WHAT'LL BE THE KAYO BLOW? HERE'S DOPE ON OTHERS

DEMPSEY! GREATEST OF ALL FIGHTERS! CARPENTIER!

BY DEAN SNYDER

The finishing blow at Jersey City on July 2 may be either a right or a left.

It it's a right either Dempsey or Carpentier may swing it. If it's a left Dempsey will be the deliverer.

Both of the champ's dukes are primed. The Frenchman is a right-handed kayo artist.

Knockout blows by which champions of the past have been enthroned are about equally divided between the rights and the lefts.

John L. Sullivan finished Paddy Ryan, Feb. 7, 1882, at Mississippi City, Miss., in nine rounds with a right to the jaw. The fight was held under the London prize ring rules. It was the last of the bare knuckle title fights.

James J. Corbett knocked out Sullivan with a right to the jaw in 21 rounds on September 7, 1892, at New Orleans.

Fitz Used Hook.

Bob Fitzsimmons knocked Corbett out in 14 rounds with a left hook to the pit of the stomach on March 17, 1897, at Carson City ,Nev.

James J. Jeffries kayoed Fitzsimmons in 11 rounds with a left hook to the jaw on June 9, 1899, at Coney Island, N. Y.

Jack Johnson took the title from Jeffries at Reno, Nev., on July 4, 1910, when Jeffries' seconds tossed in the sponge after the big colored fighter had socked with rights and lefts for 15 rounds.

Jess Willard knocked Johnson to the canvas with a right to the jaw on April 5, 1915, at Havana, Cuba. Johnson was not knocked senseless, but quit and was counted out in the twenty-sixth round.

Jack's Choice Blow.

Jack Dempsey knocked Willard down with both rights and lefts at their Toledo fight, on July 4, 1919, and was given the title when Willard failed to respond for the fourth round.

Willard maintains that it was Dempsey's right to the heart in the first round that was the real knockout blow, as he never knew he was in the ring afterwards.

Practically all of Dempsey's finishing blows have been shot across with his right.

In his 67 fights he won 45 of them by knockouts. Most of them were short fights of one and two rounds. Bill Brennan, who was knocked kicking in 12 rounds, stayed up under Dempsey's wallops longer than any other human being ever has done.

Dempsey Heads List.

And in knockouts Dempsey's 45 heads the list for heavyweights by a big margin.

Carpentier is second with 32 kayos.

The Frenchman has had more fights than any other heavyweight since John L. He has been in 81 ring encounters. Of these 65 were victories.

The record looks credit Sullivan with having 26 victories, including 11 knockouts.

Corbett won 26 fights, winning 5 of them with a 10-count wallop.

Fitzsimmons piled up 41 victories, including 23 knockouts.

Jeffries won 18 fights and knocked out 11 of his opponents.

Johnson won 52 of his fistic battles and made 26 of his opponents take the count.

Willard won 26 starts with 18 knockouts.

The Openings.

So Dempsey with his string of 45 sleepers is the real man-killer of the lot.

Dempsey can be hit with a right hand. This is proven every day by his sparring partners. That is Carpentier's opening. He'll play for it, too.

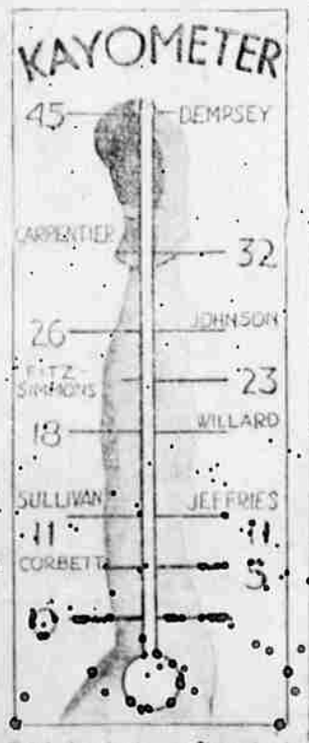
Carpentier is open to a left-hand sock. Dempsey is trying to develop his left so he can take advantage of this weakness of the challenger.

So the finishing blow at Jersey City may be either a right or a left.

Which will it be?

That's why they're fighting.

Facially speaking, who'll win the big fight? On the left you see Champion Jack Dempsey; on the right, Challenger Georges Carpentier. In the center is a composite photograph of the heavyweight champions of the past, made from fighting pictures of John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, Jack Johnson and Jess Willard. Which battler looks the most like champs of the past? Just on the face of things, who do YOU think will win?



Total knockouts registered by heavyweight champions from John L. to now, plus record of Georges Carpentier, present challenger for the title

JOSH WISE ON THE FIGHT

By JACK RAPER.

A WORD FROM JOSH WISE: Purses meant nothin' t' old John L. He was ready at th' drop o' th' hat t' fight one round er' drink ten.

A Massachusetts congressman has introduced a resolution calling for the postponement of the fight. But if it should be postponed how would all the senators and representatives pass away the time on July 2?

It had to be. Give 'em time and they all say it. The sport eds have sent in dispatches saying Dempsey is as brown as a berry. What kind of a berry? Raspberry?

Carpentier is said to be a splendid judge of distance. Mebby he used to be a surveyor.

If everybody were as certain of the result as the two big fighters claim to be, you could put all the spectators at Jersey City in one jitney.

Any time a prizefighter is broke it's easy enough for him to raise money even if he hasn't a watch or diamonds to pawn. He can put up his hands.

Dempsey keeps his left hand taped and covered with billiard table felt when he spars or punches the bag. And then when he lands with his right it's always felt.

A Manhasset dispatch says Carpentier caught a rabbit, but it does not explain just how he did it. To catch a squirrel you make a noise like a nut and mebby to catch a rabbit you make a noise like a cabbage.

Dempsey's eats have been cut down to two meals a day. What has become of the old-fashioned prize-fighter who never let training interfere with his eating?

The ex-pugs and the ex-perts who watch Carp, say he isn't easily excited and doesn't lose his head. All of which may be true, but he was up in the air a lot during the war.

Dempsey swings heavily on his sparring partners whenever he has an opportunity. In fact, his right hand swing is famous. Jess Willard's favorite was the porch swing.

Carp is something of a gymnast and Descamps says he can tumble as well as any man in France. This may turn out to be a rough and tumble scrap.

Chocolate Cream Pie —a man's favorite

It will taste just right to him made with Carnation Milk

7 tablespoonfuls Carnation Milk, 1 cup water, ½ cup grated chocolate, ⅔ cup sugar, 1 teaspoonful cornstarch, 2 eggs (yolks and whites beaten separately), 1 teaspoonful vanilla. Bake the pie crust first. Mix all ingredients (except whites of eggs) together, and make a custard. Fill crust with custard, cover with the whites of eggs well beaten with 2 tablespoonfuls powdered sugar, and brown a little in the oven.

Pastry, cakes and all foods are appetizing and nourishing when made with Carnation Milk. Its added richness and purity enhance the flavor and food value of any dish.
