannot be excelled. Combined with its quaintness is the modern touch of the building science.

There is something about this hospitable home that is most inviting. Perhaps it is the quiet green shutters on the windows, the open front porch set on a level with the ground, the low rambling appearance, the unusual chimney.

This home is designed for a family with plenty of children. There will be no crowding, for there are ten rooms in all, six of which are bedrooms, and a large nursery for the smaller "kiddies."

The front door leads into a small reception hall. Another door opening from the porch leads into the large living room, so essential in the colonial type of home, and an ideal lounging and resting place for the family after the work of the day. This living room is 23 by 14 feet 6 inches, with a large open brick fireplace built in the side. It extends the full depth of the house, thus providing for excellent lighting from front and rear as well as the side on which the fireplace is located. At the far end, a door leads to a small bedroom, 8 feet 6 inches by 11 feet, very convenient for the men who have to arise early.

The reception hall also opens into the dining room on the opposite side. This room is not quite as large as the living room, but is ample for the needs of the family. It opens at the far end into a hall which gives access to another small bedroom and to the stairs leading to the cellar, and to the floor above. At the right end, which forms a sort of wing to the main building, is the large kitchen, which is necessary in farm homes where many must be fed. Off one corner is a handy lavatory. In a corner adjacent to the pantry and kitchen a dumb-waiter has been installed, which makes the carrying of food and other supplies from the storage cellar to the kitchen a very easy task and lightens much of the work which falls on the shoulders of the housewife. Too many of these labor-saving conveniences cannot be installed in the farm home, because the amount of work to be done is always considerable.

Upstairs are the sleeping quarters. Here the floor plans call for four bedrooms of various sizes, a bathroom and a splendid nursery in the far wing over the kitchen. The dumb-waiter is extended to this room, so that in case of illness the prepared meals can be carried direct to the sick room. In addition to the dumb-waiter there is an invalid lift in the side hall.

All of the bedrooms have good lighting facilities, most of them having ex-

FASTEST AT SHORTHAND

Nathan Behrman, official reporter of the supreme court of New York county, who made a new world's speed record in shorthand when he took down 270 words in a minute. Behrman made the record at a contest held by the New York State Shorthand Reporters' association. In the test he broke his own previous world's record of 278 words, made in 1913.

House With Straw Walls.
A house with walls made of compressed straw has been erected in Paris. The framework of the building is of wood and the sides are filled in with blocks of tightly compressed straw, which are stated to be as hard as concrete and just as inflammable. Owing to the lightness of the materials only small foundations are needed, and a house of this kind can be built in a month. The idea of using straw in this way is attributed to a French textile engineer.

PORTLAND WILL BE DESTINATION FOR ANNUAL FIELD TRIP

CORVALLIS, Feb. 22.—Home economics seniors and homemakers will make their annual field trip to Portland March 17, 18 and 19. Twenty-two have already signed up for the trip and 50 more are expected to spend these three days in educational sight-seeing.

NO LAND AVAILABLE FOR AGRICULTURAL PURPOSES

Word was received at the local forest ranger's office this week that the classification of forests had been completed in the western district, with the exception of Alaska. According to the completed classification, no more land is available for agricultural purposes in the Wenaha forest and when the timber has been removed where the land could be listed after such removal the land must be surveyed and reclassified.

'STOP THIEF' IS EXCITING

SENIOR CLASS WILL PRESENT PLAY THIS WEEK.
Air of High School is Already Permeated with Deep Thievish Propensities.

Everybody's going to see the senior play, "Stop, Thief," either Friday or Saturday night, for a large number of high school students are out selling tickets which are going like hot cakes.
Around the high school, the very air is pervaded with thievish propensities, because the thieves are sure at work, and it is said that they are going to work hard Friday and Saturday nights. They've got to, because, just think!—they have got to get a whole trunk-full of valuables and do it in a half hour, too. Jack Doogan, the crook, really isn't as bad as he appears, for he is going to turn straight, and then he and Nell, his accomplice, are really going to follow the straight and narrow forever and ever. And poor Cloney! He sends a dog's life—everything is the matter—a wedding, a house being robbed, and he even finds that he's a kleptomaniac, all in one morning, all that. Can you imagine it? And then father, he, too, is back to taking things.

Can you even conceive of how this mystery is going to be solved? No! Well, it isn't hard to guess, and to find out all you have to do is to deposit 50 cents with some bright-looking student of old L. H. S. in return for which you will receive a small piece of white card-board with "Stop, Thief," printed thereon. Then take the ticket to Silverthorn's Drug Store, and you will get a reserved seat, then the charm will soon work. Nothing left to do but put on your Sunday meeting togs and plod up the hill to the high school at 8 o'clock, after Friday, or Saturday night.

As to the rest, leave that to the senior class, and they'll show you all you want to see—in the three big acts of "Stop, Thief."

Gender of the Sun.
Modern English literature the sun is invariably referred to as masculine and the gender is how so fixed. But in old English the sun was always termed feminine, as it is in Milton: Shakespeare, however, considered the sun masculine. The Germans still refer to the sun as female, while in French it is masculine.

Animals and Reptiles That Have Been Held in High Reverence for Various Reasons.
Perhaps no animal ever butted its way into the literature of childhood so successfully as old Mary's little lamb, and today no animal gets as much petting and fantastic reverence bestowed upon it as does the white elephant of Siam, and the elephant in America has its following. In Siam the worshippers believe that the soul of a dead person, perhaps of a Buddha, may be lodged in the white elephant. Consequently, he is baptized, dined and wined, and mourned at his death.
The snake figures as much in his story as a pet as perhaps any other reptile or animal. The sinuousness of its body, made possible by the hundreds of vertebrae in its backbone, and the never-winking eyes have given it some sort of occult power is embodied in it. The ancient Incas made in the rocks of their temples, even in the Temple of the Sun, small holes leading to circular inclosures for the snakes to nest therein. It has been surmised that the priests probably kept in the temple a few tame snakes in order to use them in prophesying. One snake always gets a prominent place in the histories of Egypt and Japan—the asp which Cleopatra used to end her life because Octavius Caesar scorned her charms.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

Lines to Be Remembered

The heart of the giver makes the gift dear and precious, a more true sense we say each of us trying to give some good to a loved one, and not just so much of the gift as at the heart of the giver.—Martin Luther Cold Causes Stale Bread.

Prof. J. R. Katz of Amsterdam, has found that low temperature makes bread stale. At 140 degrees F., it is fresh after 48 hours, but when the temperature is reduced to 122 degrees the bread begins to grow stale.
