Because the average man builds a home but once in a lifetime, it is an event of tremendous importance to him and his family, and should merit careful study and thought. There are many modern features in home-building that cannot be overlooked if the finished product is to be entirely satisfactory. For instance, one of the most important developments in home-building in the last decade has been that of sun porches and sleeping porches. With the growth in popularity of the "fresh air" idea, especially when sleeping, these two factors have become prominent parts of new homes. And as the years pass, improvements have been made in their construction until now they are near perfection as possible.

Another important factor in home-building is the material to be used. Because of its permanency and strength, brick is used extensively. It insures a great deal of protection against fire and is specified in many building codes. As an excellent example of what can be accomplished with brick in the construction material, the house shown here is hard to beat.

A glance at the illustration shows a very attractive exterior greatly enhanced by many variations in elevations, such as the roof over the porch, the wing for the sun parlor, the main gable and the rear projection for the sleeping porch upstairs. The architect's effect is very pleasing and the contrast of the white stone trim against the darker brick background is quite striking. In the sun parlor and sleeping porch casement windows have been used insuring maximum lighting space and adequate ventilation. The sun parlor is heated like wife who no longer can get servants at any price. In a house of this size the work on the part of the housewife is considerable, especially if she has to take care of a family of five. Because of the servant shortage she has to give some substitute and many have found many ways of doing the housework. First, by reducing the size of the rooms without detracting from any of their charm, and secondly, by installing space-saving and labor-saving devices. It has been found that the kitchen no longer need be a large room; in fact the complete equipment can be installed in a very small space. A small pantry is also provided in this plan. On the second floor are three bedrooms and bath as well as the sleeping ing porch mentioned above. The bedrooms are not oversized, but ample for needs of the family. All are well provided with windows and exceptionally large closet room.

Although quite impressive looking this house can be erected without considerable extra expense. It is 32 by 32 feet. It is very suitable for the suburbs of a large city or for smaller towns where wide lots permit a lawn and plenty of breathing space.

SMALL CREATURES AS PETS

Some People Keep Bees in Observation Hive Within the House—Water Bug's Odd Habit.

Such small creatures as bees, ants, bees, toads and cockroaches have come in for their share of petting, and seem to like it, too. Most of us have watched in wordless astonishment the dashing pair of bees pull a small chariot around a tiny ring in the sidewalk at a circus. Toads make as interesting pets as goldfish.

To you know that every time a toad swallows a jumping his face wears a surprised and rather pained expression.

Scenes During Communist Rising in Germany

These are some of the first photographs of the recent communist uprising in central Germany to arrive in this country. Above, captured Brno are lined up by the police of Eislefeld, to be questioned by an officer. Below, members of the defense police are bringing in an arrested communist, after a raid. It is disputed whether the rising was financed by the Russians or arranged by Germany.

the rest of the house and when furnished with wicker furniture makes a very bright and efficient addition to the house. The wide, open front porch supported by heavy brick columns is a useful place in the summer time when it can be screened off. Three main rooms are provided for in the first floor plan, the living room, dining room and kitchen. on one side into the reception hall and at one corner into the dining room. Located diagonally opposite, the sun porch is reached through the hall and also opens into the dining room. The latter is a large, square-shaped room with two windows on the side and rear. A small door leads to the kitchen. In this small room, a very comfortable factor with the busy house-and that he rubs his stomach with his funny little hands in order to quiet his restive meal? Many people keep bees in a small observation hive on a sitting room table near the window. The hive is made with glass sides, and little dark screens are kept pulled down to keep out the light except when they are under observation. The hive is connected by a one-inch hole tube with the window sash, so that the little creatures do not stream through the room.

Nature's Wise Restriction.—Every fellow with any "go" to him wants to do what he wants to. We might also add that he wants to do what he wants to when he wants to. But very often that is impossible. And in a good many instances it's best that it be. As a rule people are more rash than they want to acknowledge. If they had half a chance they would glory in sending others into the wilderness, and then laugh about the troubles they would find there. So nature has put safeguards around humanity to keep it from doing many things that never ought to be attempted. Occasionally people break through them and the victim pays the penalty.—Exchange.

Old-Fashioned Armor.—Men have used body armor of some kind since earliest days. Except for withstanding several ballistic tests, neither our modern plate nor our padded armor seems to be much improved over the old helmet and corselet.

The Cook's Wants.—New York.—Yes, ma'am. I not only want to use the front door when I come in, but I want you to scrub the front door when you come to the back way.—Boston Globe.
