AROUND THE EDGES

Joe Carr's Franklin stood in front of Ulrich Lotter's place and refused to move. The starter whizzed and the engine worked, but the car remained motionless. Joe said a few explanatory things about the car with no radiator and telephoned the garage to come and get it. The garage man arrived and found the front wheel tight against the curb, the machine in gear, but nothing wrong. He slipped the lever into reverse, and cleared the curb and it was on its way. "Well," remarked Joe, "if that had happened a few years ago I would have thought nothing of it, but to happen when the country is as dry as a bone is quite a different thing."

When Norman Desilet had the smallpox his friends ceased going to see him. In fact, he suffered isolation in an apartment where there was not much room to walk and exercise. For fear he would forget how to dance Norman would start his trusty phonograph and, with a chair for a partner, he would waltz around, "round, round, 'Really,'" he said after he was released, "if anyone had gone by the house and seen me hugging that chair for a partner and waltzing to that phonograph music they would have thought I had gone mad as a bad Indian."

"Things might be worse," remarked a La Grande merchant after a quiet day in business. "Just suppose I was a member of the Public Service commission and was expecting that recall to grab me."

Postmaster Bragg has always raised one of the best gardens in Eastern Oregon. It is a sort of Bragg family pride to have a good garden. And this same pride evidently has been taken up by Dan McLellan, son-in-law of Mr. Bragg, judging from the very excellent manner he is preparing his yard for a seed bed.

When Captain J. J. Broughton was on the Atlantic coast serving the flag he went up in a free balloon. Now, a free balloon is one that has no strings tied to it. He was accompanied by several other officers and all were attired in the snappy officers' uniform of the army. The balloon was sure enough free, for after scooting around in the air a while it hovered down a mile out at sea and deposited its passengers in mud and water waist deep. Each officer was compelled to wade to shore and the handsome uniforms so highly prized by the officials needed a Wardrobe cleaning.

On La Grande No. 4 a few mornings ago there were two passengers in the Standard sleeper and seven in the tourist sleeper. The dining-car fed seven for breakfast that morning and one of the colored lads who wear white waists and white table napkins answered a question by saying: "No, sah, people don't travel any more; they seem to have got tired of such tam amusement as travel and them what do travel prefer sitting up instead of sleeping, and they eat at the Huntington eating house, sah." All of which goes to show the traveling public has gone on a strike against the high prices of sleeping cars and diners.

Have you tried this new game of pasture billiards? Col. Eddy, he of the English descent, calls it golf. Well, it seems to be all right. When we followed a bunch of golfers around last Sunday we'll have to admit that we wondered what they were doing, but they seemed to know, for they kept at it religiously. When the day was done we sat on the porch of the country club house and tried to make a dope sheet—not on golf, but on the men who had been playing, thus endeavoring to figure out that the game must be attractive.

We saw Bill Selgrist discard the solo game and the congenial company of Judge Crawford for the pasture game; we saw Tom Scroggins bat away at a little pee-wee ball like he would break his back—some exertion for Tom unless he meant it; we saw big fat Joe Carr forget all about furniture and the downward prices and prance around the field like a buck sheep in lambing season, with his sticks pounding away at the little white pellet; we saw Larry Larison with checks aflash wallop the defenseless little ball clear out of sight and then laugh as natural as a boy stealing eggs on Easter; we saw Fred Meyers, swing to the right and left with great accuracy. These fellows did this for hours and they did not seem to grow tired of the game. Col. Eddy, the coach and umpire combined, gave encouragement where it was needed and English criticism when he thought it should be given. Still there was not a ripple. Every fellow took his grilling and liked it.

Vydict: Its fresh air, the using of dormant muscles, the desire to hit that little ball just a little more scientific than the other fellow, all combining to make it a man's game.

Little Howard Sargent was plodding along home from the Arcade theatre Wednesday evening when he suddenly remarked: "They didn't do what they advertised, just the same, for they advertised an orchestra with ten pieces and they only played five, for I counted them."

FATE IN HANDS OF JURY NOW

Said that if the jury found from the evidence that Chin Bill, at the time he fired the shots and wounded deceased had reasonable grounds to believe and did honestly believe that his life was in imminent danger, he fired the fatal shots, he was justified under the law in so doing, and the jury should find him not guilty.

Necessity alone can excuse homicide, he stated. Continuing his discussion of self-defense, he pointed out that the party who is attacked must avoid the attack if he can do so without danger to himself.

Regarding the testimony by the defense, alleging that the deceased was a man of violent and dangerous character, Judge Knowles instructed the jury that "more prompt and decisive measures were justifiable in defending one's self against him than if deceased were of a peaceable disposition."

Positive Proof Necessary.
Deliberation, premeditation and malice must be proven by the prosecution if the crime is to constitute first degree murder. No generally recognized rule of law deprives one who is in expectation of an attack being made upon him, of going to the place where he otherwise has a legal right to go," the instructions continued.

Defense Sees Mrs. Jones Free.
"Unless it is found beyond a reasonable doubt that Mrs. Jones fired one or more of the shots, she should be found not guilty, unless it is found beyond a reasonable doubt that she conspired with Chin Bill to kill Jui Sheu, as was alleged in the indictment," Judge Knowles continued. The defense considered this portion of the instructions a prediction that Mrs. Jones would be freed.

Threats As Evidence.
Threats, either communicated or not communicated to the defendant, made by the deceased are permissible as evidence, was the instruction to the jury on the testimony regarding the threats made against the life of the accused by deceased. This too, was considered by the defense as a point in its favor.

It was further pointed out by Judge Knowles that the state based its case on circumstantial evidence. State Failed to Implicate Both.

"I instruct you, gentlemen of the jury, that although the state has failed to establish that the defendants conspired and acted together, yet if you find that one of the defendants acting alone, committed the acts charged in the indictment, then you should find such defendant guilty of the crime that you find he committed," Judge Knowles declared near the close of his instructions. This was further taken as a point scored in its behalf by the defense, strengthening the belief that Mrs. Jones would be freed, without a doubt.

Not a Favorite.
Says an exchange: "The man who imagines he has no equal must lead a very lonely life." He does, brother, for few people care for his society.—Boston Transcript.

Looks Suspicious.
A household journal says that "linguists when vanished doesn't need to be scrubbed so often." Of course not, if it has vanished—but stay! We wonder if the compositor hasn't been at his tricks again.—Boston Transcript.

ASTORIA WILL SEND SALMON

ASTORIA, Mar. 19.—Astoria began loading her contribution of canned salmon to the relief of the starving children of central Europe on the steamer West Katan for shipment to Hamburg through the local port. A total of 2665 cases of salmon will be put aboard the steamer and it will represent donations amounting to $7,888.21. It is consigned to the European Children's Fund, European Relief Committee, Hamburg, Germany, from where it will be distributed over the famine areas.

Of the total shipment, 2100 cases of talls were purchased of lower Columbia canneries from funds contributed by the people of Clatsop county. For this part of the shipment, $5,628.21 was paid, the price per case being considerably less than the minimum price for which the canneries are holding their unsold stock. The balance, 565 cases of miscellaneous brands, was contributed outright by the various canneries. At the minimum of $4.00 a case, this contribution represents a value of $2,260.

The freight on the shipment will be paid by the general relief committee.

COAL DEALERS ARE AFTER CUT

BAKER, Mar. 19.—Coal dealers in the Northwest are confronted with much the same situation as the lumbermen in freight rates. Through the organization of the legitimate dealers of the Northwest, of which W. H. Ellis, of this city, is a member, efforts are being made to secure a more equitable rate on coal shipped from Wyoming, Utah and other points. The present rate on coal shipped to Baker from Wyoming is $6.25 a ton. In view of the possibility of securing a reduction, Mr. Ellis states dealers are now carrying only stocks sufficient to supply immediate demands, and that it is not considered advisable to stock up heavily at this time. During 1920 Mr. Ellis states that he handled in Baker more than 5,000 tons of coal, and that his freight bills for this totalled more than $26,000.

Coal, at the present time in Baker, is selling for $15 per ton. The lowest price coal has ever sold for in Baker is said to have been $7.50 per ton.

Tattoo Marks.
Although tattoo marks generally are asserted to be indelible if produced by the insertion of some carbonaceous matter, it is said they will disappear if first well rubbed with a salve of pure acetic acid and lard, then with a solution of potash, and finally with hydrochloric acid. It would be advisable to consult a skin specialist.
