

KILBANE SAYS DEMPSEY WILL WIN; FORECASTS FIGHT ROUND BY ROUND

THE STORY OF THE FIGHT AS KILBANE SEES IT, TOLD IN PICTURES.

JACK GOES AFTER CARP READY WITH RIGHT. CARP DANCES AWAY.

DEMPSEY DRIVES CARP TO ROPES PUNISHING HIM AT INFIGHTING.

CARP GETS IN SEVERAL HARD WALLOPS WITH RIGHT.

RIGHT TO HEAD AND LEFT TO JAW STOP GEORGES.

BY JOHNNY KILBANE, Featherweight Champion.

Champion Jack Dempsey will knock out Georges Carpentier, the French flash, in four rounds when the two meet at Jersey City, July 2, for the world's heavyweight title.

That's my prediction. I base it on a careful study of both men. I watched Dempsey work and boxed with him at Atlantic City. I went to Manhasset to study the Frenchman in action. I talked with them both.

Carpentier lacks the necessary confidence. And every day he spends at his camp at Manhasset adds to his unrest.

Buried away in the loneliness of rural Long Island, shut off from the outside with only a few sparring partners by the barbed wire entanglements that surround his premises, Georges has nothing to think of but the coming fight. He talks fight, eats fight and sleeps fight. It's on his mind, always, because there is nothing else to detract from it. And it hurts him.

He conceals his worry from most of the outsiders on his "show off days" with the famous Carpentier smile. But talk with him, for an hour. You'll hear this about Dempsey and that about Carpentier—it's always something about the champ that he likes to talk about, sure proof that the battle is haunting Georges and that it's wearing on him. I've been fighting for 15 years and I know fighters. I've seen lots of other men who lacked confidence and I've seen the results when they stepped into the ring.

Dempsey meets scores of folks daily. It's bad in a way, of course, but it keeps his mind off the fight. He isn't worrying. He doesn't have time. Not once did he mention the Frenchman's name or voluntarily make a remark about the approach.

The Frenchman is in prime physical condition, but he isn't big enough to withstand the ferocious attacks of a fighter of Dempsey's caliber. Coupling this with the 15 to 20 pounds greater weight that the champ will carry, his greater reach and the fact that he'll put every ounce of strength he has into defending his title meal ticket, I can't concede the challenger a chance.

That's a little strong. He has a chance—one chance in a hundred of being able to slip over a lucky punch that lets him out on top. But if he should win, it would be one of the biggest upsets of the dope pail that ever has occurred in fistic circles.

From my study of both champ and challenger, this is my dope on how the fight will progress:

THE FIGHT BY ROUNDS

ROUND 1—Dempsey starts after Carp with head lowered and guarded by his left, and right hand drawn back for opening to punch to the body. Carp dances around, retreating before Jack and trying to stick in left jabs to the face to back up the champ. Dempsey evinces his purpose to score a knockout as speedily as possible.

ROUND 2—Dempsey finds Georges so elusive he can't reach his body and resorts to rushing, trying to corner Carp against the ropes so he can punish him at infighting. Georges slips out of many of these traps and dances away. Carp gets in several hard wallops at the champ with his right, but if Dempsey feels them, he does not show it.

ROUND 3—Dempsey opens with more rushing, trying to force Carp onto the ropes. On several occasions he is successful, and he punishes the Frenchman severely at close range, before Georges can slip away. Carp finds his play of long-range fighting isn't getting over punishment on Jack, for most of the wallops he has tried up to this time have either been blocked or have missed. Georges goes to his corner breathing hard and obviously losing steam. Dempsey's stomach punches have weakened him.

ROUND 4—Dempsey starts jabbing at Carp's face. Georges dances back from them. He has an opening and sends over his right. Dempsey sidesteps the drive and Carp's arm slips over the champ's shoulder. Quick as a flash Jack's right hand goes out with a short jerk toward The Laugh on Georges!

Georges Carpentier's sparring partner, laughing when Georges slipped and rained his head into his, goat fashion. Such a slip in the big fight might mean that Dempsey not only would get Carp's "goat" but also knock him out.

Carp's head and Georges collides with it and he comes in. Then the champ steps forward in the second move of his famous "awivel swing" and pumps a left with terrific force into the challenger's jaw. Down goes the Frenchman in a lump for the count. (Copyright 1921 by Newspaper Enterprise)

First English Canal.

England admitted the commercial value of canals at an early date. Its first canal being constructed in 1134, under the direction and patronage of Henry I, when the waters of the Trent were connected with the Witham and much public advantage was derived from the waterway.

Winning Jump

This jump of Miss Ethel Glover of Brooklyn, N. Y., recorded in a paper, it was one of many given by Jack J. Downing, supervisor of recreation, at Brooklyn's children's athletic meet.

DEMPSEY IS CELEBRATING

CHAMPION IS 26 YEARS OF AGE TODAY.

Is Taking Lay-Off From All Training—Receives Hundreds of Telegrams From Admirers.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 24.—Jack Dempsey is celebrating his twenty-sixth birthday today by taking a lay-off from all training. He received hundreds of telegrams from his admirers. Full training will be resumed by the champion tomorrow.

For Sale.

One of the very best 30-acre tracts on the Sand Ridge, 7 miles from La Grande, Ore., on the main road, 1/2 mile from school, 4-room house, small barn and other out-buildings, good well, windmill, 23 acres in good fall wheat, 5 acres in summer fallow, balance in pasture and garden truck. This is a great bargain at $10,000. Will give good terms at 5% interest. Would consider some trade. Don't miss this bargain if you want a good home.

Also one of the best 50-acre dairy and poultry ranches in the valley, 5 miles from La Grande, on the main road, 1 1/2 miles from highway, good water, good light in irrigation ditch, a acre in cultivation, balance in pasture and garden. Could all be put in cultivation. Some home water in house, big barn, granary, garage, chicken house, wood house, one cement cellar, one cob cellar, all in good condition. All kinds of fruit. $15,000, would consider some trade. Give good terms on balance.

Pyramid Land Company
LA GRANDE, OREGON

The Screen

SHIRLEY MASON AND SENNETT COMEDY PLAY AT ARCADE THEATRE

What is the secret of the success of Shirley Mason, the dainty little motion picture star, who since she first starred in a Fox production some months ago, has won her way to the front rank? The answer is to be found in "Flame of Youth," her latest picture—and said to be her best—which comes to the Arcade theatre today and Saturday.

Advance reports indicate that "Flame of Youth" is a sweet love story, filled with human interest, built on a theme that young and old can equally enjoy.

On the same program will be shown a two-reel Mack Sennett comedy with the old favorites, Charles Murray and Ford Stealing creating much of the fun.

MAY ALLINSON AT SHERRY THEATRE FOR TODAY ONLY

When it comes to theories about photographs, May Allinson, the blonde Metro star, whose latest picture, "Extravagance," is to be shown at the Sherry theatre today, has a perfectly good set all her own.

The southern beauty who holds such a premier position among the artists of the screen has perhaps had more photographs of herself taken in all sorts of poses than the majority of young women. Every mail brings to Miss Allinson numerous requests for pictures of herself as she appears outside of the productions in which she happens to be started.

Also 4th Episode, Lightning Bryce, Coming, Nazimova.

CURWOOD'S STORY, "KAZAN" AT STAR THEATRE TODAY

The murder of Jim Radisson, of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, is the foundation of the plot of James Ford Stealing creating much of the fun.

Star theatre today, Saturday and Sunday. Struck down treacherously from behind by "Black" McCready, a law-breaker whom he had arrested, Radisson is left dying in the snow-covered fastnesses of the north. The only witness to the crime is his dog "Kazan," and then one dark night "Kazan the Killer" obtains his terrible revenge and saves the one woman of that wild country who has befriended him.

IMBLER MEN WIN AT TENNIS

The only preliminary in the tennis tournament played last night was that of Wilson and Wilson vs. Proctor and Larson. The Wilson brothers, who are from Imbler and are the only entrants from outside of La Grande, won 6-2 and 6-2.

J. L. Cramer, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., who is in charge of the tournament, stated today that all who are slated for preliminary matches should play these off as soon as convenient so that another drawing can be made for the next set of matches.

THE HUB

Children's Wash Hats 60c

These hats are excellently made of good wash fabrics. The patterns include Stripes, Checks, Whites and Combinations.

THE WORKING MAN'S STORE

STAR TODAY SATURDAY SUNDAY

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD'S greatest story KAZAN the wolf-dog killer

FEATURING JANE NOYAK and KAZAN THE WORLD'S WONDER DOG