EVANGELIST SCORES PAPERS

REV. E. J. BULGIN CLOSSES SERVICES AT WALLA WALLA.

Secret Societies at Whitman Are Denounced, As Are Also Some Other Religions.

WALLA WALLA, Wn., Mar. 22.—Rev. E. J. Bulgin, the evangelist, has ended the last week of his four weeks' revival here, after stirring up unlimited discussion and packing his temporary tabernacle night after night. Bulgin announced when he opened his campaign here that he "expected to skin the sinners and hang their skins out to dry."

Early in the campaign he began denouncing local papers for not giving him better support, but for the last two weeks has been concentrating his efforts on the Evening Bulletin, which has been devoting considerable editorial space to criticism of Bulgin's methods and Bulgin has been retorting with criticisms of the editor.

Following a parade on converts Sunday, the paper declared that "about 200 men whose solemn faces and silent demeanor made them appear like captives being led in triumph, brought up the rear."

Bulgin, however, made no retort, but merely explained that the eight Protestant ministers interested in the revival were angry.

Bulgin has been scoring the city officials hot and heavy, charging that they were either incompetent or in league with the bootleggers, blind-pickers and the like.

A meeting called for today to organize a law and order league to cope with the local situation brought small results.

When Bulgin was here eight years ago, he led a fight for Sunday closing of theaters, in which he was worsted. Those who favored Sunday day theaters flooded the commission with petitions to keep the theaters open. This time he has little to say about Sunday closing.

Bulgin opened his campaign by denouncing secret orders, Whitman college fraternities and sororities, as well as Christian Scientists, Unitarians and others, but later denied that he had made statements as quoted about the secret orders and Whitman college.

Bulgin's nightly call for converts to "hit the sawdust trail" has met with excellent response, from 15 to 50 going forward each night.
