DAIRY BARN OF THE LATEST TYPE

Contains Ample Facilities for Large Herd of Cows.

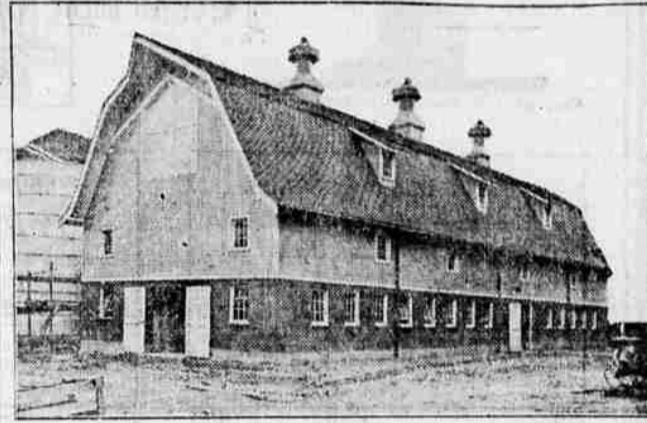

TWO SILOS PROVIDED FOR

Building of This Type Is Splendid Investment for Farmer—Barn Illustrated Has All Modern Conveniences and Facilities.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will advise, question and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, 1407 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

When some people talk of building they seem to forget the most important part of this great activity, namely, the farm building. While most statistics overlook this particular phase of the work, it nevertheless forms the great percentage of all building in the country. Were the actual figures on farm construction tabulated they would prove amazing. It has been shown that the farmer as a class is the largest user of lumber in the nation. Much of this lumber goes into building work of some kind.

With the most successful crop on record this year, there will be a great need for additional farm buildings, and with the cheaper price of grain there will be a tendency to raise more animals and stock. Naturally the dairy herd will get first attention because of its all-year producing feature. A good herd of dairy cows is the barrier between the farmer and disaster if crops fail. That is why more farmers are establishing a herd instead of relying entirely on the yield of a single product such as wheat.

To successfully keep a herd the barn must be built according to the most modern standards. The building itself should be designed efficiently and the equipment which is installed in it should bear the test of a thorough trial.

In the picture shown here is an example of what can be done after careful consideration and study of all the angles of barn building. This dairy barn is a handsome structure, substantially built of concrete, brick and frame. The foundation is concrete with the stable floor brick. The large hay mow with its gambrel roof provides more than enough room for the storage of hay and other feed. On each side three windows have been built to provide air, light and ventilation. On the roof are three modern ventilators to draw off the foul air which accumulates so fast in the stables below and which is a positive menace unless promptly and efficiently removed. Air intakes on the first floor provide a continuous source of fresh, invigorating air which is so essential to healthy producing animals.

An investigation of the floor plans shows the layout of the cow stalls, calf pens, feed room and silos, two massive structures of wood staves, each 16 feet in diameter. From the feed room the carrier track leads along the various feed alleys. All of the stalls and pens are divided by steel partitions and the stalls are fitted with stanchions of the sanitary modern type. Drinking cups at each stall give the cow a chance to drink all the fresh water she wants. Plenty of water is essential to heavy production of milk. The drinking cup provides this water as well as taking care of much unnecessary work that was caused by having to lead the cows to an outside trough several times a day.

In similar fashion is the litter problem taken care of by carriers and track leading to an adjacent manure pit. A barn of this type is highly successful because it accomplishes a double-barreled function. It makes for contented animals and satisfied help. The result is apparent. Contented animals are heavy producers.

Word's Meaning Changed.
Going downstairs etymologically means ascending. The Saxon element is upland or hill, and the element is descent. But in the course of time the ascent was omitted and the word "down" came to mean down.

Satisfied help likewise are efficient workmen. Labor, however, he gives a problem unknown because the men will stay there as long as conditions are congenial and the work is not tedious.

There will be many barns built during the coming season according to present indications. It is important that every farmer study his individual problem well before starting actual work. With the proposition well in hand when the work starts there will be no regrets when the barn is built.

BANK IN VANDERBILT HOME

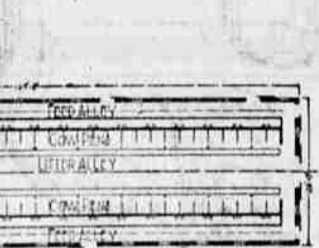

Advancing Tide of Commerce Has Swallowed Another of the Famous New York Mansions.

Marching ever northward, trade has swept over one more of New York's oldest and most beautiful residences. The W. K. Vanderbilt mansion, on the northwest corner of Fifty-second street and Fifth avenue, it has become known, is to be remodeled into a bank building.

Present plans for the new structure to be built into the old residence provide that the present mansion structure will be retained for a depth of 25 feet. Behind this will mount a 16-story building—the triumph of trade over art.

Architects for the trust company, which is said to have paid $3,000,000 for the property, already have begun work on the plans for alterations. Every effort will be made to preserve the beauty of the French gothic structure, admired by generations of New Yorkers.

The Vanderbilt residence is one of New York's most beautiful homes and one full of tradition and sentiment to old residents of New York," remarks the New York Sun. The site of the building was bought by the late W. K. Vanderbilt, in 1870, and the residence was erected a few years later. When his son, W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., married he erected a house of similar design for him just to the north at 49th Fifth avenue.

This group of Vanderbilt homes and that of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt at Fifty-seventh street have been considered the bulwark against trade in Fifth avenue.

It was rumored some time ago that Mrs. Vanderbilt, widow of Cornelius Vanderbilt, had given an option on her home, but the fact it has never been exercised is accepted as proof the report was not true.

A Little Beauty.
Mr. Johnson, a very polite but absent-minded gentleman, met Mrs. Lovejoy one morning, carrying her pet dog.

"Good morning, Mrs. Lovejoy," said the friend. "What brings you out so early this morning?"

"Oh, I've just been in the photographers with my pet dog, Dido, and we had our portraits taken together. Beauty and the beast, you know, Mr. Johnson—with a saucy little laugh.

"And what a little beauty he is, to be sure," replied Johnson, inadvertently, as he tenderly stroked poor Dido's head and pulled his ears. And then he suddenly remembered and became hot and cold in turn.—Minneapolis Journal.

Chinese Newspapers Widely Read.
In China newspapers are sold two and three times over. Collectors go about the city gathering up the newspapers of the previous day's issue, redistributing them among the lower class population. They are then further distributed by being sent out to the villages and country districts, where they are sold at a fraction of their original cost.

English Is Spreading.
It is satisfactory to know that the English-speaking countries of the world are becoming more populous. To the 112,000,000 of the United States there may be added at the next census at least 45,000,000 whites in the British empire, in which case nearly 200,000,000 people will be linked throughout the world by a common tongue.

World's Radium.
The total radium in the world is estimated at four or five ounces. No figures as to its distribution have been published, but this country is believed to have the largest share.

Not Without Some Truth.
Correspondence referring to our note on misquoting of Scripture by children, adds this one: Asked by his Sunday school teacher to give the golden text, a youngster replied: "He that bumpeth himself shall be exalted."—Boston Transcript.

It will be off the press in May.

MRS. JONES MAY TESTIFY LATE TODAY

years ago. Jui Shen placed the body in a trunk, according to Chin Bill's testimony. The witness also characterized the dead man as one who would "fight anybody."

In telling of the tragedy he told how Sheu threatened Chin's life for being in the company of Mrs. Jones and demanded $150. His demand was made for the benefit of Chin but Mrs. Jones had a conversation about a ring with the dead man, he alleged. The came threats of death and imprisonment for ten years and Hom Sing pleaded with Jui until he gave Chin six hours to get the money. Chin, according to his story, tried to borrow the money, and when Jui came again for the money asked until the next day to raise it.

Then, so Chin says, Sheu hit him on the head with his gun, knocked him down, and being dazed by the blow, Chin shot his gun without knowing how often he pulled the trigger or just how he aimed, being in a semi-dazed condition.

Was No Conspiracy.
Chin stated that Mrs. Jones had nothing to do with the shooting and that there was no conspiracy, but that, on the other hand, he had tried to run away from Sheu.

Chin also told the court that Hom Sing and other Chinese had told him that if he did not plead guilty to the murder they would "kill him anyway."

He also testified that he told Mary Wong that Jui Sheu had told him he would kill him or put him in jail for ten years for being with Mrs. Jones. In cross-examination by the state he said that in his conversation with Mary Wong he had said that maybe he will die and maybe he would go to jail. He carried the 32 automatic with which the murder is alleged to have been committed at this time.

He also stated that he did not know how close he was to Jui Shen when the shooting took place. He also contradicted the testimony of Harry Wong to the effect that he had made threats against Sheu.

Dr. H. M. Bouvy, T. J. Keelan, John Walden, game warden, and J. H. McLaughlin were called as witnesses to testify as gun experts, special stress being laid on the distance at which a bullet would penetrate a body.

Fred L. Carman, father of Mrs. Jones, was also called to the stand this morning.

Late yesterday afternoon the prosecution had the following witnesses testify: Albers Bowers, Dr. E. J. Kirby, Dr. C. S. Moore, John Stalker, H. G. Carpy and Sheriff Lee Warnick. The defense presented its first witnesses, Anna Mathison.
