INSPECTOR NOW STATES FACTS

Men at Northern Pacific Terminal Yards Are Surprised at the Change in Swift.

"I'm strong for Tanlac because it came to my rescue twice when I most needed help," said Charles Swift, locomotive inspector at the Northern Pacific Terminal Yards, and whose home address is 405 Union Ave., N., Portland, Ore.

"I first took Tanlac two years ago when I was all run down and it put me on my feet and made me gain twenty-four pounds. In fact, it made a new man out of me. I was in the pink of condition for two years after that, but a few months ago my health broke down again and I began to be bothered with indigestion and nervousness.

"The first thing I thought about was Tanlac, and I'm glad to say it has put me in first-class condition again. I eat anything I want, my nerves are steady as steel and I sleep so sound I don't turn over from the time my head touches the pillow to the time my 'Big Ben' wakes me up. I feel more like a boy than a man of my age, and the men at the yards are all talking about the big change in me. If I had my way there would be a bottle of Tanlac in every home, for it certainly is a wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold in La Grande by Silverthorn's Family Drug Store and all leading druggists.—Adv.

Eddy-Crowe Plays Hated.
Just to settle an argument that began during the picnic on the fairways Wednesday evening, Instructor Eddy and S. D. Crowe have decided to play two matches that will end the controversy. The first one was played yesterday, in which Mr. Eddy was to give Mr. Crowe five strokes. Neither man was at his best however, and they tied up at 53 all. Mr. Eddy set a stiff pace, being four ahead on three holes, but his opponent tightened and overtook the lead. Tomorrow morning the same two will play on a three-stroke handicap for Mr. Crowe.

REAT STORY IS COMING TO SHERRY

"The Branding Iron," which comes to the Sherry Theatre for two days, commencing today, is the latest Goldwyn feature production, enacted by an all star cast, and directed by the well known Reginald Barker.

The story is truly dramatic and deals with the life of a beautiful young girl, Joan, who is imprisoned in a cabin in the mountains of Wyoming by a liquor crazed father, who has never permitted her to see the outer world. Her opportunity came one night, when her father, more intoxicated than ever before, unthinkingly leaves the only door to the cabin unlocked.

Joan took refuge in a ranch house in the valley, where Pierre, a handsome rugged type of man, is attracted by her beauty, woos and marries her.

Pierre took the girl to the lonely little cabin on his ranch, where they lived and loved devotedly, until Joan's father, much the worse for liquor, appeared at the ranch one day, and warned Pierre that his wife was unfaithful to him, and whom he confessedly shot.

Hollwell, a young preacher, with a kindly interest in Joan, prompted by his sympathy for her utter lack of education, interested the little mountain girl in good books, for which she manifested a keen delight.

Pierre, returning from the range, was greeted by Joan who told him of her efforts to better her condition under the kindly influence of Hollwell.

Pierre, knowing the broader vision Joan would derive from her reading, and fearing the consequences, forbade her to see Hollwell again.

Joan saw Hollwell, and when Pierre again came back from his range, and discovered her disobedience, his anger rose, until like a maddened animal, he led her to the best post, and before her eyes beamed a branding iron, exclaiming that he would brand her as he did his cattle, that everybody may know she is his property. When the iron was white hot he advanced towards her, blind to her horror.

Many situations followed in the wake of the branding iron.
