AB SHERRYS, "WHY CHANGE YOUR WIFE?" LAST TIME TODAY

The vital theme of marital fidelity and the causes that lead there to are splendidly portrayed in Cecil B. De Mille's latest Paramount Ape-craft picture, "Why Change Your Wife?" which was presented for the first time in this city at the Sherry theatre last night.

The plot centers around Robert and Beth Gordon, married for ten years, but now beginning to drift apart. Beth has become a too wife-ly wife and bears her husband with her excessive solicitude for his comforts. He finds diversion in the company of vivacious, pleasure-loving Sally Clark. A divorce follows, and Robert marries Sally.

Too late Beth discovers why she has lost her husband and, blossoming like a rose, develops into society's gayest figure. Robert's eyes are opened when he again sees Beth, and through a dramatic series of events they are brought happily together.

Also showing a comedy.

The orchestra, headed by its conductor, Josef Stransky, numbers some of the best known musicians in the country. Henry Hadley, the associate conductor, is noted as a composer as well as a celebrated conductor and musician. Mr. Hadley will assist Mr. Stransky, conducting the Tchaikowsky concerto in B flat minor, which Arthur Shattuck, pianist, will play with the orchestra.

MANY FARMERS CONTRACT WHEAT

BLUE MT. GRANGE MEETING LAST NIGHT

Amount Signed by Association in County 200,000 Bushels—14 Contracts Last Night

At the Blue Mt. Grange hall last evening 39 farmers gathered to hear the Oregon Co-operative Grain Growers association marketing plan explained to them. J. E. Reynolds, vice-president of the Union county farm bureau was the chairman of the meeting.

Reynolds, a prominent state organizer of the association explained of the contract to the farmers and showed what had been done in other states, pointing to especially the progress made in Washington and Idaho.

At the meeting it was reported that a total of 220,000 bushels of wheat had been signed up in Union county already. Last year the wheat crop of Union county was 1,250,000 bushels and the organizers of the association expect to sign up a large percentage of this bushelage.

After the meeting last evening 20,000 bushels were signed with the association.

"Dacoits"

The word "dacoit" refers to bands of robbers in India. They are a national type of bandits resembling the brigands of Sicily and Greece. They were driven out of Hindustan by the British government, but are now active in Burma. In British-Indian law the term implies the conspiracy of five or more men to engage in any form of theft.

Right to Make Wills Won By Centuries of Struggle

IN THE ANCIENT ROMAN FORUM WERE MADE SOME OF THE FIRST WILLS OF HISTORY—IN THESE EARLIEST FORMS THEY WERE IRREVOCABLE DOCUMENTS DRAWN BY MEDICANS ON THE EVE OF BATTLE.

CLUSTER OF THE CANTERBURY CATHEDRAL ENGLAND IN CHAUCER'S DAY. HIS PRACTICE OF WILL MAKING HAD ITS DEVELOPMENT LONG AFTER THE GREEK PERIOD.

THE ACROPOLIS OF ATHENS, CENTER OF ANCIENT GREEK CULTURE. THE PRESENT PRACTICE OF WILL MAKING HAD ITS DEVELOPMENT LONG AFTER THE GREEK PERIOD.

By FRANCIS H. SISSON, Vice President Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

It is a strange fact that many capable persons who devote the energies of a successful lifetime to acquiring a competency often give little thought to what will become of this property when they are dead or otherwise incapable of administering it.

The right to make a will as we understand it at the present time—that is, the right freely to dispose of one's goods and lands after death—has been a right so jealously contested for between subject and sovereign that it has come to be regarded as an inherent right of a free people.

Brushing aside the vestiges of this right, if any, in earlier civilizations, the modern statutes relating to wills are based largely upon Roman law. In the older Roman law, freedom to make a will was unrestricted, but later the right to dispose of property was curtailed, and a definite portion of the property was required to be left to a disinherited heir. These abridgments to the freedom of disposition of property by will exist in practically every country, the foundation of whose legal system is drawn largely from the Roman, and with its many limitations in many respects are imposed by the laws of various states of our Union. In Roman law, however, there was no distinction between the nature of the property to be disposed of by will. There was no distinction between goods and lands. It later on, England, an age-long struggle took place between the Roman law as interpreted by the churchmen, the feudal law of the Normans, and the old customary law of the Anglo-Saxons which was not resolved until comparatively recent times.

The will also enables you to execute the distribution of property over a long period, or surrounded with such restrictions as will protect from ill-advised investment or mismanagement.

The terms and conditions under which trusts are established in wills are manifold. A man may place his estate in trust for any person—wife, son, daughter, or other individual—during his or her life, stipulating that it shall be turned over to someone else at the first beneficiary's death. He may place his estate in trust for a certain time, as in the case of a young son whose education and care he wishes guaranteed, and for which he wishes property preserved until he shall have attained mature business judgment. He may place his estate in trust to be paid out in periodical installments to the beneficiary. He may place it in trust for a charity or other institution. He may provide successively to benefit a person during life and a charity after that person's death. He may give the full income to his wife for life and subsequently retain portions for the fund in trust for his children, making different provisions for sons and daughters, as his prudence may suggest.

The executor's duties begin with the death of the maker of the will. He may face a year or more of elaborate work.

For various reasons, therefore, the advantages of employing an executor or corporation that makes a specialty of such work is apparent. Such a corporation is a trust company. The advantages of a trust company, as executor of a trust, are: Financial responsibility; continued existence (the individual named as executor may die—corporation has unlimited existence); accumulated experience; financial judgment; an impartial viewpoint.

A personal viewpoint (the trust company's officers can bring to those interested all the advantages that come from contact with an individual); Economy (in many States trust companies are not required by law to furnish bonds); Many whose genius lies in the making of money have little ability to conserve it. There is, therefore, a method by which a suitable portion of such money and property can be placed by and probability of loss and for the benefit of the members of a family. It is known as a voluntary or living trust, because it takes effect during the maker's lifetime.

A few of the representative objects accomplished by the creation of living trusts are: Income payable to a wife during her life; income payable to the creator of the trust for the benefit of children; income payable to charity; income to be used for the education of an individual; income payable to the creator of the trust for his own benefit; income payable to a charity to provide for a marriage settlement; to provide an income for intended husband or wife; to provide income under a divorce decree or separation agreement; to collect and dispose of life insurance.

As trustee under a living trust, the trust company offers the same advantages which it offers as trustee under a will.

The trust company is the medium for the execution of trusts of every character. Strict laws govern its conduct and experience govern its operation. Its responsibility clearly defined and not to be evaded and guaranteed and guaranteed by its financial standing.
