Most Wholesome Candy Made. Candies that are really fine, that are always fresh, in what we all should buy—chocolate candy—is without a doubt, the most wholesome candy made. It is worth one's while to seek such candies that we can depend upon for purity. It affords us much pleasure to call to your attention the high class chocolates that are made at the Palace Confectionery of our city. Just compare their candies with others that may be offered you and we know you will find our judgment good. Palace Confectionery Co.

Giant Insect. The largest insect known, but now extinct, was a dragon fly, which had a wing-spread measuring two feet.

A Square Deal for Sweet Corn

DO NOT PLANT CORN IN A SINGLE ROW AS IT HAS LITTLE OR NO CHANCE FOR POLLINATION.

Five rows of corn ten feet long will produce more sweet corn than the same number of stalks in a single row fifty feet long.

Every strand of corn silk represents a potential kernel of corn on the cob from which it issues. It becomes a kernel of corn provided the dust from the tassel or pollen falls upon it. The pollen dust must be deposited on the silk or there is no kernel of corn. The corn depends upon the wind to drift the pollen dust upon the silk. Other plants depend upon bees, but the bees do not find corn so much to their liking. The tassels give off clouds of dust. All it needs is direction.

In a square of corn, whichever way the wind comes, it drives the dust through the planting. Most of it is bound to fall upon the silks. In a long single row, or a double row, the pollen strikes no silk that it can fertilize. This explains the basis for square planting of corn rather than in long rows.

Two feet apart in the row and rows three feet apart is about the right distance for corn. Three to four stalks in a hill is plenty. Three is better than four for full development. Another system is to plant the corn in rows with single stalks about a foot apart.

Corn loses its sugar within four hours after it is picked. It can't be kept over night and retain its sweetness. A chemical change takes place, which changes the sugar in the corn to starch. So corn is one vegetable that must be home grown or grown very close to home if it is to be placed on the table really sweet.

Corn is the shallowest rooting large growing vegetable. Its roots radiate like the spokes of a wheel, but they do not go deep. This is one reason why it is so easily blown over by a high wind if not hilled up.

As it is shallow rooting, too deep hoeing disturbs the root system and hampers growth.

This doesn't mean that it shouldn't be hoed, by any means, but hoe lightly and do not dig in too deeply. If the soil is in good condition, stirring the soil with a rake or a cultivator toothed hoe is a better system.

Union County Library Report For April.

All the branches show a gratifying increase this month in the use made of the libraries by the children and in the number of non-fiction books read. Both Union and Cove report a larger circulation than in March, which is unusual, as spring work lessens the time given to reading.

Union circulated 880 volumes; Cove 694; Elgin 532. Adult loans for Union, 619; Cove, 421; Elgin, 336. Adult non-fiction loans, Cove, 165; Union, 52; Elgin, 37. Juvenile loans, Union, 261; Cove, 183; Elgin, 166. Juvenile non-fiction, Cove, 54; Union, 34; Elgin, 13. New borrowers registered, Cove, 70;

Union, 39; Elgin sent in none during the month. It will probably be counted in next month's total.

The Central Library in La Grande sent by mail 30 pieces, in response to special requests. Of these, 13 were sent to the Union library, 6 to Elgin, and 1 to Cove. The others were sent direct to individuals in Kamela, North Powder and Hubler, and ranged from teachers' reading circle books, books on electricity, farm stock, entertainment, to just "a couple of good adventure stories, please."

With school days drawing to a close, vacation plans are brought to the fore. The Public Library has an interesting collection of booklets and folders descriptive of the playgrounds of America, in addition to many attractive travel books. A few of the latter are mentioned here:

Johnson—"What to See in America," describes briefly the scenic beauties of each state.

Shackleton—"Book of Chicago."
Faris—"Seeing the Far West."
Mills—"Spell of the Rockies."
Chase—"California Desert Trails."
Vag Dyke—"Grand Canyon of the Colorado."
Muir—"Our National Parks."
Yard—"Book of the National Parks."
Lyman—"Columbia River."
Putnam—"In the Oregon Country."
