AN ATTRACTIVE TEAM

The Observer is not daffy over good horses, but who is there that doesn't stop and pay a second look when a stylish team of horses prances by—a team well-groomed, sleek, fat, and earmarks of good breeding showing in the snap of their step and the toss of their heads. G. L. (Larry) Larison is like us, in this respect. He and his men take a lot of pride in the fancy delivery team owned by the firm. That they have grounds for feeling proud of their hitch is shown by the number of prizes the team won at the Union Stock show; Mr. Larison takes pride in showing them to his callers. The span is grade Clydes, and with them he won the white ribbon in a free-for-all halter class. The Horsebreeders' Association of America posted $50.00 to go to the best grade draft team at the stock show. Larison's team took that and in this competition went the blue ribbon and a very handsome trophy presented by the Stock Show. The trophy is in the shape of a cake platter. Sure—a "snappy" team commands attention.

SECRETARY FORD REAL DYNAMO.

In the persons of Secretary Ford of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce, the Inland Empire has a fighting force for community development. About the time commercial secretarial associations began to take life in this state and the sister state to the north, Mr. Ford commenced to make himself felt outside his own town. He is energetic, untiring, and more often right than wrong. More Fords would make more Spokanes in Washington. He is a credit to the profession. His weight and influence behind the rate squabble now on will be felt from the start.

TODAY'S CHAUTAUQUA EDITION.

Careful perusal of today's edition is urged. First, no citizen can be abreast of his own community until he knows the details of that community's program. Secondly, Chautauqua patrons should acquaint themselves in advance with the numbers in toto, in order that, if unable to attend all, they can select those attractions which they deem of most good and entertainment. In this edition is found a detailed description of the talent. Read it. Keep the edition.

SIMS WILL GET BY ALL RIGHT.

Efforts to frustrate demonstrations against Admiral Sims when he lands at New York late today have been taken by the steamer officials. Right or wrong, tactful or blunt, judicious or otherwise, Admiral Sims says what he thinks and even his enemies say they admire that in him. He is crusty—Secretary of the Navy Denby doesn't scare him—nothing dots, and who is there that, down deep in his heart, doesn't admire a man who speaks his mind, though indiscretion in speech and action. Sims will land, and any demonstrations by his critics will worry him but little. He loves a fight and all the world loves a fighter.

WHAT OF THE MEMORIAL

Nearly a year has passed since the entire west was saddened by the loss of one of the last frontier's noblemen—Til Taylor, citizen and sheriff. The regard in which sheriff Taylor was held by his fellow men was immediately demonstrated by the raising of a memorial fund to commemorate his life and deeds in enforcing the laws of man in Umatilla county. Disposition of this fund and choice of the memorial was left in the hands of a committee of five prominent Pendletonians.

But still we have no memorial, and as far as the public can see, the committee has not even decided what form the memorial shall take. Something over $17,000 has been raised and is lying ready to purchase a memorial. A sharp difference of opinion as to whether the memorial should be a park or an equestrian statue, and arguments on both sides have been heard and reiterated. This is no time to agitate, partisan views on this subject, already threshed out to a point where the committee has but to vote and make its decision. But why wait longer?

Whether park or statue, let's buy or build. Admirers of Til Taylor all over the state are wondering what has become of the memorial fund and it is not in keeping with the Pendleton method of doing things to continually put off what might just as well be selected now. The fund was raised to provide a memorial in honor of Til Taylor; let's have it.

by the veterans to whom the city was host.

Til Taylor Memorial Park, should it be built, would be a logical spot for the erection of so patriotic a thing as a community flag pole. What would possibly tend more to keep alive the name so dear as a memorial park with a flag pole large enough therein to fly the colors of our nation? What with the bronze plates that could be placed in each corner of the necessary concrete base, commemorating soldiers of past wars and daily attendance by Pendleton Boy Scouts at reveille and retreat, two sacred memorials could be admirably kept, and the spirit of Americanism furthered in the hearts of Umatilla county citizens—Pendleton Tribune.

"PLAYING WITH FIRE."

Sir James H. Thomas, British delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention at Denver, has solemnly warned American employers who are urging general adoption of open shop conditions that they are "playing with fire" and "rendering the position of trades unionists who believe in order and constitutionalism as preferable to revolution very difficult."

THE OFFICE CAT

—By JUNIUS—

Always Something New.

When we attend the movies, which we do regularly, we always wait anxiously for the news reel, or topical review. We don't have much time to read the newspapers, and we like to keep track of what is going on, in the world. While some other features on the average movie show may not hold us entranced, we are always sure of something new, and we are certain to see the vital episodes of the world's news, dished up, hot off the griddle. And the best part of it is, we are never disappointed. We know exactly what we are going to see. We saw our favorite news reel yesterday, and it ran exactly as follows:

- Wellesley college girls rolling hoops.
- Canoeing on Bay at Copenhagen.
- Battleship passing under Brooklyn bridge.
- Count De Kay arriving from Europe.
- Secretary of the Navy looking through porthole of battleship.
- Living American Flag made by Squawamuck school children.
- Muskraus at play.
- View of Charleston, N. C., from airplane.
- Launching of freighter Chepohaphopating at Seattle.
- Close-up of Miss Euphemia Mudge, who christened boat.
- Drill of students at Hokum Military Academy.
- Fire in Bone Collar Button Works at Hoopdale, Ind.
- Miniature sailboats on lake in Central Park.
- Making doughnuts by machinery.
- The sugar profiteers cannot be accused of wasting their sweat-sweat on the desert, etc.

Lines on a Lost Love.

Some years ago I loved a maid,
Ne'er had Ma Eve a fairer daughter;
An ardent court to her I paid,
To be my wife I oft besought her.
But when I begged her to be my own,
She frowned upon my ardent wooing;
Yes, she flopped me in a matter prone,
And told me there 'was nothing doing!

She's nearly 40 now and fat!
Her troth to another's plighted,
And fain would I inform her that
If she is happy, I'm delighted!

shown by many industrial heads tend to drive organized labor to equal extremes of intolerance, through irritation and fear.

Organized labor will not give up what it has gained in the way of solidarity and collective action without a bitter fight, if indeed it gives them up. But if the ranks of union labor as it exists in America today should really be broken, what would be the result? Not surely, what the relentless reactionaries of capitalism expect—easy control of capital by a supine working class. Rather, a general labor movement more radical than any that has ever appeared in this country.

It is infinitely better to have the American Federation of Labor and allied groups, with all their faults, than to have one vast group of American I. W. W.'s or Bolshevists fighting to the death with American capital.

FORUM

SHORTHORN COW INTERESTS.

LA GRANDE, June 22.—To the Editor:—A casual observer learns that Mr. G. M. Richie of La Grande, who has a herd of Shorthorns on his farm at Cove, has just acquired from Mr. Wm. Couper of Union, the fine shorthorn junior yearling heifer "Collyne Beauty," for a consideration of about $500. This animal stood fourth in her class at the recent Union show, but many cattle fanciers who saw the class judged were of the opinion that she should have taken a higher place. In the students' judging she was the favorite. Be this as it may, the writer inclines to the opinion that Mr. Richie, as a breeder, has made no mistake in the latest addition to this herd and if there is any thing in a name the word "Collyne" in Shorthorn circles stands for a great deal.

Deep-fleshed, low, blocky and weighing at such early age 925 pounds without extra nurse cow fostering, yet having scale to carry more weight still, is the style desired by up to date breeders for best results.

In other words an animal of the easy keeping, early maturing sort. The guess is ventured that with proper care Collyne Beauty will give good account of herself later on.
