COUNTRY CLUB IS BUSY PLACE

LARGE CREW BUSY CLEANING UP LINKS

Survey of the Proposed Swimming Tank Will be Made at Once and Excavation Started.

The links at the country club have been the scene of considerable activity the past week. Under the direction of Peter Hognesen of Perry and G. H. Eddy, a crew of thirty men have been busy raking the grounds to completion. Large quantities of rocks have been removed, ditches filled, stumps blasted out and most of the brush cleared from the different fairways. The fifth green has also been started and it is hoped to have it completed within the next week at which time it will be possible to play the entire nine holes.

A survey for the swimming tank will be made at once and it is hoped to let a contract for the excavation during the coming week. All the work that is possible to do at this time will be done as it is the wish of the directors to provide all the work they can at this time. It is also their intention to have the tank completed in plenty of time for the swimming season. There is no question but that this feature will be very popular with the members.

THEATRES

"OUT OF THE STORM" AT SHERRY THEATRE

In "Out of the Storm" you'll see the most terrific shipwreck ever flashed upon a screen. A man and a girl are swept over the rail of a sinking steamer. He swims with her to a floating spar. They cling to it for a night and a day and are rescued, but never meet again till fifty years later. Love sang in that terrible gale of the world's greatest opera house, he leaped to his feet—but we won't spoil this wonderful picture for you. Come and see it!

The shipwreck that cost Margaret Hill on the shores of a strange country wiped out the record of her sorrow and bitter past. Five years later, when the chance came to marry the man she really loved, a convict escaped from an American penitentiary and went to England to claim her. What did Margaret Hill do to solve the most terrible problem that ever confronted a woman? See "Out of the Storm," shown here today for the last time. Also showing "Monkey Shines," a comedy.

NOVELTY KISSES CAUSED SCANDAL

Did you know there were such things as "Floral Kisses"? Neither did anyone else until a press agent, desperate to boost the "Vandies," a struggling musical comedy, advertised "Maybelle Flowers" as the "Kissing Girl." The young lady's assortment of osculatory caresses was said to include "the chaste lily-of-the-valley kiss; the scorching crimson rambler; and the lingering, tantalizing honey-suckle twister."

It threw an awful monkey-wrench into the machinery! For Maybelle was no less than the daughter of a very proud old California family who had joined the chorus to recoup the falling family fortunes. When a man seeking a nice, safe co-respondent in a divorce suit gets tangled up with a jealous lover and proud parents feel "disgraced" by a daughter's connection with the stage—it can be imagined that "things are doing."

The floral kisses are but one of the many comedy bits in "Food for Scandal," Wanda Hawley's new photoplay which comes to the Arcade Theatre today and Tuesday.

A two-reel comedy, "Happy Daze," is on the same program.

FARM POULTRY

WIRE FOR FENCING POULTRY

Two-inch Mesh is Most Commonly Used and Can Be Purchased at Moderate Price.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Wire netting, two-inch mesh, is commonly used for fencing poultry yards and can be bought at a moderate price. Where several runs are adjoining, three-fourths of an inch or one-inch mesh wire should be used at the bottom to a height of two to two and one-half feet to keep the males from fighting one another.

The height of the fences should be regulated by the variety of fowls. The heaviest breeds, like the Brahmas, may be restrained by a four-foot fence, and most of the other breeds can be kept in by a six-foot fence. Hamburgs and Leghorns may be kept in the yards by cupping the flight feathers on one wing. Gates should be provided in order to permit access from one yard to the next.

If convenient, it is well to have dog-holes, for then one may rotate green crops. The yards may be sown to oats, wheat, or rye, and while the fowls are using one yard the green feed in the other can be getting a fresh start.

When the yards are to be on only one side of the house, they should be on the south side in order that the fowls may have the benefit of the first dry ground in early spring. It not infrequently happens that in localities where snow is abundant the ground on the south side is dry only a few days before that on the north side.

If the yards are to be in permanent soil and are to furnish green feed for the fowls, 70 to 80 square feet should be allowed for each bird, poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say. If part of the green feed is to be otherwise provided for, and the yards used mainly for exercise grounds, 25 to 40 square feet per bird will be sufficient.

Shade of some kind should be provided, and this can often be advantageously furnished by planting fruit trees (such as peaches, plums, cherries, and apples) in the yard.

GRIT SUPPLY IS ESSENTIAL

Material Takes Place of Teeth in Preparing Fowl's Food for Further Digestion.

Grit is essential to the health of fowls and to economy in feeding. Grit takes the place of teeth in preparing the food for further digestion and is required for the proper preparation of food in the gizzard. When the feed is not properly taken care of in this organ, an undue strain is thrown on the fowl's system, often resulting in disease and also allowing much of the nutriment to pass through the bird's body without being absorbed. If every pen or yard a box of grit should be kept. Recent investigators have ascertained that grit is a part of the necessary feed of a fowl, giving the fowls strong bones and a bright plumage.

Ordinarily, the hen does not consume enough lime to form the shells of eggs, if she is laying abundantly unless something besides the ordinary grain feeds is accessible to her. Oyster shells are very good for this purpose. A box of crushed shells may be placed before the fowls, allowing them to eat at will. Old mortar and the gravel are also useful in supplying lime, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

GREEN DUCKS IN BIG DEMAND

Vast Market Waiting to Be Developed for Fowls Throughout Most of the Country.

There is a vast market for "green ducks" waiting to be developed throughout most of the country and the man or woman who takes the trouble to develop it need not fear being unable to sell all that can be produced.
