STRENGTH OF MOTHER LOVE IS VISUALIZED IN "THE SAGE HEN"

Deep in the heart of every woman there slumbers the ferocity of a tigress. Let her dearest possession—her home, her honor, or her child be endangered, and it springs into being with a passionate violence. Magnificent in her anger, its flame is a beacon of the purity of her soul, the steadfastness of her love, the truth of her maternal instinct. It is the heritage of every true mother. An awe-inspiring story of mother love is told in "The Sage Hen," the Edgar Lewis-Pathe feature showing at the Arcade Theatre for two days, commencing Friday.

SHIRLEY MASON HAS BOY ROLE IN FILM "TREASURE ISLAND"

While Maurice Tourneur was selecting the cast for his new Paramount Artercraft production, "Treasure Island," which will be shown at the Sherry Theatre last day today, he searched far and wide for a boy actor to play the role of young Jim Hawkins, hero of the Stevenson classic. Suddenly the thought flashed through his mind that a girl could probably lend more charm and piquancy to the part than any boy could hope to attain. He at once hit upon Shirley Mason as the ideal type, and he sent for her.

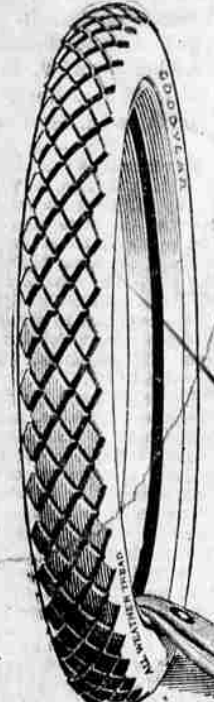

Also showing comedy. "Yes, Sir. Yes, Sir, eighty-two I be, an' every tooth in my head an' every hair on my body were born!"—London Mail.

Fleeing from Mine War

The shooting that has been going on across the Tug River, separating Kentucky and West Virginia, caused many families to flee from their homes. This picture shows a miner moving his family to safety.

THE HOME GARDEN

What is Home without a Garden?

Snapdragons That Satisfy

Don't blame the seedsmen because your snapdragons don't produce wonderful three-foot spikes of silvery pink snappers in the garden. They aren't very likely to unless it is a very exceptional summer and you are a very exceptional gardener. Snapdragons just don't give up. They are one of the finest annuals and if cut down and given a little of leaves, they will survive the winter and come up stronger and better than ever the next year. It isn't possible to do in the garden the enormous snapdragon spikes of the florist's windows because they are grown in greenhouses where moisture and conditions of temperature are under absolute control and where the plant can be given ideal conditions. Unfortunately we can neither regulate temperature nor moisture to any great extent in the garden. In general the half dwarf and the dwarf strains of snapdragons are more satisfactory for garden beds than the giant varieties. Their individual blooms are as large and they make up in mere numerous spikes for the length of the giant varieties. Snapdragons need an early start to give a long season, and they want a well-drained soil. They are not so particular about heavy feedings as some annuals, as they are sure to produce about anywhere. If it is desired to grow the big fellows see that the soil is rich well fertilized. Start the plants in the house. Set them about a foot apart and water freely to a single inch, giving plenty of water at all times, and weak liquid manure once a week. Pinch out side shoots from the main stem. The snapdragon seeds up a terminal spike with numerous silvery flowers. If left to the natural way of growing, pinching out the side shoots throws all the energy into the main stem. However, on the more ornamental as a garden plant with the side shoots forming a rounded bloom, cut up so fine for cutting.
